NO CORE TO THESE APPLES

The budget speech in the Legislature added one cent more per gallon on gasoline; added materially to the amusement tax, and consumers will have to pay more for their class of beverages. There will also be additional taxation on banks and life and fire insurance companies. All incorporated companies in Ontario will pay one per cent. on their net profits. Strong objections have been registered against these imposts Most of them will cut both ways While the government exchequer will benefit on one hand it will lose on the other. With these new taxes things have come to such a pass that many motorists will not take out a license this year and business will be further curtailed. The amusement tax will also result in lowered attendance. As for the added tax on liquor we do not suppose the dry element will object to that, but there is a possibility that it may add to the activity of the bootlegger. As for the banks and insurance companies the tax will not be absorbed but will revert to the patrons. A small boy once "taxed' his chum for the core of an apple. No 2 said "There won't be no core.' We will soon arrive at the point where the government will not be able to even confiscate the core, because there won't be any core or apple either.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Ontario car owners will pay approximately $20,000,000 into the treasury of the Government this coming year. Quite a "pork barrel" for any government to have.

Commercial fertilizers when applied to various crops in conjunction with good farming methods give big returns. Phosphates increase yields of almost all crops, on almost all types of soil. Potash pays especially on the sandy soils. Nitrogen for most farm crops should, as far as possible, be obtained from growing legumes.

HOW MUCH?

How much you should eat of what you do eat is a subject of real importance to you. No one can set down for you the exact amounts of the different foods you should eat.

The amount of food required varies according to age, sex, season and activity. During the years of growth food is required for body building, which is not needed once growth is completed. Men require a little more food than women. Activity uses up energy, and as body energy comes from our food, the active person requires more food than does the individual who is inactive. The heat of the body is maintained at an even level, and in cold weather, more food is used to keep the body warm than is necessary during the summer season.

How then is any one person to know how much to eat? The simplest and most practical method is to watch your weight. You can find out the average weight for your age, sex and height. Weighing yourself occasionally will show whether you are gaining or losing weight, or whether an even weight is being maintained.

If you are overweight, you have eaten too much in the past. If you are overweight and gaining, you are eating too much in the present. The reverse is true as regards underweight and continuing loss in weight

It may be that underweight is not due to an insufficiency of food alone; it may be that the right kinds of food are not being used. Nutrition is not, by any means, entirely a matter of food. Loss of weight may be due to actual disease, or to lack of rest, or fresh air, or some other essential to healthy living, the absence of which interfers with the proper digestion and use of the foods eaten.

The person who is free from disease and who is using the wide variety of foods which he should take, can judge as to the quantity needed by watching his weight. We are not suggesting that you should live with your eye on a scale weight, but we are of the opinion that an occasional weighing, once a month, is a good way to keep a check on the quantity of food eaten.

It is much easier to avoid overweight than it is to correct it. It is much more simple to cut down sufficiently on the diet to avoid adding weight than it is to cut off enough to reduce weight. Weight can be reduced, but the process requires considerable determination, perseverance and sacrifice.

Many people are tempted to eat more food than they need. It requires self-restraint to pass by certain inviting dishes. However, failure to control the appetite is punished by digestive upsets and by overweight which is a burden and a handicap.

Dundalk Won Debate

Resolved "That co-operation has done more for the world than has competition" was the the subject of a debate between Markdale and Dundalk Y. P.S. of the Young People's Union of Grey Pres., in St. John's United church, Flesherton, on Tuesday evening. Dundalk upheld the affirmative and the decision of the judges was given in their favor. The debaters were: Dundalk — Mr. Sheppard and Miss Watson; Markdale — Fred Armstrong and Jean Abercrombie. Judges: Mrs. Murray, Miss E. Acheson and Miss C. Gray. Mr. Howard Graham of Vandeleur, Convenor of the Literary side of the Union, presided.

MR. AD MRS. AKINS PRESENTED WITH DINNER SET

A shower was held last Thursday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Akins, who were recently married, by the people of the village. The evening was spent in round and square dancing and an enjoyable time was partaken by all. During the evening the presentation of a handsome dinner set, a rose blanket and some kitchen ware, was made by Miss Gertie Lever, the address being read by Mrs. Royden McDonald, to which Mr. Akins made a very appropriate reply, followed by Mrs. Akins, in which she expressed her gratitude. Lunch then followed, after which the dance went on , which broke up at an early hour. Mr. and Mrs. Akins, (nee Sadie Ward) are residing on their farm 1¼ miles south of Flesherton and it is the wish of their Flesherton friends that they will spend many happy years of wedded life together.

On Friday night the Springhill Social club along with many other friends from the surrounding country presented the newly-weds with a handsome cabinet of silver. Mr. Akins answered for both his wife and himself in reply to the address read by Mr. Everett Blackburn. Old time and modern dancing was enjoyed both evenings. Music being supplied by the Blackburn and White Orchestra.

WHY CARS RUN BETTER AT NIGHT

Thousands of motorists have experienced the sensation of having their cars run better at night than during the day and have wondered accordingly if the car really operated better or if it was only a hallucination. This question was put recently to Oldsmobile engineers and they assure motorists that improved car performance at night often is a fact and they explain the reasons why this is so. "An internal combustion engine gives better performance when the gas mixture is under high compression—that is, providing the compression has not been raised to a point where detonation will occur. The denser, or more compressed, the gas charge is the greater expansion it will have when it is fired. Air naturally becomes heavier and more dense when cold, expanding when hot. At 70 degrees temperature a pound of air will occupy 13.4 cubic feet of space, while at 32 degrees it will only occupy 12.4 cubic feet. Therefore, a larger and heavier charge of gas mixture can be drawn into an engine cylinder when the air is cool. Another contributing cause of improved engine performance at night is the fact that night air usually is damper than during the day, and the fine particles of moisture contained in it slightly slow the rate at which fuel burns."

LIKELY TO BE PERMANENT ELECTORAL OFFICER

It is not unusual for a resident of a town or village to be a township official, in fact it is quite common. What is out of the ordinary and that is what constitutes news, says the Chesley Enterprise, is when a farmer occupies a municipal position in an urban municipality. This is the case in the village of Neustadt where Michael Murray, a Normanby farmer living about three miles from the village is clerk, treasurer and collector of hydro rates. His combined offices bring him a revenue of $440. Mr. Murray was returning officer for S. East Grey at the last Dominion general election and he is likely to hold the position permanently as the chief electoral officer, Jules Castonguay, who visited all the returning officers since the last general election is perfectly satisfied with the correctness of Mr. Murray's returns.
