Some Markdale young men made themselves busy Friday night last distributing empty whisky bottles around town. The boys may have considered it a funny "stunt," but it was a rather poor advertisement for their home town.

We understand that the Baptist congregations of Stayner and Creemore are anxious to secure Rev. L. F. Kipp, B.A., as their pastor. On behalf of ourselves and a great many others that we know, we utter a fervid wish that their efforts will be fruitless. When spoken to on the matter, Mr. Kipp could neither affirm nor deny the rumor.

Dr. J. P. Ottewell showed The Advance on Saturday a sliver which he had extracted the day before from a cow belonging to Mr. David Dow of the O.D.R. We call it a sliver but it was in reality a large dry cedar limb 2 feet 4 inches in length and covered with nasty knots. The animal had jumped on the limb, which penetrated between her lungs in the vicinity of her heart and on into the intestines, breaking off four inches beneath the skin. The Dr. had great difficulty in extracting the stick, but succeeded, and now has it on exhibition among his curiosities. The cow, it is thought, will recover.

Down in Stayner there is a washee-washee almond-eyed celestial named Charlie Yem. Last week Charley's mangel was put out of business and the proprietor, who prides himself on his knowledge of English, wrote out in large letters and pasted on his door the following announcement: "Charley Yem machine broke, send to Toronto for to be fix. She stop."

Division Court is being held here as we go to press, before Judge Widdifield. The docket is a pretty large one, though many of the cases are trivial. There is only one jury case on the list, that of Wm. Scott v. Charley Wolf. This is a horse trade case in which the plaintiff claims to have got the worst of it and sues for $100. The evidence will be weighed in all its bearings and five good jurymen and true will settle it beween the parties.

No Paper Next Week

In conformity with the usual custom of dropping one issue in the year, there will be no Advance issued next week. The office will be open as usual, however.

In a private note from Rev. Dr. Caldwell, who is stationed at Owen Sound North (Brookholm Ward), we learn that he purposes taking a trip this fall as far west as Vancouver, to leave about Sept. 30. Mrs. Caldwell will also visit friends in Saskatchhewan. Speaking of local option, he says: "Our local option must be a success, for I have seen only one man the worse of liquor, and am much of the time on the street."

Mr. R. T. McLeod of Oregon, who is visiting his brother, A. D., of Priceville, gave The Advance a welcome half hour's chat on Tuesday. It is over fifteen years since he went west and this is his first trip east since that time. Mr. McLeod is in a wheat growing section of Oregon, where he says they never have a failure He does not have to depend on irrigation for his crops, either. There are a great many Canadians in the state of Oregon, and all appear to be doing well.

There was a noise as of many battles down in the valley on Saturday last, and people for miles around wondered what the thundering noise was about. The cause thereof was as follows: Mr. John Weber was the owner of about eighteen pounds of dynamite which he had stored in an old out building for the past couple of years. The family did not feel comfortable with so much explosive lying about and to allay their fears he decided to get rid of it. It was carried out and placed on a large stone, a fuse attached, and those who did not hear the explosion that followed can guess the rest.

DEAR EDITOR,—Allow me to make a contradiction in your paper of a false statement made about me for using profane language to R. Cook. He hauled me up for assault and then he was willing to settle. I paid $2.65 sooner than have my name in the paper, but any words I did say to him I will not take back, and I did not plead guilty and I won't plead guilty. I was away last week and did not get back in time to get this in last week's issue. Thanking you for this short space in your paper, I remain your,—EDWARD SARGENT.

Charley Wolf, a Jew pedlar well known in this section, has been having a difficult row to hoe recently. Some time ago he was twice fined for selling without a license in this county. Later it seems he repeated this act in the neighboring county of Simcoe and the authorities down there got after him. He heard of this and went himself to a magistrate and had the matter adjusted. It is said that for twenty dollars he got a clear receipt up to date for any irregularities committed. In this manner he got off very cheaply, but just how the magistrate in question will explain his action if called upon to do so we cannot attempt to decide. Charley may be a Wolf by name, but he has a little of the fox in him, too. He is fast learning, however, that it does not pay just now to peddle in this county or any other county without a license.

Sabbath, Sept. 5th—the pastor of the Methodist church—Eph. 4: 22-24. 11 a. m.—"Putting off the old man and putting on the new man." No. 4 in studies in Ephesians. 7.00 p. m.—Labor day sermon. You are heartily welcomed.

Some of our subscribers would notice that they were a little late in getting their copy of The Advance last week and would wonder what could be the cause thereof, as it was something very unusual indeed. Well, here is the explanation: After getting the first copy off and making some corrections, the machine was started again without properly locking the forms on the press, with the result that one page slid off to the floor and piled itself up into a shapeless mass. This represented at least a week's work for one man to replace it in the cases, but owing to the kindness of Bro. Tucker of the Markdale Standard, who came to the rescue with his type-setting machine, the paper was printed the same evening and was sent out Thursday instead of Wednesday. The wreck was one of the worst we have known and there are still pounds of printers' "pi" lying around awaiting somebody's leisure to put it back where it belongs. The editor-in-chief was solely to blame in this instance and now considers himself a full-fledged pressman, having learned his little lesson.

Change of Date

The Directors of Artemesia Agricultural Society have found it necessary to change the date of their fall fair and hold it a week earlier than was announced. The correct dates will be September 30 and October 1.

Card of Thanks.

I beg to thank the citizens of Flesherton who extended kindness and help during the illness of my son in the village. The assistance rendered is appreciated more than I am able to express. Gratefully, —W. J. ARMSTRONG

Dundalk, August 31, 1009.

Mrs. John Heard Dead

The citizens were shocked on Monday morning to learn that Mrs. John Heard was in a dying condition. All day Monday she lay and unconscious passed peacefully away at 8.30 p.m. that evening. Two doctors were in attendance upon her for hours previous to dissolution, but found it beyond human power to save her. Much sincere sympathy is expressed with Mr. Heard in his extremely sad loss. The deceased lady was much admired for her many sterling qualities, and most by those who knew her more intimately. She leaves behind her an infant daughter only a few hours old. Mrs. Heard was, previous to her marriage, Miss Hannah Wallace, daughter of Mr. James Wallace, of this township. Her mother died about a year ago. Besides her father, she leaves behind two sisters and four brothers—Hattie, unmarried, in Winnipeg, Jennie (Mrs. Robert McClellan) Port Hope, John T. and Roy in London, Ont., William at Wiarton and Robert in Toronto. The deceased lady was a consistent member of the Methodist church. Her age was 32 years. The funeral took place yesterday (Wednesday) afternoon to Flesherton cemetery, service being conducted in the Methodist church by her pastor, Rev. H. E. Wellwood.

Charles Such's well drilling outfit is at present on the farm of Charles Jackson, 14th con., Brant. Mr. Such was driving out into Brant on Monday afternoon and Mr Jas. Leggett of this town asked Mr. Such for a ride as far as Wm. Leggett's, 12th con. On their way they drove into Chas. Jackson's and Mr. Such left Mr. Leggett to hold the horse in the lane till he went to see how drilling operations were proceeding. The horse became frightened and ran up the lane. The buggy struck a gate near the barn, upsetting the rig, and throwing Mr. Leggett against a post on the other side. He was picked up, carried into the house and a physician phoned for. When the doctor arrived he found Mr. Leggett's ribs on one side had been smashed so badly that they were separated from his spine. He only lived a few hours and spoke only a few words after being injured. The shock killed him. Mr. Leggett had reached the advanced age of 81 years but was in perfect health. —Chesley Enterprise.

If it is true that no editor, publisher, manager or printer is now or has been, an inmate of either the Kingston penitentiary or the Central prison, the newspapers should not too hastily conclude that it is a credit to journalism. It may be regarded by some as a reproach to the administration of justice —Toronto Star.

Last Saturday when the farmers got together in town, they invariably began talking about the grasshoppers. The tales some of them told were most unfortunate, and there are undoubtedly a large number of farmers who have comparatively nothing in the shape of fodder this year.—Wiarton Echo.

The town of Collingwood has purchased a gas producer plant from the Canada Foundry Co. for power purposes to be installed by October 1st at an expense of $5,500. The plant is adapted for charcoal, anthracite or coke.

The next time that Peter Toews of Winnipeg enters a barber's chair he will make certain that he won't take a nap. He wandered into the tonsorial parlors of a Leonard Violete recently. When he came to he had the following little bill presented to him: Hair cut, 25c; shave, 15c; singe, 25c; elertric shampoo, 50c; scalp massage, 50c; face massage, 35c; eyebrows dyed, 75c; moustache dyed, $1; total, $3.75. To this was added $1 for good measure. Toews looked at himself in the glass. It was not the same Peter Toews he knew before his sleep in the barber's chair. He pinched himself to be sure he was not still sleeping. There was an altercation which wound up in the police court. Magistrate Daly was called upon to adjudicate as to the bill. Peter seriously considered bringing in a charge of assault when he viewed his countenance, but was finally appeased by having his bill cut down to 40 cents, which he duly paid.

The Postoffice Department continues its policy of providing free rural mail delivery routes where they are asked for by the people. So far about 100 routes have been established, mostly in Ontario and the west, Quebec and the Maritime provinces showing little appreciation of the boon. The procedure is for twelve or more farmers along the mail route to send in a petition in which they express their willingness to provide the official boxes. This request is reported upon by the divisional inspector, and if approved the contract is then let and put into operation.
