Always use best oil—say expert mechanics

When you consider how much you paid for your sewing machine, vacuum cleaner, lawn mower, washer, and other expensive devices, don't you think it's foolish to try to economize on oil? The very best costs only a few cents a year—and is really cheapest in the long run.

3-in-One, a scientific blend of mineral, vegetable and animal oils, is made especially for lubrication of household devices. It cleans and protects as well as lubricates. 3-in-One cost more to make than ordinary oil but it costs less to use. If you knew what expert mechanics know about oil, you'd never use anything else around the house. At good drug, grocery, hardware, department and general stores. For your protection, look for the trade mark "3-in-One" printed in Red on every package.

Miracle

I wonder like a child how this can be,
How every grumbling Spring, though men forget,
A summer wisdom works behind the wet
To bring the rose unfailing to the tree.
Day after day I watch till dark, and she,
A star of crimson in a cave of jet,
Still haunts the more. Unapprehended yet,
Behind the veils of sleep she burns for me.
And dreaming how my dear was once a child
Who drew the common air with scarce a stir,
While men destruction on destruction piled,
Or greatly gave, I marvel how, unsought,
Softly as drawing breath or taking thought,
This haunting rose of womanhood came to her.

—Anon, in the Glasgow Herald.

THE BOON OF SPRING

How many more springs may I hope to see? . . . Five or six springtimes welcomed joyously, lovingly watched from the first celandine to the budding of the rose; who shall dare to call it a stinted boon? Five or six times the miracle of earth reclad, the vision of splendor and loveliness which tongue has never yet described, set before my gazing. To think of it is to fear that I ask too much.—G. Gissing.

"What's all this noise about?" Father demanded of one of the twins. "Nanny's given me two baths and says I'm Freddie."

Illustrated Dressmaking Lesson Furnished With Every Pattern

Here's a cunning suit for the small boy of the house.

It has much unusualness in the way the trousers button to the blouse. The sailor type neckline is one all the little boys like so well. Note the collar terminates in scarf ends. They slip smartly through slashed openings at the centre-front. It can be made with very brief sleeves or long sleeves that gather into wristbands.

Light navy blue linen combined with plain white linen in the original.

Loads of other attractive schemes can be worked out. Several suits can be made at the price of one ready bought suit.

Style No. 2783 may be had in sizes 2, 4 and 6 years.

Size 4 requires 1 yard 35-inch for blouse, with ¾ yard 35-inch for trousers.

Books Napoleon Used Presented to Dominion

Ottawa—Three remarkable books, unique in the world, have come into the possession of the Canadian archives in Ottawa. They contain a translation into French of the voyages of Sir Alexander Mackenzie, said to be the first white man to cross the continent of North America, and they bear the inscription, "Napoleon's Copy From St. Helena," and the stamp of the imperial eagle.

The story is that Napoleon ordered this translation of Mackenzie's voyages that he might be supplied with information to aid him in a projected attack on British North America from the Pacific Coast. It was a fantastic scheme, of course, as apparently the Emperor learned when he read of Sir Alexander's adventures in exploring the sub-Arctic and crossing the Rockies.

Through some unexplained means the volumes came into possession of the Mackenzie family after Napoleon's death. Mrs. Bernard Heald, last of the family, died recently in Sussex, England, and her husband presented the books to the dominion.

Red Letter Days

Grave on thy heart each past "red-letter day";
Forget not all the sunshine of the way
By which the Lord hath led thee; answered prayers
And joys unasked, strange blessings, lifted cares.
Grand promise-echoes! Thus thy life shall be
One record of His love and faithfulness to thee.

How to play Bridge
AUCTION and CONTRACT
by Wynne Ferguson
Author of "PRACTICAL AUCTION BRIDGE"

ARTICLE No. 26

Which are the easier to handle, weak hands or strong hands? Most players probably will reply that strong hands are easier to bid and to play and that is probably true. Weak hands, as a rule, offer more problems than the strong ones, but the latter are frequently hard to handle.

The writer was watching a new Club member playing the other day and, as dealer, he passed a very strong hand. When asked why he did so, he replied: "The hand was so big, I didn't know what to do with it." This is not an uncommon fault, so learn to be as careful in bidding and playing the strong hands as you are with the weak ones. In the play, particularly, one is apt to become careless with a big hand; but remember that bad habits are hard to break. You may lose a trick or so on a big hand and still go game but, if you are just as careless on the next hand, the trick you lose may prevent you from going game. The only way to become a good Auction or Contract player is to play every hand, strong or weak, for the maximum. Concentration on what you are doing will win more rubbers for you than any other one thing.

The following hands were played in a recent duplicate tournament and the bidding showed a wide diversity of opinion. The hands of all four players are given, so that you will thus have an opportunity of comparing your analysis with the actual results.

Hand No.1

Hearts—K, J, 6, 5, 4
Clubs—A, 8, 2
Diamonds—A, J, 8, 4
Spades—4

Spades—K, 9, 6, 5, 2

No score, rubber game. Z dealt and bid one club. What should A now bid with the foregoing hand?

A's proper bid at either Auction or Contract is undoubtedly a double of Z's one club. At one table, A doubled and Y bid four clubs. This was a good bid, for it prevented A and B from bidding. It also forced A to guess as to the proper lead. He led the ace of hearts and then the ace of spades. As a result, Z made five-odd at clubs.

At table No. 2, A bid one no trump, which Y doubled. B was on the job, however, and took A out of the double by bidding two diamonds. Z was now in a difficult position. He knew that A must have spade strength to warrant his no trump bid, but saw no other way to give his partner additional information, so made the bid of two spades. A passed, for he was satisfied with the two-spade bid and Y was forced to bid two no trump or three hearts. He elected to bid the two no trump because it seemed a safer bid than three hearts. He just made the bid so failed to make game, a big loss compared with table No. 1.

This hand is a good illustration of winning by bad bidding. The proper bid with A's hand is a double of one club. The bid of one no trump is very faulty. The only reason A B at table No. 2 gained by the bid was because the player of A's hand at table No. 1 made a bad opening. With a trump opening, the proper one on the bidding, Y Z can only make three odd in clubs. It is an ideal hand for that opening. Note that the lead of the ace of hearts, followed by the ace of spades, gives Declarer game. Study this bidding and think over A's proper lead.

Hand No. 2

Auction Bidding

Z dealt and passed. A bid one heart, Y passed, B bid one no trump and Z and A passed. Y bid two diamonds, B passed and Z bid two spades. What should A now do with the foregoing hand?

At one table A doubled two spades. On the bidding it is a certainty that B has strength in spades and yet there is not a sure game in no trump. Therefore. A should play the certainty and double two spades rather than bid two no trump. By opening the king of hearts, he should defeat Z by three tricks.

At the second table, the bidding of this hand was entirely different.

Auction Bidding

Z passed, A bid one heart, Y passed, B bid one no trump and all passed. The writer thinks Y should have bid two diamonds. This hand could not stand any other lead and yet was strong enough to warrant a bid of two diamonds for the lead. As his partner hadn't bid, Z opened his fourth-best spade, which B won with the ten. He then led a low club and finessed the jack. The only way he could get his hand into take another club finesse was by playing either the ace of diamonds or the ace of spades. He didn't care to do either, so led a low diamond in the hope that Y would not cover. He then intended to play the eight and throw the lead into Z's hand.

Y made a big mistake by not playing his ten of diamonds so, when B played the eight, it held the trick, much to his surprise. From then on, he had little difficulty in making a grand slam by forcing Z to discard either spades or hearts and thus set up winning cards in either A's or B's hand. Work it out for practice. If Y had played the ten of diamonds, B could still have made a little slam by allowing Y to hold the trick. No matter what he leads, B can win the trick, set up his clubs and force Z to discard so that he must allow A B to win four heart tricks or a spade and three hearts. Try it out for practice.

Contract Bidding

Z should pass. A should bid one heart and Y should pass. B should bid one no trump and Z should pass. A should bid three no trump and all should pass. The play then proceeds as at Table No. 2.

Both of these hands offer problems of bidding and play much above the ordinary, so study them carefully.

10,000-Mile Polar Trip Planned by Soviet

Moscow.—A 10,000-mile voyage from Archangel to Vladivostok, circling the long arctic coast of Siberia and passing through Bering Strait, is an outstanding feature of Russia's plans for celebrating the second "international polar year" in 1932. Prof. O. U. Schmidt, head of the All-Union Arctic Institute, will be in charge of the icebreaker Sibiriakoff, which has been chosen for this exacting voyage.

In announcing plans for the trip, Professor Schmidt declared that, while it is hoped to make the voyage without interruption, outside of brief halts for purposes of exploration, the vessel will carry provisions for 15 months. The Sibidiakoff will carry a radio apparatus and airplanes useful for scouting expeditions.

As far as Northern Land—a large arctic territory which is separated from the northern coast of Siberia by a small strait — the Sibiriakoff will have a companion ship, the icebreaker Rusanoff.

One purpose of this expedition to Northern Land is to take off an intrepid arctic natural scientist named Ushakov, who with a few companions has now spent two years in this remote and desolate arctic region.

The Pills built me up and put me in first-class condition."

Mrs. Richard Rusk, Roblin, Man., writes: "Diphtheria left our daughter, Beth, a nervous wreck. She was unable to continue at school. DESTINY

Who can complain of being comprehended in the same destiny wherein all things are involved?

SHE DARE NOT EAT BUTTER

Acid Stomach Since Childhood

NOW ENJOYS LIFE—THANKS TO KRUSCHEN

Don't ban a food because it disagrees with you. In nine cases out of ten, it isn't the food that's at fault—it's your digestion. Put that right, and you can eat to the order of your appetite. That is just what happened with this woman :—

"I have been taking Kruschen Salts for about three years. I began its use for rheumatism, to which I was becoming a martyr. Kruschen soon arrested that, and I now suffer very seldom from it. But I have experienced the greatest good in the correction of constant acidity of the stomach, from which I suffered from a child. I could never eat butter, nor very little fat of any kind. Now I enjoy butter especially, and eat plenty with no ill-effects. I have recommended Kruschen in hundreds of cases."—A. M. W.

Consider for a moment the cause of your indigestion. Your internal organs have lost tone and, as a result, your gastric—or digestive—juices are failing to flow freely. Your food, instead of being digested and absorbed into your system, is simply stagnating in your stomach and intestinal tract, and producing harmful acid poisons. Let it be made clear that these poisons not only give rise to the discomforts of indigestion; they dull your brain, slacken your nerves, decay your teeth, infect your joints with rheumatism and prepare the way for many other obscure conditions of ill-health.

The immediate effect of the six salts in Kruschen is to promote a natural flow of the digestive and other vital juices of the body. Soon after you start on Kruschen you will begin to feel the benefit. You will find to your satisfaction that you are able to enjoy your food without any distressing after-effects. And, as you persevere with the "little daily dose," you will see that the relief which Kruschen brings is lasting relief.

Kruschen Salts is obtainable at all Drug Stores at 45c. and 75c. per bottle.
