A Letter from Idaho.

To the Editor of The Advance.

DEAR SIR,—I now take my pen to give you some further information concerning southwestern Idaho and particularly Snake River and Boise River Valley, in which I have been working since I came here. When I wrote you before I had to rely principally on the evidence of others, but as I was careful in gathering information my statements were in no way misleading or incorrect, as in no case did I give figures, save where I had good evidence.

Since I have now helped to gather two crops of hay and to harvest a crop of grain, also red clover seed, and helped to thresh some of the grain, I can now write with certainty, knowing that I am giving you facts. First and of greatest importance in this county is Alfalfa hay, as it is the largest product grown here and always a sure crop. It has yielded about five tons per acre on an average, in two crops, and the third crop is knee-high. Some who cut early expect to be able to cut a fourth crop this year. Red clover does well. Some land has yielded as high as four tons of hay per acre and they are now watching the second crop growing, undecided as yet whether to leave for clover seed or cut again for hay, as clover seed is an uncertain crop anywhere, though it has yielded ten bushels per acre, second crop, here, and as high as 12½ bushels per acre when cut once in the season. Alfalfa seed has yielded 22 bushels per acre, for which the owner received $8 per bushel, but like the clover seed it is an uncertain crop, as it usually grows too rank and falls down, which prevents its maturing, and is often injured by grasshoppers. The wheat will possibly average between forty and fifty bushels per acre, as some threshed already yielded 68 bushels. Spring wheat has yielded once seventy-four bushels per acre here. Winter wheat does not do nearly so well as spring wheat and there is very little of it grown. Some of the oats have yielded 98 bushels per acre this year, counting 40 lbs. per bushel which is a lawful bushel of oats in this country. You ask how they grow such heavy crops. First, the soil is first class, the weather is warm and bright, which enables the grain and other crops to mature while growing very thickly on the ground, and we can water whenever it is needed without rusting the straw, and we have seldom got any rain or wind storms to put it down. The heaviest crops that you grow in Ontario seldom mature, as they are usually blown down by a rain or windstorm.

This county was awarded the sweepstakes prize for grains and grasses at the national irrigation congress held in Boise, Idaho, in 1906. Oats from this neighborhood was awarded first prize at Portland exposition.

Now I want to give you an idea of Southern Idaho as a fruit country. One of the peculiar features of this country is the heavy frosts that we get in the spring and yet they do not destroy the fruit. The second week after I came here it froze every night; sometimes the water was frozen into ice to the thickness of a slate, and although the fruit was in its most delicate stage the orchards are now laden with the greatest crop of fruit that I ever saw, though I lived for 6 years in the Beaver River Valley. I have seen the branches of all kinds of fruit trees broken down from the weight of their fruit. To show you the standing of this part as a fruit district I will mention a few facts of record: peaches raised in this (Canyon) county were awarded first prize at the exposition at Chicago and at Omaha. In the latter case it required but 24 peaches to fill a 25 lb box. Charles P. Harthey was awarded the gold medal at the Exposition at Paris for the best display of apples, and Idaho was awarded the grand sweepstakes prize at the Irrigation Congress at Ogden, Utah, in 1903. Many fruit growers are coming here and acquiring this sage brush land that is under the different irrigation projects, and are preparing to plant large orchards of this class. Small fruits such as berries, grapes and currants, do well here. Some of the strawberries have measured 4 and ⅞ inches in circumference this year. They receive a high price for all kinds of fruit. Perhaps you ask why all people are not wealthy here? While we have got some wealthy people we also have poor ones, as in all other countries. Though we nearly always get large returns from the land, it is high priced when improved. Hired help, of which we require a great deal, receive good wages and almost everything you buy costs more than in the east. Speaking generally the people are prosperous and contented. The warmest weather is supposed to be over for this season, which I have not found any warmer on the bench land here than sometimes in Ontario, as 96 degrees is the highest temperature this year, though the river flats are a great deal warmer and not so healthy as the bench land, which I believe to be one of the most pleasant and healthy places on the globe. We have people here from all parts of Canada and from nearly every state in the union and from every country of Europe, and yet they say that this bench land in Southern Idaho compares favorably with any place they ever saw for a pleasant and profitable home. Everything looks promising for homesteaders on the upper bench, south of the Boise and east of the Snake river, as the first link in the Montana, Idaho and San Francisco railroad reaching from Caldwell to the Snake River across this bench, a distance of about 16 miles, when completed will connect Bute, Montana, with San Francisco, California. They are also building a telephone line over this bench and we are promised an electric railway next year. It is running from Caldwell to Boise now. We also expect a partial supply of water for irrigation next year as the two dams, making the reservoir 11 miles long, to supply irrigation water when the Boise river is low, are nearing completion. I will now close hoping to write to you soon again. I wish to send my best respects to all my friends and neighbors in the East,

W. J. SIMPSON, Roswell, Idaho.

Thos. Flesher Dead.

Mr. Thomas Flesher died on Sunday, Aug. 25, at his home at Cutler on the north shore. Death was caused by complications following pleuro-pneumonia. The deceased was sixty-four years of age. He was born in Scarboro, County of York, where he lived during his boyhood. After attending his home public school Mr. Flesher moved to Flesherton, where a cousin, Mr. W. K. Flesher, after whom the town is named, had located. Armed with a teacher's certificate he soon received a position and for some years taught in Flesherton and Maxwel. Moving to the Manitoulin Island he taught for several years. Upwards of twenty years ago he was appointed collector of customs at Spanish River by the Conservative Government, a position he filled with satisfaction until his lamented death. Three years ago the office was moved to Cutler. Mr. Flesher is survived by his wife and nine children, three sons and six daughters. One son was drowned on the tug Clipper in May, 1906, near Bustard Island and a daughter died in Minnesota. The funeral took place at Massey.

Hoy—Parliament.

On the evening of Sept. 4th, a very happy event took place at the home of Mr. J. Parliament on the 8th con., Artemesia, when his daughter, Ethel, was united in marriage to Mr. Alex. Hoy, son of Mr. Richard Hoy of the same township. At 6.30 o'clock the wedding party entered the room to the strains of Wedding Bell's march, played by Miss Elenor Mitchell of Redwing. The wedding ceremony was performed by Rev. A. P. Stanley of Maxwell, in the presence of thirty of the immediate friends. The bride looked charming in a suit of cream panama cloth, and the bridesmaid, in a pretty white organdie. Mr. Josiah Gamey of Priceville, ably supported the groom. After the cermony, the guests sat down to a sumptuous repast, prepared by the bride's parents. Mr. and Mrs. Hoy purpose taking a wedding trip to Toronto.

Doctors Change Their Methods

Years ago they fought catarrh by internal dosing. They saw this ruined the stomach and changed to the ozonated air cure, better known as "Catarrhozone." This treatment is sure to cure. It goes to the source of the disease; It destroys the causes that maintain catarrh and even in the worst cases permanent cure is guaranteed. Failure with Catarrhozone is impossable. Antiseptic, healing and far-reaching, it's bound to cure every time. Endorsed by more than twenty thousand physicians in America alone and sold in 25c and $1 00 sizes by al dealers.
