Priceville Fall Fair

The archives of the Priceville fall fair will chronicle another successful event—this year's fair. In spite of the great handicap of rainy weather the function was a succets. The first day of the fair was very rainy and disagreeable, but the hall exhibit was, nevertheless, excellent, better than that of many other years, and surpassing any held in this vicinity this fall. The unfavourable weather doubtless kept many exhibitors with their stock and poultry from being present. However, the directors are quite elated over the manner in which the people turned out on the second day. The gate receipts amounted to $116.50. The concert at night brought in $74.75, which total at $191.25, only a slight decrease from last year

H. H. Miller, the popular M. P. for South Grey, opened the fair. The Flesherton band was present both for the afternoon proceedings and the concert at night. Priceville is unfortunate in not having such a musical organization, and appreciated the musicians' work to fullest.

The unique baby contest inaugurated last year was repeated this year, and proved very popular again. How the judges are to come to an intelligent conclusion in a case of this sort is rather an enigma to the average male being.

The rain did not materially hinder the sports, which where interesting. In the men's race once around the track, there were but three starters. Whittaker led all the way till within a short distance of the finish when Crawford with a great sprint pulled in ahead. The race of old men was also an exciting brush. The old men who entered have a little youth left in them yet, as was shown by their performance.

The show of horses was good, but in cattle and swine the exhibit was not quite up to the average.

To the unbounded and undaunted enthusiasm of the board of management of the society is due the success of the fair, and the members may be assured that their officers are men fully competent for their offices.

The concert was well patronized, the hall being packed to the doors, and standing room at a premium. Mr. Geo. Lothian of Dromore was chairman and introduced the various numbers with an easy grace. W. McLeod of London doled out fun from an apparently inexhaustible fount. His dance "The Sailor's Hornpipe," was accorded a most rousing reception, as also were his humorous sketches. Miss Eva Cuthbert with her character dancing and singing was a most happy selection, and will likely be heard again in Priceville. Hector McDonald, with the pipes, was in the limelight and is losing none of his popularity. The funny selections were laughed at and enjoyed to the limit, but the best part of the program to many was that which bordered on the Scottish—for after all has not Priceville been aptly described as a bit of "Auld Scotia" dropped down in Canada, and where Scottish hearts beat they beat for the old land, and beat all the faster when the music of Albion wails in the air, or deeds of chivalry are told in Scottish verse.

Here's a Good One

One of our exchanges which makes a practise of copying our Osprey items and re-printing them as fresh news got sadly muddled last week. This swiping of our items without crediting is taken rather as a compliment to our correspondents, and but emphasises our policy of giving all the news while it is news. Following is the hash it gave out in the last issue, copied carefully to show typographical errors:

Markdale has carried two by-laws, one to provide $7 000 to complete the village waterworks, and another 93,000 for a fire hall and fire fighting apparatus. The waterworks system caught him, pinning him to the seat. Fortunately the horses stopped and will have a standpipe with a capacity of 50,000 gallons. Work has already been commenced.

Brakeman Killed

Orangeville, Oct. 4.—Joseph Paul, a brakeman on the Owen Sound division of the C. P. R, living at 95 Mulock avenue, West Toronto, was instantly killed at McKinley's Cut, three miles northwest of here this afternoon.

He was breaking on the north bound freight which was trying to make the grade, but the three engines were utilized the attempt proved unsuccessful, and it was found necessary to divide the train. The wheels slipped and the heavy train became stalled. Paul proceeded to turn off the stop cock of the brakes, the train being divided, when the slack of the forward section drove back, crushing his stomach into pulp and breaking his right arm, death being instantaneous. The body was brought here and examined by jury under Corner James Henry.

John Paul, father of deceased, was a C. P. R. engineer and was killed in his cab while passing Bathurst-street, Toronto. He leaned out the cab window and his head hit a semaphore.

An inquest was opened to-night, and the body will be sent to the West Toronto Burial Co. in the morning.

The Conviction Sustained

A bunch of stove peddlers, who were selling around here last summer, were fined for selling without a peddlers license. They appealed the case with the following result as chronicled in Saturday's dailies: J. W. K. Van Norman and others, who were convicted by a justice of the peace of Grey county for selling stoves without a peddler's license, asked Mr. Justice Riddell to quash the conviction, but his Lordship gave judgment today, refusing to quash.

Van Norman produced an agreement with the Western Foundry Company, Limited, of Wingham, stating that Van Norman was a manager, and that the others were hired by him, and Van Norman argued that he and his men were not obliged to take out licenses.

The justice of the peace held that the document was not a bona fide agreement, and that Van Norman had merely bought the stoves for sale.
