to enfler from debility. In all such cases Ayer's Pills give prompt relief. After much suffering from Liver and stomach troubles, I have finally been cured by taking Aper's Catharde Pills. tion.—Ralph Weeman, Annapolis, Md-Twenty-five years ago I suffered from a torpid liver, which was restored to healthy action by taking Ayer's Pills. Since that time I have never been with-out them. They regulate the bowels assist digestion, and increase the appe-tite, more surely than any other medi-cine.—Paul Churchill, Haverhill, Mass.

INVIGORATED. I know of no remedy equal to Ayer's pills for Stomach and Liver disorders. I suffered from a Torpid Liver, and Dypepsia, for eighteen months. My skin was yellow, and my tongue coated. I had no appetite, suffered from Head ache, was pale and emaciated. A few hoxes of Ayer's Pills, taken in moderate doses, restored me to perfect health.—Waldo Miles, Oberlin, Ohio.

Aver's Fills are a superior family medicine. They strengthen and invigorate the digestive organs, create an appetite, and remove the horrible depression and despendency resulting from Liver Complaint. I have used these Fills, in my family, for years, and they never fail to give entire satisfaction.—Otto Montgomery, Oshkosh, Wis.

Anumber of tribes throughout Afghanistan have promised to support the ameer's threatened holy war against Russia.

The latest craze in St. Louis is decol-lette photographs. Two years ago the young ladies would have thought it very 'loud' to be taken in a low-neck dress of bust drapery. Somehow they all began to ask for that style this winter, and lately, says a St. Louis paper, they have been taken in no other way.

The plan of campaign has been applied to Waies, and in South Monmouthshire the tithepayers' association determined that the decreased value of agricultural produce was such that the state church tithes should be lowered 22 per cent. The tithepayers sent a deputation with the reduce amount to the ecclesisatical commus-sioners. The latter refused it, and the de-putation, counting out the money, left. The war between the classes and the masses is thus rapidly extending its area. -Another instance of the efficacy of oil

It appears from St. Petersburg deapatches that another attempt had been made upon the life of the czar. It is learned that on Tuesday while the czar was exercising in the park connected with the Gatachina palace he was fired upon by an officer of the army, the bullet passing close to his person. The officer was immediately seized and imprisoned... King Christian has been informed from St. Petershurg that another unsuccessful attempt was made upon the cases life. The chief prisoners are confined in the Schluesselburd fortress and the remainder in the St. Petersburg citadel. Quantities of explosives and numerous compromising papers have been found in the house of a stater of one of the prisoners. A general's wife and a doctor's wife, who were compromised in the murder of the late czar, are implicated in the present plot. Some of the prisoners are students in female colleges. They had a quantity of money when arrested. They refused to give any information. Threads of the conspiracy were discovered at Cherkoff, Kieff, Warsaw, Moscow, Odessa and Nove Telegrams. -A London cable cape: The scene in the house of rommone when Mr. Balfour introduced his coercion bill was remarkable. suggested emendation of his speech, muck encouragement to "go ahead," "keep it up," don't stop," and when he heeltated for a moment there was a perfect chorne of catcalls and inarticulate noises. At first everyone was astounded. The speaker did not interfere, but his conduct was doubtless the wisest under thecircum-stances, as he saw in a moment that the Irish members were so excited and filled with mession as to be absolutely beyond control. He was not willing to provoke a direct conflict between himself and them, which could only have resulted in their suspension. On the front opposition beach Mr. Glad-stone and Mr. Morley sat side by side. Mr. Glad-stone and the stringency of the measure became gradually apparent. Mr. Morley showed similar signs of deep feeling. Both of them several times broke out into unconscious, indigmant gestures. During the latter part of the speach all order and authorthem several times broke out into uncon-scious, indignant gestures. During the lat-ter part of the speech all order and author-ity completely vanished. It was impossi-ble to look on without feeling deeply the chaos to which the great assembly had been reduced. The effect of the coercion bill has been for the first time since the home rule, bill was introduced to smally solidify has been for the first time since the home rule bill was introduced to really solidify the opposition ranks. Many of the Gladstonian members are now ready to adopt any line of action practicable in their restance of coercion and will join the Irish members in that respect without reserve. It is considered certain that every possible form of obstruction will be reserted to. Instead of the Parnellites fighting alone and discountenanced in their obstructive tacdiscountenanced in their obstructive tac-tics the whole opposition will co-operate with them and exhaust all expedients in with them and exhaust all expedients in the endeavor to postpone a vote until the true meaning of the coercion bill has been fully ventilated in debate and shown up before the people. Under the new rules a motion to summarily close debate must be supported by over two hundred members if it is to be carried by a mere majority. If less than two hundred members support the motion forty votes are sufficient to defeat the closure. The result of this rule is that the government must keep in hand over two hundred members ready to vote for closure whenever it may be decided on. This will not be an impossible task, of This will not be an impossible tack, of course, but it adds to the difficulties and embarraesments of the ministry.

The Montreal Star says: The British government's Irish land bill is one that but a few years ago would have been rejected with indignation by English conservatives. It contains many encroachments on what were but a short time ago regarded as the sacred rights of property. The liberty of a landlord to do what he likes with his own is invaded in the clauses that relate to evictions and the interference of the law in favor of tenants who are in arrears. The binding force of contracts too is interfered with when leastholders are admitted to the irish landlords asked to make large pecuniary sacrifices, but they are required to submit to very considerable restrictions of their power over their tenants. This tory land bill shows in a very conspicuous of late years. A London cable says: The large pecuniary ferform has made in Great Britain of late years. A London cable says: The late years. It is asserted that Lord Salisbury mentioned these demonstrations as one of the urgent reasons for pressing the second reading of the crimes bill.... Mr. Labouchere, apeaking in the house of commons last Thursday evening, said the disorders in Ireland were due to execrable laws and government in defiance of the wishes of the people. The conservatives seemed to be unable to understand that they were dealing with a nation entitthat they were dealing with a nation entit-led to make its own laws and not with in-dividuals. last effort of the classes against the masses. It was a struggle between plutocrats, the Irish and English landlords and the men who occupied the land and seked for a fair share of its fruits... The London Standard says strong pressure is being put upon Mr. Gladatone to formally and publicly declare that any liberal members voting for the crimes bill shall be considered to have no further connection with the party.... The New York Tribune's London correspondent says: The note of a rapidly rising The New York Tribune's London correspondent says: The note of a rapidly rising agitation in England against the new coercion bill is the same which Mr. W. H. Seward sounded in the phrase "Higher Law." Both in Mr. Gladstone's speech on Tuesday in the house of commons, and in Mr. Morley's speech outside, is discoverable a tendency to deny the sanctity of law as law. Private conceptions of justice are henceforth to be set up against the judgment of the majority as declared by the statute. This spirit is the same which forces Mr. Gladstone to the front of the party which expresses its dislike of the proposed measure by obstruction in parliament. Mr. Gladstone means to santtion neither illegality is Ireland ner unparliamentary methods in the house, but he abandons for the time being the ground he took up when defending his own coercion measures and occupies a position not unlike that of the Parnellites when they protested against the first crimes act. Undoubtedly the crisis is, as Mr. John Morley says, a grave one. The liberal leaders seem resolved to go all lengths in promoting the agitation against Mr. Balfour's bill. No importance need be attached tothe frunsied orise to arms which appear in the Pall Mall Gassette. It is the attitude of serious men which is of importance. The government of declare they will stand or fall by occurries. They may drop certain provisions of their bill, but they must stick to its principle, which is that of governing Ireland against the wish of the majority of the Irela propie, which is that of governing Ireland against the wish of the majority of the Irela propie, which is that of governing Ireland against the wish of the majority of the Irela propie by exceptional methods unknown in Englished.

Si, i.e. He. Rear turning to the question of the capital receipts and expenditures was able to give the times in full, showing a surplus of no less than $1.00.50.75, over and above all lishilities. Of this runs $1.75.100 is held by the Deminion government and is bearing interest. The accumb estimates of the empenditures have been placed at the highest and the receipts at the forwar point, there is reason to hope, that there will be a repetition of last year, which was expected to show a deficit and which really, aschated, shows a small surplus. The work of chief financial critic was undertaken by Mr. Creighton. It will be remembered that in former days it was Mr. Creightonic chief delight to figure the surplus down to nothing, followed by Mr. Carnegie, who would run it upon the other side as a heavy deficit. On this counton, however, Mr. Creighton was unable to got the deficit lower than two and a half millions, so that it will be seen the position of the previses it improving, even in the opinion of Mr. Creighton. The debate was large up at some length, taking, toward the close, the tone of a straignt-out discussion on the "No popery" cry, the government supportures accuming their opponents of the fiverer resurring that they had avoided milgione issue, but that the government owed its return to power to its Runnan Catholic support. The opposition's chief accusation against the government so far as finances are cancerned was that they were taking the revenue from your lands as part of the ordinary revenue of the that they were taking the revenue from your lands as part of the ordinary revenue of port. The opposition's chief accusation against the government so far as finances are concerned was that they were taking the revenue from crown lands as part of the erdinary revenue of the province. The crown lands could not last forever and the time would come when there would be a great deficit, and not merely no interest to meet it but the very patrimony from which revenue might be gained gone. In reply to this it was pointed out that although the crown lands revenue was credited as part of the yearly income more than had been received had been invested in railwaps and other public works which represented the public property in another form. The strength of the government on financial questions was well brought out during the debate, and the weakness of the opposition in debating talent was also shown. One thing about the debate should not be overlooked in view of the charges made against the government, of contemplating a raid on the Dominion reasury. Mr. Biggar, the tory member for North Broce, declared that the people of Quebec had wisely spent their money in relieving local taxation which this government had not done, and it was time to have a rearrangement of the terms of confederation. As the government of Quebec and that of Untario were in accord they essented arrange to make united representations to the Dominion government for the benefit of both.

Upper Canada college. Early in the session Mr. Waters presented a notice of motion declaring for unconditional abolition. This has been allowed to stand from day to day. In such cases it is usually to suit the convenience of the gov ernment that metters are allowed to wait. If that be the case with this, it would indicate that some plan of compremise er change is in con-papers on this subject had been brought down by Hon. C. F. Fraser, commissioner of public works, a few days before and were in the hands of the printers. When Mr. Creighton moved his resolution Hon. Mr. Fraser took it up point by point stating that some of the papers called for did not exist and others were included in the reregarded the proposal to make the crimes bill a permanent measure, if that were done the bill would never be abrogated, as the majority of the lords were the Marquis of Salisbury's subservient political slaves. The speaker here interposed and Mr. Labouchers modified hisexpression to "a majority were entirely in Lord Salisbury's hands." He taunted Mr. Chamberlain with having made an offer to the liberals to oppose coercion if they would accept his Iriah plans. When this offer was refused Mr. Chamberlain took his goods to the other side. Mr. Chamberlain only "wanted his miserable vanity satisfied." This was the last effort of the classes against the masses. It was a struggle between plutocrats, the tacked the guernhicate, Mr. Waite, although he was one of the commissioners who sat in judgment upon the plans of the Canadian architects, and found a sinister motive in it. But the explanation given was that the plans of the Canadian architects could not be carried out for the sum appropriated, $750,000, and having failed in their efforts to get plans the government engaged Mr. Waite as architect, he being a man of wide repute, with great experience in public buildings and a good record for economy combined with efficiency. The opposition is evidently not satisfied with this explanation and we may expect to hear more of the matter.

One of the principal events of the session has been the appointment of a special committee to consider the question of tall roads and how best to free them. This subject was brought forward by Mr. Lees and at first it was thought nothing more two mil would be done than have a discussion of it has and ending in nothing in particular. But ending in nothing in particular. But public feeling in many sections has been so deeply stirred on this subject that the government wisely proposed the appointment of the committee. It is not likely anything will be done this semion, for the one is such a complicated one and involves so many facts that the committee will hardly be able to untangle it all in so short a time. It is not impossible that a commission may take up the whole question and present the facts so that the government may take the matter up and deal with it. The lack of unity and the difficulty of finding any principle common to all the ences, The lack of unity and the difficulty of find-ing any principle common to all the cases, the confinion in which the interests have become estagled and the great of corpora-tions and pumiricaness of counties in too many cases makes a rettlement seem al-most hopeless.
