The Choral Concert.

Lovers of good music enjoyed a great treat in the town hall Friday evening last when the Choral Society, under the leadership of Mr. Newton Large, rendered a mixed program that was entusiastically received by a large audience. The program was made up of four choruses by the Choral Union, solos, duets and quartetts by individual members assisted by Mrs. Large and Master Howard Large, the youngest member of the talented Large family. Master Howard Large was born in Flesherton, as were the other members of the family, consequently this was not the first occasion when his musical voice greeted our ears, but in the old days he wore long white dresses and his voice had not absorbed classical music to any great extent; it was of an infantile nature. Seventeen years have wrought marvels and he is now the posssessor of a powerful and musical tenor that tickled the ears of his audience and made encores necessary in every member. Mrs. N. Large was also a favorite and in her solo, "Springtide," the rendering was superb. Among the choice things given by the visitors was a duet by Mr. and Mrs. Large, "Oh that we two were Maying," a solo, "Clover Blossoms," by Howard Large, trio, "When far from thee" by Mr. and Mrs. Large and Howard Large, and a very fine duet, "After the fray," by Howard and Newton Large. Besides the choruses Mrs. Blackburn and Miss Christene Richardson gave a duet "Nocturne" that was highly pleasing. A quartet by Mrs Large, Miss Tourston, Miss Trimble and Mrs Blackburn was also much appreciated. The choruses, of course, were the grand attraction, and were magnificently given by the forty voices under Mr. Large, who had been preparing them for weeks. While all were exceedingly fine, in our opinion the chorus "Old Black Joe" was the piece de resistance. Seldom have we heard a finer piece of musical blending and tones than was furnished in this quaint old plantation melody, which evidenced an amount of practice and patience on the part of both leader and singers that did them immense credit. The other choruses were, "With horse and hound," "The boys of the old brigade" and "Good night beloved," all full of melody and beautifully rendered. Lovers of music owe a debt of gratitute to Mr. Large for the painstaking work he has done here with prospect of small financial gain. He should not finally depart without understanding that the people of Flesherton are endowed with gratitude of a practical kind in the fullest measure for the favors he has given. The proceeds of this concert, amounting to about $35, went to pay expenses of the Union, rental, lighting, etc, and would just about square accounts.
