A Priceville Critic

Priceville, 29-3-10.

EDITOR ADVANCE,—Your paper of week before last contains an article re continuation school which cannot in justice to the rest of the township pass unchallenged. In it you made some sweeping assertions and some misstatements which are no credit to The Advance and are certainly contrary to its published motto.

In the first place you warn all "ignorant" readers that "the project is secure and the township will have its educational institution for all time to come." Perhaps so, but the best laid plans of even the high school board may go far astray in the three months that must elapse before the selling of the debentures. This cowardly thrust re the security of your institution may silence the "ignorant," but a few remain who will not back down from a show of bombast and printer's ink.

Secondly, you ask why was not the question of having a vote of the people discussed at the County Council last January? We have the assurance of at least one county councillor from outside Artemesia that he fully understood a vote was to be taken or he never would have sanctioned the Flesherton move. More than that, Mr. Editor, Flesherton did not send a delegation to the County Council with the intention of asking a favor on a vote of the people. She was far too shrewd to let the people know anything about it.

Thirdly, you say that when "continuation classes were first formed" there was no objection. This is not the case, as a Priceville gentleman at that meeting stated that his section would object or objected.

Fourthly, you say that at the beginning of the continuation classes project "it was understood by many of the electors that a school would have to be built." This is another mis-statement. In reply to a query, the inquirer was told that it would be small expense to rent a hall or a room in the village for the extra class or classes.

We now come to the most glaring piece of fiction in the entire article. In cold black and white we read, "It was decided to ask the County Council to establish a larger district, which was done on petition of the representatives of the sections interested." Now, Sir, as one of the "ignorant" ones in "one of the sections interested" I may say that we were never apprised of what was being done; we did not petition to become partakers in the affair; were at no time consulted as to consent or even opinion, and were totally and purposely ignored from first to last. This, then, is the difference between fact and fiction, in Artemesia at least.

Your editorial goes on to say that the school board recognizes that "the strongest objectors are enemies of the school," and later on "that sectional bias is a strong factor in the case." Now, sir, these very words were used at a council meeting in Flesherton and on the demand of a Priceville representative they were withdrawn. To find The Advance, which prides itself, and justly so, on its originality, using the retracted words of a Flesherton citizen is surprising to no small degree.

We might go on to show the impracticable nature of the whole affair; the underhand methods which have been employed; the stealth which characterized all the proceedings and to explain fully the Priceville side of the question, but time forces us merely to answer your assertions on behalf of the "ignorant."

Notice To The Public.

Having disposed of our hardware stock and tinsmithing tools to C. J. Bellamy, we wish, through the Advance, to thank our many customers for their liberal patronage and support. All parties having repair work now in the tin shop will call and get same within 15 days. All accounts must be settled by May 1st, after that date our books will be put in other hands for collection. Mr. C. J. Bellamy will be found in our old stand and we wish to recommend for him the same liberal patronage accorded us.

"Of Interest to Women" includes scores of little hints on health and beauty; the newest fashions in dress and house furnishings; talks on ethical matters of particular interest to women; points of etiquette; suggestions for home entertainment; recipes; daily menus; advice and suggestions on all the matters that lie close to a woman's heart. They will help solve household problems, and better still, stimulate and interest the mind.
