Eugenia Paragraphs

Too Late for Last Week

The annual fowl supper and entertainment held in the Presbyterian church on Monday evening was a great success. The basement was comfortably arranged for the tea, which all enjoyed, as the ladies had provided a goodly supply of fowl for the occasion, and the young people of the congregation served the guests. The program commenced at 8.30, Rev. Fowlie in the chair. Mr. Fowlie also gave a fine address on his trip to England. The choir gave some fine selections quite appropriate for the Harvest Home occasion. The Ceylon string band, assisted by Mrs. Buskin of Flesherton, gave some fine instrumentals. There was a duet by Marjorie Park and Neah Williams, and a solo by Allie Williams. Mr. Alex. Carruthers and four children gave some mouth organ instrumentals which were highly appreciated, also quartets and recitations. Miss Leone Pedlar gave a lengthy recitation. The proceeds amounted to $75.50.

Miss Florence Parliament of Maxwell spent the past week with her friend, Miss Allie Williams.

Mr. Henry Fenwick and son, Tom, have returned from their visit with the former's daughter, Mrs. E. LeGard, in the West.

Burned to Death Near Chatsworth

Owen Sound, Oct. 31.—Mrs. Charles Tebbitt of Berkeley, near Chatsworth, was yesterday removed to the General and Marine Hospital here, suffering from terrible burns, the result of a vain but heroic attempt to rescue her seven-months-old child from a burning house. Mrs. Tebbitt left her baby alone in the cradle in the kitchen of her home and went out to the barn to do the evening milking. She was in the barn less than an hour, and when she came out saw smoke and flames issuing from the house. Her first thought was for her little one, and, with the mother's instinct, blind to her peril, she rushed to the kitchen and threw open the door to find the room a mass of flame. Into this she plunged in an attempt to get the baby out of the cradle that she knew was in the midst of the fire. She was unsuccesstul, and before she could regain the open air her clothing had been burned almost entirely off her Some neighbors reached her, and medical aid was at once called. Her condition is critical, and small hopes for her recovery are entertained. The remains of the little child were not recovered. Mrs. Tebbit is a daughter of the late John Murray, ex-Councillor of Holland township.

The Late Mrs. Fawcett

Death once more called one of our number from us on Oct. 19, in the person of Mrs. James R. Fawcett of Kimberley, but it came as a relief to one who had suffered great pain for some time. As she neared the end she fell into a calm sleep and passed peacefully away. Her maiden name was Annie Elizabeth Saul born May 19, 1853, in Peel county, near Brampton, being the second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Saul, who, with her parents, moved up to Collingwood township in 1873, taking up farming near Heathcote. She was married on Jan. 17, 1877, and has resided in Kimberley continuously since 1880. She was a kind and loving wife and mother and ever ready to sacrifice her own comforts for those of her loved ones. She was a lifelong member of the Methodist church and leaves to mourn her loss a husband and five children—four sons and one daughter—Herbert and Simon of Collingwood, R. R. of Toronto, Mrs. J. E. Corbett of Dundalk, and Saul at home; two daughters, Margaret and May, being deceased. Besides these remain five brothers and three sisters—George, Richard and Robert of Toronto, John of Winnipeg, Albert of Heathcote, Mrs. Peacock, Humber, Mrs. G. H. Cruikshank and Miss Martha Saul of Heathcote. At the funeral on Tuesday, which was conducted by Rev. S. Trotter, assisted by Rev. J. R. Wilkinson, a large number of sympathising friends paid their last tribute. The remains were interred in the Union cemetery, Thornbury.

Guileless Walkerton Farmers

Some guileless farmers around Walkerton, says the Herald, who wouldn't so much as whistle a psalm tune on Sun day are said to be putting through more smooth business on week days than a lard rendering axle-grease factory. The Bell Telephone Company claims to be the latest victim of their slippery smoothness and unless there is a change in the weather that bloated octopus threatens to become as shaky on its legs as a newborn calf. One farmer was found using the battery of his phone on his gasoline engine. The matter has been reported to headquarters and trouble may result. Another farmer near Enniskillen, who connects with the Walkerton central, was found to have impaired his phone by continually shutting off the switch for the supposed purpose of preventing his wife from holding long-distance conversations during his absence. The woman in the case reported trouble to the central and on an investigation being made hubby's ingenuity was detected and the alleged plot revealed to his wife, who promised to teach him a lesson in etiquette that he won't soon forget. Townspeople who have been thought so wicked that ten couldn't be found to save Sodom, are still able to learn a few things from the guileless farmers when it comes to phones.

Murray McQueen of Windsor had 2,500 volts of electricity pass through him and is recovering.

Durham

We are pleased to learn that Mrs. Donald McIlvride is recovering from the effects of her recent railway accident. She was taken home from Varney on Friday last, but it will be some time yet before she will be fully restored to her usual health.

We regret to learn of the illness of Mrs. J. H. Brown, who is supposed to have received a paralytic stroke some time on Sunday or Monday last. Mrs. Brown is well up in years, and in comfortable circumstances. She has been living alone, and, not seeing her around, one of the neighbors effected an entrance to the house on Monday and found her lying beside the bed. She had evidently been there some time, and was conscious when discovered, but unable to help herself very much. She fancies that she had been there since Saturday, but this is scarcely probable.—Chronicle.
