Eugenia.

Fine haying weather. The crop, which is very good, will soon be all gathered in. Fall wheat is ripe and some of it cut. Oats are ripening very fast Farmers will not have much spare time until the snow flies.

Born—June 17, at New Liskeard, to Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Stafford, a daughter.

Mrs. Gilliland is confined to her bed at present, suffering with a severe attack of lumbago.

Mrs. Wilson lost a good horse the past week from inflammation.

Mr. George Meldrum lost a fine cow from the same complaint.

Our city visitors are: Mrs. A. D. Thurston, at her mother's; Mrs. John Kernahan at Mr. J. K. Jamieson's; Mrs Luther Pedlar and Miss Sarah Pedlar at ex-Councillor Pedlar's; Miss Robertson, graduate of St. John's hospital, Port Huron, her sister, Miss Kitty Robertson of Sarnia, and Miss Lena Large of Owen Sound, all are guests of Mrs. Win. Large at the postoffice store.

Mrs. Godfrey of Meaford and Miss Robinson of Lindsay are guests of Mrs. Adam Smith. As the ladies were both very successful teachers here for some time, they received a hearty welcome from a large number of old friends.

Mrs Fred Pedlar received the sad intelligence on Saturday of the death of her brother, who died suddenly at Winnipeg She and Mr. Pedlar are now at Meaford attending the funeral. The sympathy of many friends is extended.

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Latimer and children of Toronto are guests of the former's parents.

Mrs. John Walker of Flesherton was the guest of her sister, Mrs. Will Duckett, the past week.

Picnics are in vogue. Scarcely a day passes but our young folks and some of the older ones, go picnicking and fishing, some to Kimberley, some to the banks of the Boyne.

All are waiting to welcome a goodly number of our Grey Old Boys and girls on Saturday on their annual excursion. May their outing be a pleasant one.

IMPRESSIONS OF QUEBEC

By a Member of the Queen's Own Rifles.

Related for The Advance

The Queen's Own Rifles left the Union Station, Toronto, about 10 a. m. Sunday, July 19, and arrived at Savard Park camp, Quebec, at 5 o'clock the following morning. The trip down was not marked by any such stirring incidents as the following week, partly because the boys were compelled to remain in their own car during the entire trip. A guard was placed at each door of every car, and in this way we were effectually prevented from getting off at stations to give vent to our feelings.

The first characteristic of Quebec Province that one will notice is the white-washed buildings. Houses, barns, stables and outhouses are all whitewashed—the shades of white, of course, varying considerably. The second characteristic is the splendid church buildings. No matter how poor the houses in the village may be, the church is a fine edifice, its tower, and often twin towers, being seen for miles around.

On Sunday night practically no one on the train had an hour's sleep. Your scribe had none at all, nor is it to be wondered at, for all night long the noise in the car was awful. No one seemed to want to sleep, so we stayed awake.

Arriving at Quebec, we formed up and marched to camp, about half a mile distant. Our tents had been put up for us by an advance party, so were all ready for us to walk into. Nevertheless, it took us nearly all morning to get settled. After 1 o'clock nearly everyone was off duty and free to leave camp until midnight.

Savard Park is about three miles from the Citadel, and about one mile from a street car line. Our first impressions of Quebec were, to say the least, bad. We were behind the city, so, unlike tourists, we did not first get the magnificent view from the river. What we saw was dirty, narrow, dusty streets, small frame and tar paper houses, single-track car lines, one horse carts and plenty of dirty French children.

We had plenty of time that afternoon to see a lot of Quebec. I mentioned that the streets are very narrow; how narrow may be judged from the fact that in some streets one may sit in the car and holding out a hand towards the side of the street touch the telephone poles, which are set in the sidewalk. On the sidewalk there is only room for one person to pass the poles, and on the opposite side of the car line room for only one cart. Of course there are a few wider streets, but the great majority are narrow, dirty and dusty, and lined with small frame houses. The blocks are also small. It is no unusual sight to see only two or three houses forming a city block, although on the business and better residential streets they are longer.

Quebec has very few middle class houses. In the lower town, both in front of, and behind, the upper town, the houses are mostly old and poor looking, such as many respectable people would hardly wish to live in. Moreover, the people are not too cleanly in their personal appearance, in the appearance of their houses or streets. In the upper town there are a number of beautiful homes, but only men of means could afford to live there. The water supply is very poor, although it comes from the Laurentian hills. The water is warm—at least it is not cold—and it has a peculiar taste that was not appreciated by us. This is no doubt owing to the lack of lime in its composition. So much for the darker side of Quebec, now for the brighter.

The upper town is built on a high plateau, overlooking the St. Lawrence. The highest point of this plateau is crowned by the Citadel, which is the main fortress of Quebec, and up the river to the south-west stretch the plains of Abraham. A steep hill runs down from the Citadel to Dufferin Terrace, one of the finest promenades in America, and on the other end of the terrace is the Chateau Frontenac, which has undoubtedly the finest outlook of any hotel in America. One may stand on the terrace for hours and enjoy the grandeur of the scenery. Directly below, nearly two hundred feet, is the quaint old lower town; across the river the heights and town of Levis, with their fortifications; down the river the Isle of Orleans, and stretching parallel with the St. Lawrence, the blue Laurentian hills may be seen for a distance of nearly forty miles down the river. There are many other beautiful scenes around Quebec, but this is by far the finest and one which no description can do justice to.

On Tuesday we had two drills, one in the morning and the other in the afternoon, and were inspected by Lord Roberts. They were rather hard, but were merely child's play compared with what was to come after. We were to have had another drill Wednesday morning, but it was cancelled on account of rain.

To be concluded next week

Boy's Life Saved

My little boy, four years old, had a severe attack of dysentery. We had two physicians; both of them gave him up. We then gave him Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea remedy, which cured him and believe that saved his life. —WILLIAM H. STROLING, Carbon Hill, Ala. There is no doubt but this remedy saves the lives of many children each year. Give it with castor oil according to the plain, printed directions and a cure is certain. For sale by W. E. Richardson.

Ceylon

Our chief topic is the picnic at Sullivan's grove next Friday. Baseball, football and everything to make a good time.

Mrs. E. J. Stoner of Balmy Beach, Toronto, spent a few days with her aunt, Mrs. T. Chislett, and other friends at Ceylon.

Sam Chislett and Sybil Collinson are laid up with the mumps.

Ed. Rutledge has been under Dr. Dixon's care for rheumatism. We were glad to see him out Monday.

Miss Florence Ferguson of Hopeville is staying at James Pattison's for a time.

Miss Clara Cook entertained her Sunday school class Monday evening.

Charlie O'Melia of Toronto is visiting his parents here.

James Sproat is under the doctor's care.

Mrs. Wood spent last Sunday with her husband, Mr. J.L. Wood, at Woodbridge.

Miss Jean Collinson is visiting friends at Wiarton.

Mr. A. Neilson of Proton visited friends in Ceylon last week.

Vandeleur.

Haying is well under way in this vicinity.

Miss Violet Gilbert of Kimberley is visiting her sister, Mrs. Will Hutchinson.

Miss Ina Smith was the guest of Miss E. C. Boland over Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Osborne of Port Law called on friends here recently.

Mrs. W. Fawcett and son, Ezra, spent Sunday at Mr. Ed. Baker's.

Mrs. Martin of Sarnia is a guest at Mr. Arthur Johnson's.

Mr. J. Gilbert and Miss Sadie Fawcett of Kimberley called on friends here recently.

Geo. J. Hand of lot 2, con. 5, Mulmur, had his residence destroyed by fire on Wednesday of last week. Mr. Hand was away from home and Mrs. Hand was in the orchard picking cherries. The house was all in flames before she noticed it. Everything in the shape of furniture and clothing was destroyed. The house and contents were partly insured. The fire is supposed to have originated from the stove.—Shelburne Free Press.
