Excursion To Muskoka July 31st.

The greatest holiday at excursion rates ever offered to the people of Flesherton is the Sun Press Club's excursion to the world-famed Muskoka Lakes over the C. P. R. on Saturday July 31st, and the rate for the trip is exceptionally low—$2.10 return from Flesherton. It is certainly a great opportunity of seeing Canada's summer paradise and the arrangements are so complete that all the lakes may be seen during the four days of the excursion and at very little cost. The excursion goes over C. P. R. to Bala where the train will be met by steamers of the Muskoka Navigation Co. A complete round trip of the lakes, including Lake Rosseau, Lake Joseph and Lake Muskoka, besides a trip up the Muskoka River to Bracebridge on these steamers may be had for $1.00 extra. Excursionists from Flesherton will leave by regular train leaving Flesherton at 8 a. m., and connecting at Bolton with the fast through train from Owen Sound. Tickets are good to return up to the last train on August 3rd. The trip will be the greatest holiday offering of the year.

Work has been commenced on the new exhibition building in Collingwood to replace the one burned last October. It is hoped to have the building completed in time for the fair in September.

In our editorial last week dealing with road work a certain piece of work with the crusher was credited to Mr. McKenzie's jurisdiction, whereas it should have read Mr. McKenzie Duncan's. It was solely our error in confusing names and we make this correction in justice to Mr. McKenzie.

Mr. Frank Carr sends us a copy of the Regina Leader telling of the death of five people in a Saskatchewan cyclone on Dominion Day. The heading of the article reads: "Many persons fatally injured. Whole families left homeless. Threshing outfits and farm machines twisted and carried half a mile. Buildings smashed and scattered over the prairies." The cyclone is evidently one of the unpleasant features referred to by Mr. Carr in his recent letters, and proves that all is not sunshine and gold out there.

The series of thunder storms which passed over this section on Saturday and Sunday meant gold for everybody. For the second time this season the situation has been saved just in the nick of time. Another week of drouth would have injured the growing crops beyond repair. In some sections of this county—around Rocklyn and Goring and out Dornoch way—grasshoppers were fast eating up everything green. These rains would put the required check upon them. They did not come, however, in time to make a good hay crop, but grain will now be safe for a good crop with fair crop of straw. We have much to be thankful for in these rains of the past few days.

Some newspapers are inclined to cavil at what they call the waste of money by the rich, the case of Katherine Gould being cited to illustrate the charge. Now why should anyone object to this woman spending with a lavish hand $250,000 a year or more if she could get it from her millionaire hurband? The money went to milliners and tradespeople in general and in that manner was kept in circulation, the only way it could do any good. In the late court case Mrs. Gould asked for $250,000 per annum but was only allowed $36,000. Had the writer of this item been on the judge's bench he would have been tempted to give her every last cent of the amount she asked for and in that way helped to "squander" the Gould millions, If this woman did not spend the money strictly in the manner approved by good society, perhaps those who received it from her would divert it into channels where it would do most good. In any event it was utterly useless bound up in the Gould strong boxes, and those who criticize the free spending this money, even to thousand dollar Parisian gowns, are open to the charge of jealousy, or in Aesopian language, sour grapes.

One of the interesting remains found after the Cobalt fire was the ruin of a a whiskey still used in the manufacture of a liquor which is described as a particularly wicked brand of fire water.

A Strathroy despatch says that Mrs. Janet McCorkindale, of that town, danced the Highland Fling on her 99th birthday last week. Mrs. McCorkindale used to live in Mount Forest, living with her daughter, Mrs. Robert Niven, in the house on Wellington St, now occupied by Mr. Richard Doyle. After Mr. Niven's death a number of years ago, she and her daughter moved to Strathroy. While here she had a reputation for Celtic ligheness of foot and for liveliness.

It is reported that two of the contractors who tendered for the building of the wagon roadway from Elk Lake to Gowganda, and were awarded contracts for the construction of portions of the roadway have abandoned their contracts and will lose the checks deposited with the department for the completion of their work. It is believed that the chief difficulties were lack of transportation facilities and inability to secure and hold labor. The route is believed to be an exceptionally good one for the country, but the contractors necessarily encountered many obstacles by reason of its primitive character.

A fierce fight between two stallions took place in the Dominion Hotel stables about four o'clock Tuesday morning, says the Grand Valley Star. M. Forgrave heard the racket and aroused Bowman Nunn, manager of Linton Lad, the Clydesdale owned by Batters & Mournahan. When Bowman got into the stable his horse was down on the floor and being shaken by a blood horse owned by Matt Ward. Getting a piece of scantling Bowan drove it spear-fashioned at the blood horses ear, and sent him flying to the other end of the stable, afterwards going into his stall. His own horse was about all in, breathing very heavily and his head twisted short against a stall. By this time other help had arrived and they got the horse to a stall when a a doctor dressed his injuries which were many and particularly painful about the neck, belly and legs. The other horse escaped almost without a mark. It is surmised that the blood horse slipped his halter shank in some way, and pushed out the steeple holding the fasetner. Naturally he made for the box stall where Linton Lad was kept and in short time the door of this stall was opened and the horses fighting. The scrap was wicked while it lasted, both horses steaming with sweat, but fortunately they were separated before any permanent damage was done.
