The Volunteers Return--Well Browned

After two weeks of military drill by day, and fevered dreams of wars unending by night, Co. No. 6 of the 31st Regiment detrained here Saturday afternoon. The boys are all enthusiastic over the 1908 Niagara camp. They were dished up the best of rations—no wasting to a shadow on skilley. The shooting of the Company was good this year, and the boys blame the new Ross rifles, which they say are good target rifles, but not strong enough to stand the knocking around the old Lee-Enfields would. The fireating footballers were disappointed in not being allowed to carry the McFarland Cup home with them, which they won last year. They were not beaten this year, but were prevented, by picket duty, from completing the series; so there is a lot of talk against those who refused to allow them to return with the cup. Co. No. 6 was an ideal bunch, with regard to height, only one being under 5 feet, 7 inches, while most were over 5 feet, 8 inches, and taken as a whole, the boys behaved themselves well, not like those who went from a neighboring town.

The July "Rod and Gun."

The eyes, not only of Canada, but of the world will be fixed during the present month upon Quebec and the Tercentenary of its establishment. The life story of Samuel de Champlain, the founder, is told in the opening article of the July number of "Rod and Gun and Motor Sports in Canada" published by W. J. Taylor, at Woodstock, Ont., and the narrative of the great explorer's life will be found entrancing reading. Of equal interest to sportsmen, if of less importance to the country, is the fine story of "The Trail of the Kawazingemas" by Harry Anton Auer, author of "The North Country." Mr. Auer describes in beautiful language, the trip he took into the north country with his father and mother and tells of the joys experienced in camping and fishing far away from civilization. This story is finely illustrated from photographs taken by Mr. Auer. "In the Next West," A Schoolboy's search for an Ideal Vacation" and a paper by Dr. E. Sisley on "The Fresh Water Trout of Canada" are some of the interesting articles in this number.

While assisting in jacking up his barn, for the purpose of having a stone foundation built under it, James Torrance, farmer, of Amaranth Township, was accidentally killed Thursday afternoon. One end of the barn had been raised to the required height, and preparations were under way for raising the other end, when the building shifted from the timbers. Mr. Torrance, who was under the granary, attempted to get out under a beam, but was caught underneath it and squeezed to death, jackscrews and shovels having to be used to release his body. He leaves a widow and four small children.—Grand Valley Star.

James McManamen, of Melancthon Station, who came up before judge McCarthy at Orangeville for trial on Friday last on the charge of assault and robbery of Moses Wolfe, a Jew produce dealer, of Toronto, several weeks ago, was found guilty of assault. An Orangeville despatch of June 19th says: "The judge had no hesitation in finding the prisoner guilty of a gross assault, and will consider the other count in the indictment as to the robbery. Sentence will be pronounc next Tuesday." Later—McManaman was sentenced to three month's imprisonment in the county gaol.

On Saturday afternoon Drs Jas. and T. H. Henry amputated the right leg of Frank Coultrip, the young Englishman who was injured by the yard engine near Greenwood cemetery a couple of weeks ago. The foot was so badly bruised that nothing could be done to save it and in order to save the man's life amputation of the leg below the knee was necessary. Coultrip was not so well last night, but is expected he will recover from the shock.—Orangeville Sun.

Thomas Londry, a well known resident of Euphrasia for 37 years, and 77 years of age, died while fishing in the beaver river. A search party found him lying face downward beside the river. The doctor gave it as his opinion that the deceased gentleman had burst a blood vessel while stooping to get a drink. The funeral took place to Thornbury.

Presentation at Eugenia

At school on Friday afternoon her scholars presented Miss Rolfson with a parasol and hand bag, and the following address:

Dear Teacher:—It is with feelings of mingled joy and sadness that we are assembled to-day to bid good-bye to one to whom we owe so much. Joy, because of this opportunity to express in some small way our appreciation of your worth; of sadness, because we are to part.

As teacher and scholars we have worked together for some sixteen months, and these months have endeared us to each other. We feel that you have given us of your best, and that your place will not easily be filled either in our hearts or studies.

Your kind, generous nature has not only shown itself in our school life, but also in the life of the community at large.

With these things in mind we ask you to accept this parasol and hand bag, not for their intrinsic value, but as a small token of our appreciation of your labors in our midst We trust that the sight of them will often in future days and in other scenes recall to you the faces and fond recollections of those who knew you at Eugenia in the happy days of the golden past. May the blessing of God, that maketh rich, attend you in your new fields of usefulness.

Signed on behalf of the school and friends, Lily Campbell, Mary Turner.
