He was in such a bad condition subsequently, from the shock to his nervous system that his wife's morose statement was taken by a justice of the peace. The doctor states that if he recovers he will be blind for life. Hunt has been committed for trial. Both Hunt and Davidson are about seventeen years of age.

Thompson, a lad of 16, attempted to climb the rigging of the schooner Ida Walker and had reached the top of the fore-structure where the railings became very narrow just under the cross-tree, when missing his hold, he was precipitated towards the deck, a distance of thirty or forty feet, and would doubtless have been dashed to death, but by a miracle catching on a rope, escaped with a few bruises. This boy is a brother to the little girl Thomas killed on the railway this summer.

The Orilla artesian well is down 260 ft. at last and the contract is completed. It has been somewhat of a disappointment all around. The contractors did not expect to have much granite to bore through, and the council expected a large flow of water. Mr. Harris, of Petrolia, the contractor, has lost heavily and is desisting of sympathy and respect for the money which he has expended in this work forward to completion in spite of the severe obstacles encountered. He also sustained a severe loss in losing one of his young men, Mr. Frank Gill, who was accidentally shot at the Narrows. The council have got an additional well and therefore more water, although not to such an extent as they anticipated. The largest flow was got at between 80 and 80 ft. though it is thought the flow at 260 ft. will yet improve.

The girl has since been sent to a Montreal convent, and it is said she is very penitent and quite recovered from her temporary infatuation.

To any one possessing a legal mind, the intricacies of the proceedings detailed below may possess interest. To the mind of a layman, the course of the bailiff seems high-handed in the extreme:—On the 5th December 1881, the bailiff of the eighth division court of the county of Wellington, entered the office of Hannes & Co., private bankers, of Arthur street, with power of attachment issued by a Hamilton firm against the goods of R. S. Kirk, formerly of Arthur. On being told by J. H. Hannes, the person in charge of the office, that there were no goods in the premises belonging to R. S. Kirk, the bailiff, Johnston by name, proceeded to pull open the cash drawer and take therefrom notes and money amounting to about $2,000. He carried away two notes amounting to over $200, and to add insult to injury, made complaint against J. H. Hannes for interfering with him in the discharge of his duty. Local magistrates fined the defendant $10 and costs, which fine was appealed against, when the judges of the county court quashed the conviction. An interpleader suit was tried at the division court of the seizure, where the property was decided to belong to Hannes & Co. The Hamilton firm in question then garnished the notes mentioned, when judgment was given in their favor for $200, the amount of one of the notes. Hannes & Co. next issued a writ of replevin to recover the notes in the hands of the D. O. clerk—who refused to give them up. Thereupon action was taken in the High Court of Justice against the D. O. clerk to recover the notes—with costs against the Division Court official. This point having been reached, action was taken by Hannes & Co. against Johnston the bailiff, for damages. The trial came on at the Orangeville assizes last March, resulting in a verdict for plaintiffs for $100 damages with costs. Judge Galt presiding. Johnston appealed against Judge Galt's decision and the case was argued in Toronto, when the appeal was dismissed with costs and the judge's decision confirmed. The case has been before the courts for nearly two years and was finally wound up on the 15th inst., by the sheriff's officer taking possession of Johnston's store, with execution against him for the amount of damages and costs, reported to be over $300. A costly lesson for oversteering the bounds prescribed by law.

for petty officers. Johnston is reported to have said that the matter has cost him $500 or over.

The by-law carried by the people of Barrie recently to purchase the Athletic park grounds is said to be utterly worthless, so clumsily was it drawn up.

An influential deputation, composed of representatives of municipalities in the counties of York, Ontario and Simcoe, waited upon the Commissioner of Public Works Friday in advocacy of a proposal that the Government should undertake the proposed scheme to lower the water of Lake Simcoe, and remove the obstructions in the outlets placed there by mill owners. Mr. Fraser promised that the request would receive the most serious consideration of the Government.

At the Toronto assizes John Anderson was tried for the larceny of a quantity of carpenter's tools belonging to Mrs. Reesor, Markham. Some time ago prisoner was arrested in Markham for forgery and on this charge the jury brought in a verdict of not guilty; on the charge of forging the name of J. L. Beardmore to an order on the Freehold Building and Loan Society, requesting the association to send his dividend on 280 shares, to Milneville instead of Uxbridge, and was arrested when he called for the letter. Found guilty.

On Saturday morning, a collision occurred on the Grand Junction railway near Foshoro, about seven miles from Belleville. The Madoc passenger train ran into a ballast train. It took place in a curve, in the bend of which the grand pit is situated. The ballast train had stacked speed to go into the siding, when the passenger train, coming from the opposite direction dashed into it at a high rate of speed. The two engines were completely wrecked, the ballast cars were smashed into splinters and the passenger cars knocked into pieces. Some half dozen passengers were more or less injured, but fortunately no lives were lost. The damage is estimated at $20,000.

The Guide says that at a quarter to 7 o'clock on Wednesday morning, while the steam whistle at the Midland and railway chime, Fort Hope was blowing. Mr. Edward Fulford, blacksmith, was passing over the track near Blackham's hotel, when he met Mr. Thomas Walton, who stopped to exchange a few words with him. The yard engine, which had just been shunting some cars of grain down to the elevator, was returning, and they did not hear the signal of the driver on account of the noise made by the shop whistle until the engine was completely upon them. Mr. Walton sprang and escaped without injury; Mr. Fulford threw himself off on the west side of the track, but his pants were caught in the machinery, drawing his left foot under the ponderous machine, smashing all the front part of the foot. Drs. Corbett and Hamilton amputated the toes. The main part of the foot with the ankle joint escaped without injury.

The result of the murder trial at Toronto last week leads to the inevitable conclusion that judges and jurors of this country are becoming altogether too humanitarian, and that sympathy with criminals is fast running away with judgment, to the defeat of justice. One Andrews was accused of the murder of a man named Maroney. The former is a ruffian of a pronounced stamp; while on a drunken carouse, and armed with a revolver, he met Maroney, who was peaceably inclined, and picked a quarrel with him. In the scuffle that ensued, Andrews got the worst of it, and while Maroney, who was unarmed, was holding him down, he drew a revolver and shot the other dead. The jury on the first trial failed to agree, eleven being in favor of returning a verdict of murder, and one for manslaughter. In the second trial, a verdict of murder, with a recommendation to mercy, was returned, but the judge refused to accept this, and the jury, in accordance with directions from the bench, found a verdict for the lighter offense of manslaughter. The plea was that no evidence of premeditation on the part of the prisoner was shown. The very best evidence of premeditation was the fact that Andrews had a loaded revolver in his possession. In this peaceable land no man requires a deadly weapon to defend his person, and that the prisoner had a revolver, should be held conclusive proof that he was ready and willing to do some one injury when opportunity offered. The case of severely ruffians who go about like a walking arsenal, intimidating and maltreating those who for the moment may incur their displeasure, should be held responsible in the highest degree for the result of their actions. Only by this means can we hope to have the practice of carrying firearms stamped out. We are sorry to see the bench lending its influence to encourage crime of this nature instead of punishing it with the full rigor of the law.

By the Ontario Gazette we learn that a new company under the name of "The St. Malo Vineyard Association of Ontario (Limited)," is to be formed for the purpose of manufacturing wines and sugar. The operations of the company are to be carried on at Tilsonburg and Toronto. The applicants are Goldwin Smith, A. H. Campbell (for many years a well known resident of Peterborough), C. S. Gzowski and H. Quetton St. George. The capital is to be $60,000, divided into 600 shares.

The Bridgewater correspondent of the Belleville Intelligencer writes that the grading is now almost complete on the Ontario and Quebec Railway. The construction train is now east of the bridge at Crookston, which is a fine structure, built of iron. They expect to arrive at Tweed inside of two weeks, with the iron for the bridge at this point. They are now engaged in the grading at Black Creek, on which to build the superstructure for that bridge. Things all along the line are progressing finely.

Mr. George Taylor, an old and honored resident of Belleville, died on Sunday night, in the 68th year of his age. He was born in Belleville, and when young followed the pursuit of a farmer, which calling he followed during the greater part of his life. In 1863 he was appointed to the shrievalty of the county of Hastings, which position he filled for eighteen years. He was a volunteer during the rebellion, and went to the front during that eventful period. He was a Conservative in politics, and was well and widely known, and held in high estimation by the community generally.

A gang of burglars appear to be operating in the vicinity of Belleville. The Intelligencer says that one night recently some burglars visited the residence of Mr. Darlington, west of Trenton. One of them entered the window, and unfastening the door let his companions in. They then proceeded to a room occupied by Mr. Palmer, who was awakened by them. He was told that in case he made any noise they would kill him, and they put the bed covering over his head. They then took away a silver watch, a chain and some clothing. The thieves stole a baggy from a neighbor, which property was recovered on Saturday morning.
