BABIES BY TELEPHONE

Chicago achieved something new in obstetrics when a physician delivered a baby by telephone. The doctor was as astounded as the parents when it turned out to be twins. But there should be no cause for surprise. Even with all the improvements telephone engineers have devised, subscribers sometimes get the wrong number.—Chicago Daily News.

IT'S NOT FAIR

Post office clerk: "This letter's over-weight, madam. You'll have to put another three-cent stamp on it."

Woman: "Well, of all things. Here I've mailed a dozen letters that were underweight. And now you want to charge me three cents because I'm sending one that's just a teenty-bit over the limit. That's terrible. And right at your own post office, too."

but... what does she say?

No matter what "it" may be — the price of eggs, that other recipe for shortbread — are you sure your not-very-frequent visits with the neighbours give your wife real ample opportunity to "talk it all over"? Wouldn't a telephone suit her far better? A telephone never lets you get lonely. Maybe good roads and automobiles have brought us all closer together . . . but not within a moment's speaking-distance. That's the telephone's job!

NEW LOW RATES for farm telephone service are now in effect!

This Is The Power Age

The development of mechanical power as an aid to man has been one of the distinguished characteristics of the twentieth century. The beginning of the modern power age is back as far as James Watt and his steam engine, but the nineteenth century added a continuous series of discoveries and inventions which made possible the enormous use we are now making of gasoline, oil and electric power, as well as steam.

Western countries have several times as much mechanical horsepower working for them as they have manpower. In the United States, which is generally considered to be the world's most highly mechanized country, there are estimated to be five or six horsepower for every person in the population.

In Canada and Great Britain it is more like four horsepower per person. If we adopt the ratio of six men to one horsepower, then there must be something like twenty-four mechanical man-power available for every man, woman and child in the population,—surely an amazing contrast with a century or so ago when men had to rely on their own strength, and that of their horses and oxen.

Much the greater part of all this potential power is for transportation purposes; it is in our more than a million motor vehicles and our thousands of steam locomotives and ships. Part of our eight million electrical horsepower is used for transportation too, but most of it goes into our mines, our manufacturing plants, and our homes. Besides electric power, our factories use another million and a half horsepower from steam, gas, oil and water-wheels. Then there are the tractors and stationary engines on our farms, each another reason in itself for calling this the age of mechanical power.

A 16-day-old robin can eat as many as 68 earthworms in a singe day.
