A Good Fall Fair

The East Grey fall fair, held on Thursday and Friday of last w ek, may be classed as a success, altho, in some classes there was a eotable falling off in exhibits. Cattle and hogs were considerably lacking. Sheep were present in p bly double the number that ever were own before. The horses were a poor e bit, while the poultry house was filled to flowing. In the hall ladies' work was somew under the mark. Roots were well up to the standard. Grain and dairy products showed a distinct falling off. Fowl fanciers enjoyed an exhibit that gladdened their hearts and in many of the classes competition was exceedingly keen, notably in the common laying breeds. Harry Wright of Owen Sound, one of the most expert judges in this country, presided here, and it took him three hours to adjust the tickets. So extensive was the exhibit that several varieties were shown for which no prizes had been offered. Among the extraordinary things shown was a 40-lb. gobbler by Mr. Camack of Kimberley, poland chickens from Durham, and several pens of Rhode Island Reds, the latter a breed of fowl that were never shown here before but are likely to become a favorite when better known. The editor of this paper succeeded in carrying off 1st and 2nd for roosters and 1st for hen in this breed, and our roosters have been crowing ever since. We feel like doing a little too. In the common breeds competition was so keen that the judge had to cut pretty fine, and his whys and wherefores made the judging particularly interesting and instructive to fowl raisers. Since Mr. Wright has been judging our fowl here the exhibit has grown to splendid proportions. People exhibit now for the honor, where they used to show for the money there was in it. A competent judge such as Mr. Wright is, makes the capturing of a prize of far more worth than its merely money value.

The result of the sports will be found among special prizes. Gate receipts were $203.15, concert $103.70, other receipts $12.00, total $318.85. This is considerably behind last year, but the deficit is more than made up in the matter of outlay.

The concert held by the society the evening of the last fair day was very successful, the proceeds amounting to about $105. Mr. MacGregor, baritone, delighted the crowd with his excellent selections. When we say that this is Mr. MacGregor's second appearance in Flesherton within four months, nothing more is necessary. This was Mr. Harris's first appearance here and his full. Mr. Chas. E. Bodley proved an efficient accompanist, and his several solos were well received, being enthusiastically encored. Mr. Ed. also gave a very high-class piano solo. A regrettable incident occurred during the evening. A few toughs from a neighboring town got up in the gallery at the back and began to cut up didoes. When an attempt was made to fire them out they showed fight, but were promptly put out. The people below the gallery were rising to rush out, not knowing what was going on above, when Mr. MacGregor, who was in the midst of a song, stopped and with a few words had the crowd laughing as though he were a comic born and bred, and thus averted what might easily have been a panic.
