Word was received here Saturday from Hannah, North Dakota, that J. Bowler, tailor, was burned out a week ago Saturday, losing everything, and was also seriously burned about the arms and legs. It appears he was cleaning a suit with benzine at night when the inflammable stuff set fire to his shirt sleeve and then communicated quickly with other portions of his clothing and spread so rapidly that nothing in the shop could be saved. Jim had a narrow escape himself from death. The letter did not state whether there was any insurance. Mr. Bowler only went out to Dakota from Flesherton last winter and his misfortune will be regretted by his many friends her.

Mr. Andrew Beattie had a new threshing engine delivered at this station on Monday. In bringing it from the station after dark an accident occurred which, while not costly, might easily have entailed a heavy loss. When approaching the culvert at Flesher's pond the big ten-ton machine became unmanageable owing to some defective bolts, and made a break for the north side of the road, crashing through the railing. Mr. Beattie, who was on the engine, thought the machine was going down the eight-foot embankment over she culvert and jumped for his life. One of the large drive wheels struck a strong cedar post and prevented the engine fron plunging down, where it hung half way over. It took a half a day, halk a dozen men and half a dozen jacks to get the machine back on the road.

It is a great thing for property owners to have a rich Mayor. It was so at least in Wiarton. At the Court of Revision there were a number of appeals, and as usual the owners were contending that they would sell the property for less than it was assessed at. "I'll take it at that," said the Mayor. It was the same with the next man, and the Mayor kept at it until he had purchased one piece of property at $2400, another for $1400, and yet another for $4400. Then one of the spectators caught the speculation fever, and bought out a kicker at $1400. That brought the appeals to a dead finish.
