The Growing of Rape.

(By Prof. C. A. Zavitz)

Upwards of forty-five thousand acres of land were used for growing rape in Ontario in 1905 It is a crop easy of cultivation, abundant in growth, and rich in fattening properties. Owing to its broad spreading leaves, rape has a wonderful power of smothering out weeds and is thus one of the best crops obtainable for cleaning the land.

No less than eleven varieties of rape have been grown in the experimental grounds of the Ontario Agricultural College in each of the past three years. In 1905 the yields varied from 4 to 21 tons per acre, the lightest yielder being the German variety, and the heaviest the Large Seeded Umbrella rape. In the average of three years experiments the large Seeded Common, Large Seeded Umbrella, Buckbee's Wonderful, Dwarf Bonanza, Dwarf Essex and Dwarf Victoria varieties have given the greatest yields of green crop per acre. The Dwarf Essex is one of the most reliable varieties. The German Summer (Bird Seed Rape) should never be sown for agricultural purposes as it seeds the same season as sown, thus furnishing a poor crop for feeding and introducing a plant which it is difficult to eradicate. This point should be carefully observed, as serious trouble has sometimes resulted from sowing large areas of this variety.

The most suitable soils for rape are fairly moist loams, rich in vegetable matter. Land should be prepared for rape similarly to that for root crops. Soils deficient in vegetable matter should receive a coating of stable manure. A dressing of nitrate of soda per acre when the rape is about two inches high increased the yield of the crop about two tons per acre in the average results of the co-operative experiments conducted over Ontario for a period of five years.

About the month of June, large plump seed should be sown at the rate of one and one-half pounds per acre in rows of about thirty inches apart and to a depth of one-half to one inch. A thorough stirring of the first two inches of the ground between the rows every ten days or so increases the growth of the rape wonderfully. Flat cultivation is generally preferable.

Rape makes an excellent late summer and autumn pasture crop for fattening cattle, sheep and lambs. In one season upwards of six hundred lambs were pastured and fattened on the Experimental Farm at Guelph. It is grown regularly as one of the crops in the short rotation. When rape is pastured by hogs there is more waste than when pastured by sheep Several varieties of rape were fed to milch cows and all produced a taint in the milk, there being but little difference between the varieties in this respect.

Animals should never be turned on rape when they are hungry or when the rape is wet or frosted. There is no danger of animals bloating if they are turned on gradually at first, allowed free access to an old grass field, and furnished with plenty of salt. There is practically nothing to be gained by feeding grain to animals when on rape. Lambs gain in weight from eight to twelve pounds per month on rape alone.

If rape is cut and placed in piles on the field, it will remain in good condition several weeks. Usually it can be hauled to the stable and fed to cattle, sheep and pigs until Christmas time with excellent satisfaction.

No Poison in Chamberlain's Cough Remedy

From Napier, New Zealand, Herald: Two years ago the Pharmacy Board of New South Wales, Australia, had an analysis made of all the cough medicines that were sold in the market. Out of the entire list they found only one that they declared was entirely free from all poisons. This exception was Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, made by the Chamberlin Medicine Company, Des Moines, Iowa, U. S. A. The absence of all narcotics makes this remedy the safest and best that can be had; and it is with a feeling of security that any mother can give it to her little ones. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is especially recommended by its makers for coughs, colds croup, and whooping cough. This remedy is for sale by W. E Richardson.

Racing at Fairs

Mr. Editor,—

I saw in a late issue of The Advance an article on the horse-racing at your fall fair. Now in my opinion you did not say enough about it. Query—What are these fairs held for? Merely a day's pleasure, or are they for instruction? I do not mean to say that a person should not try to enjoy themselves, but still they could find enjoyment in examining the exhibits as well as watching the best horse-race and it would be far more profitable to them. A fall fair is supposed to be a combined farmers' and town-peoples' day designed to show the produce offield and garden, but is generally spoiled by horse racers and lovers of that sport. Now why don't those people take a day of their own such as Victoria Day or Dominion Day, etc?

How can we remedy this? The only possible way is to stop giving the prize money to fast horses and give to exhibitors to encourage them to show their stock and produce, and pay them for their trouble.

I think that it is nearly time the directors were giving this matter their careful consideration.

PSYCHINE

(PRONOUNCED SI-KEEN)

WEAKNESS There is nothing else in the whole world that will bring back the color to the cheek, restore the dormant energies, revive drooping spirits, or put new life into the tired, listless, weakened system, as "PSYCHINE" will do it. There is really only one great tonic, and that is "PSYCHINE." Combining all the properties that make rich, pure blood, bringing back the lost appetite, driving away melancholy, creating new strength.

THIS WILL PROVE IT

Arnprior, Ont., Sept. 16th, 1904.

Dr. Slocum, Limited:

"It's twenty years or more since I used PSYCHINE, and I write these words not to gain publicity, but that suffering and ailing humanity may learn of its great merits. I had felt weak and miserable for a long time; had no appetite, or couldn't obtain proper sleep. Was unable to work or enjoy life. People said I was so old my constitution was breaking up, but, fortunately, through using the Dr. Slocum remedies I have proven this false. PSYCHINE is the only remedy I ever took that agreed with my stomach, which was exceedingly weak. Twenty years have passed since my recovery, and I am now eighty-nine years old, and so strong and well that I work all summer in my garden.
