Bacon Hog Production.

If the bacon trade of Canada is to continue to improve it is necessary that hog raisers adhere to the class of animals most suited to the British market.

In the production of hogs of the lard type Canada cannot compete successfully with the United States. A visit to the stock yards and to western cattle feeding centres affords ample evidence of this. A large proportion of the cattle are fed on snapped or shelled corn. Herded with these are hogs that thrive and fatten on the undigested corn left by the steers. These hogs constituting a by product of cattle feeding are produced at a cost much lower than pork can be raised in Canada. All United States hogs are not fed in this way, but a large proportion of them have, at least, the advantage of cheap corn, than which there is no better feed for producing fat hogs of the lard type Let the Canadian farmer go back to the thick, fat type of hog, as some think of doing because they feel they have a grievance with the packer, and it will not be long until the price of Canadian bacon will have fallen to a level with the United States product, which is usually from 10 to 15 shillings per 11 pounds lower than the quotation for Canadian Wiltshire sides.

It seems to be very generally supposed that pork is more cheaply and easily produced from hogs of the thick, short American breeds than from the three English breeds which are favored for bacon production. Why such a belief should be so general is difficult to understand as repeated tests conducted at various experiment stations have shown that hogs of the Yorkshire, Berkshire and Tamworth breeds produce pork as cheaply as those of the Poland China, Chester White or Duroc Jersey breeds. In the opinion of Prof. Day of the O. A. C., who is foremost among authorities on bacon production, the lusty, growthy pig of the bacon type is the most economical pork maker we have, especially when reared, as bacon hogs should be, largely on such foods as roots, soiling crops and dairy offal. There is as much difference of opinion regarding the cost at which hogs fit for market can be produced, and there is probably as much difference between the cost to one feeder and the cost to another as between these opinions. Under general conditions the production costs in the neighborhood of five dollars per 100 lbs on an average. In summer under favorable conditions the cost may be somewhat lessened but in winter pork can hardly be produced at the price mentioned. As in all other lines of production, the cost will vary according to the character of the animals fed and the amount of intelligence exercised by the feeder. Taking one year with another the Canadian farmer on good land who understands crop growing and hog raising can undoubtedly raise hogs as cheaply as the figures quoted, and probably for less. He will keep only such sows as produce large, lusty litters of the right type. He will grow such pasture and soiling crops as clover, alfalfa, rape, vetches, mangols, sugar beets and coarse grains as yield the greatest number of pounds of hog feed per acre. In other words he will manage his operations in such a way that will return him the greatest return in hogs per acre of land, and in so doing will learn to reduce the cost of raising hogs of the best type to a minimum.
