Industrial Home Notes

(By an Inmate)

We have to record yet another death, which makes the third during the month of April and the sixth since the beginning of the present year, and one or two more in the very near future would not be a surprise. Surely the house of refuge is giving its quota to the great unknown majority.

Alexander Anderson, for many years known in Priceville and vicinity, and who was admitted as a non-chargeable inmate in August last, passed away very quietly and easy about 4 a.m. on Monday, 22nd inst. It has been a wonder to all that he lived so long, for when admitted he could scarcely move about for want of breath and was almost afraid to lie down at night for fear of suffocation, being a very stout man and apparently inwardly burdened with fat, nevertheless he kept going about, and in all those months we don't think he missed a meal until the last two days of his life, when he took to his bed and passed away as above stated. Uundertaker Chapman interred the remains in Markdale cemetery on Monday afternoon. There was no minister or burial service performed over the remains for such had been his expressed desire previous to his death. He belonged to no church, had no religious belief except that death was the end of all mankind, and so strong was his belief on that point that he would listen to no conversation of a religious nature and would even be inclined to get out of temper when approached by any of his better thinking comrades on religious subjects; he wanted to hear none of it. What a deplorable condition for a person nearing the octogenarian stage of life.

Frank Foster met with peculiar kind of sickness on Monday night last. Shortly after retiring he got out of bed and commenced battling with the iron bedstead, badly cutting and bruising his hands and it was with difficulty that three or four of his room-mates were enabled to get him back to bed, out of which he fell three or four times during the night and he was delirious the whole night. The next morning he was in a dazed and apparently demented condition, but fell asleep on a chair about noon and was carried to bed in an adjoining room where he lay the picture of death, but for his heavy breathing, sleeping for more than twenty four hours and could not be roused. On awakening he appeared much better. On Sunday he ate a hearty dinner and felt like getting up but found himself too weak. In the evening he again fell into a heavy slumber in which he still lies at time of writing and it is quite possible will have passed away ere these items appear in print. No hopes are entertained for his recovery. He is about 72 years of age.

Ex-warden McArthur and Mr. Bolger of Priceville were at the home on Monday of last week settling the affairs of the late Alex. Anderson whose funeral expenses were not chargeable to the county.

Your scribe tenders congratulations to friend J.J.Lyness on his recent marriage; hoping that he and his most estimable bride will enjoy a long, prosperous and felicitous life. He also extends congratulations to Miss Annie Chislett of Ceylon on securing so responsible a position in the city, wishing her every success.

Miss Robinson of the staff spent from noon Saturday until Monday with Miss Laura Dunnington, Owen Sound, a late member of the home staff and niece of the matron.

Divine service yesterday was not so largely attended as usual, nevertheless it was made none the less impressive by the poperful discourse delivered by Mr. Harness, not from any abstract text but from a generalization of the 136th psalm especially on the concluding words of each verse, "for His mercy endureth for ever." We trust that the force of his remarks will be reviewed and indelibly stamped in the memory of those of his hearers to whom they were applicable. The fellowship meeting was dispensed with owing to the absence of Messrs. Ennis and Morwood, the organ was also silent for the second time at divine service since its gift to the institution.

5 a. m. Monday morning—Frank Foster passed away within ten minutes after writing the above items. Your cor. with Robert Haskin were alone with him all night. He was in a deep sleep since 5 p. m. yesterday, he died without a struggle.

Easy To Retain Health.

Most important of all is proper attention to the bowels. Avoid constipation its the health-killer. Harsh, gripping medicine is ruinous--beware of it.
