Division Court

Division court was held in the town hall Wednesday of last week before His Honor judge Widdifield. Owing to illness Mr. A. S. VanDusen, the clerk, was unable to be present and Mr. Wright, the bailiff, acted in his stead. The first case heard was over the sale and delivery of six head of cattle by Conn, a farmer of Euphrasia, to Irvin, a cattle dealer at Collingwood early last summer. The evidence went to show that the day of delivery was a very hot one and the drive of thirteen miles overheated the cattle. The buyer was suing for damages because some of them became crippled in the limbs soon after delivery and made no progress on pasture all summer. The defence held that delivery was made and accepted at the barn of plaintiff who there ringed the ears of the animals and then turned them in their heated state into a field where water was lying. Veterinary evidence for the defence showed the bad effects of a quantity of water on an overheated animal, The parties had several conferences over the affair during last season and at one time they very nearly reached an agreement to arbitriate. At another time the defendant agreed, according to evidence, to make some allowance if the animals did not do well. The judge, however, decided for the defence and dismissed the case. McKay, Sampson and Telford for plaintiff. Lucas, Wright and McArdle defendant.

Legate—McLeod—Plaintiff sued for wood, part of which was bought by defendant's son. Judgement was given for $2.87, the amount purchased by the son being thrown out, no costs as defendant previously tendered the amount of judgement and plaintiff refused it. Lucas, Wright & McArdle for plaintiff. McKay Sampson & Telford for defendant.

Dench—Currie—This was an action for wages, but the plaintiff failed to put in an appearance. Case dismissed.—Herald.

A Good Work.

Mr. M. K. Richardson, who is in charge of the neglected and orphan children of this county under the Ontario Government, and successor to the late Rev. Jas. Lediard of Owen Sound, was in Orangeville for a few days last week looking after some cases there, and forming a nucleus for a similar organization for the county of Dufferin.

An exchange, mentioning Mr. Richardson's work, says that recently he was called to Shelburne to take a bright little boy of five years from a hovel where his mother lived. The little chap naturally began to cry when at the station he found he was to be separated from his mother. To pacify him Mr. Richardson gave him a bright cent piece. The crying of the lad attracted a crowd including a number of commercial men who took in the situation, and to the little fellow's one cent another added five cents, then another man doubled the amount only to be followed by twenty-five cents and fifty cent pieces to which were added in quick successions several one dollar bills. The latter Mr. Richardson accepted only on the understanding that each donor give his name and receive a receipt for his contribution. So without the least solicitation enough money was handed over to provide comfortable clothing for the child. When taken to Owen Sound the little lad did not know the use of a chair and when told to sit down crouched "on his hunkers" alongside the wall. The movement needs just practical sympathy as that Shelburne station platform gave and which again demonstrated that the Canadian people only have to know of a need to prompt a generous response.

E. S. Howard, English master at the Owen Sound Collegiate, died las week of pneumonia.
