Shot Himself With Old Family Gun

Sad circumstances surround the death of Walter Watkins, of Craighurst, who commited suicide by shooting himself with an old shot gun on Sunday evening. Watkins was a prosperous farmer of 64 years of age and was well and favorably known throughout the district. He had been despondent for several months, and it is thought that illness deranged his mind. He worried over the possibility of cattle feed running short, and spoke of having to shoot some of the cows. Another worry of which he made much was a possible shortage of wood.

On Saturday he assisted with the "chores," and seemed to be feeling better, but on Sunday he relapsed into melancholy and told some of the family that he feared he would never be able to work again. At his request all the family went to Craighurst church on Sunday evening and on their return they were shocked, to find him lying on the kitchen floor with the old shot gun by his side. He was fatally wounded and although Dr. Atkinson of Hillsdale was called, he lasted but an hour, during which time he was unconscious. Mr. Watkins had lived in the neighborhood for nearly forty years, and was highly respected by all. The greatest sympathy is felt for his widow, one daughter and three sons.—Barrie Advance.

Dr. John M. Stewart, a highly respected physician of Chesley, died after a long and trying illness.

The United States despatched warships to Key West to provide against contingencies in the Cuban revolt.
