It is very easy to talk about exodus-and you will see in a moment that I am not going to shirk the question—but the plain figures are there and can be wrestled with. No, sir, to there and can be wrestled with. No, sir, to call it trash and buncombe makes prettier sentences for after dinner speeches than if one told the truth about it. (Cheers.) Let me call your attention to another fact in connection with this criticism. We are told that while we are talking figures as regards the progress of this country we are very conveniently keeping out of sight other figures which are of consequence and have a great bearing upon this question. Now, I propose to night to talk to my tellow-Canadians in the to-night to talk to my tellow-Canadians in the plainest way about what our opponents call "the disagreeable figures of the census." (Hear, hear.) We have had an exodus ever since the British provinces were founded. That exodus has been going on at a rate which the little provinces have deployed and both both political parties have deplored and both have endeavored to check. The difference be-

THAT QUESTION BY LEGISLATION by governmental powers at all. The difference is that Sir John Macdonald and the statesmen who surrounded him did grapple with that question, and said that by giving the home market to our own people for their labor, and by encouraging the establishment of industries throughout Canada, it was possible at least to check that exodus by giving the United States. (Cheers.) No man supposes that the exodus could be entirely stopped. It springs very largely from the enterprise and adventure of the Canadian people. check it, and to make the exodus as a matter of necessity no longer exist. One was this: Tust the fertile lands of the North-west were to be opened up to THE YOUNG FARMERS OF ONTARIO. Another was that by keeping the home market for our minerals, the production of the minerals of our own country could be greatly en-hanced. Both of these have been done. I bave heard. admit the exodus still. There are various kinds of excdus, ladies and gentlemen. There All parties interested in the Eldon Presbyterian Church Cometery are hereby called to meet at the cid church building at said cemetery on Monday, the 6th day of February next, at two o'clock v.m., with the view of making arrangements for the proper care of said cemetery. On behalf of the corporation, is the Cartwright exodus, which reaches the tall figures of 1,500,000, and he soared above that even and claimed that a good many more men were lost from the Canadian population until somebody turned his own calculation about and applied it to the United States, and showed him that according to his mode of calculating the exodus, there had been an exodus from the United States of 6,500,000.

Present Messrs-Chambers, Dr. Cornwall, Crandell, Ellis, Hall, Hopkins, Howie, Kelly, Kylie, Laidlaw, Lishgow, Lownsbrough, McMillan, Shaver, Switzer, Thompson, Dr. Vrooman, Walker, Walters, Wilson, Dr. Wood. The Clerk took the chair and called on the council to elect the Warden.

Moved by Mr. Lownsbrough, seconded by Mr. Alton, that Mr. E. H. Hopkins, reeve of Ops, be Warden.

Moved by Mr. Kelly, seconded by Mr. Lithgow, that L. Bottum, reeve of Bobcaygeon be Warden. the casting vote developed on Dr. Vrooman as reeve of the highest assessed municipality, who voted for Mr. Hopkins, who was therefore last ten years 265 000. That is a THING DEEPLY TO BE REGRETTED. but, ladies and gentlemen, the loss in the decade before was far greater, not in numbers, but in percentage. While in the decade before we had increased our exodus by 50 per cent.; during the last decade it has been pulled down to a little over 36 per cent (Applauss.) But the assurance with which our opponents declare that the National Policy is to be blamed for having an exodus at all is something appalling to the intellect of Canadians (Loud applause.) What is it in the National Policy that has created the exodus? Is it that the number of our work ing people is less than it used to be before the National Policy was established? Ah, we are of the census. But let us take them alto-gether and we find that, apart from the great increase of miners in the country, and that increase has been great, the pay rolls of persons employed in industries in this country has increased in the last ten years by 112,000 opera-HAS THE NATIONAL POLICY that while these statements have gone before the people of Toronto and the people of Ontario widely, they have met with a singular response from our friends of the opposite side. We have been told that it is trash to talk of the prosperity of the people when nearly a million of people have fied from that pros-perity; but, ladies and gentlemen, have they down to this moment controverted one fact or figure in the long array of statistics which reached nearly five millions of people, it has never quite reached that mark yet, and to talk about being unable to keep in this country the beggarly five millions we have is to talk what that great leader described a few seconds afterwards as mere trash and buncombe What is the exodus? The facts have been secretained within the last few weeks from the United States records. They show that the whole population of the United States, Cana dian born, is 930 000. How many of theshave we lost in the last decade, and how many in the decade before? We have lost in the

the figures of the census which we are challenged to look in the face, when the rolls of these industries have increased by 112,000? Is it that capital has been fleeing from the country Attention of the control of the cont

the prosperity of this country would be so apparent that it would not need to be proved at all. Well, sir, they were in power and their prosperity was not proved at all. It was not visible even by the aid of a microscope. (Hear, hear, and cheers.) What is it we have practically done? I have given you the reaults. I have spoken to you about the great advantage which has been secured by the opening up of fertile lands in the North-west. As regards the cause of the young men who are accustomed to leave the Province of Ontario to a great extent. this supplied the want which those young men felt; as regards the which those young men felt; as regards the people of the Province of Quebec, who have been emigrating largely to the United States, and the people of the maritime provinces, remember what I have told you.

WE HAVE DONE FOR THE PEOPLE of Ontario to check the exodus. Let us remember this fact that we have given for figure in the long array of statistics which have proved the statements made as regards the activity and success of this country, the growth of its trade and commerce and development in every branch of public life. (Cheers.)

Have they attempted to wrestle with any one set of these figures or deny their conclusions. It is nearly to be a considered to the control of the control o friend the leader of the Opposition told in pathetic terms the other night the story of the brave hearted man who going to the polls, wished to wave the old flag and cheer for it, when he told the story of that man's sons being in Michigan. That was

PRECISELY THE STATE OF ATFAIRS before Sir John Macdonald established the National Policy, but now that man will be able to wave the old flag and feel that his sons are living under it and earning a homestead for themselves in Manitoba and the great North-west territories instead of spending their labor in the state of Michigan. (Cheers.) Now, ladies and gentlemen, you are naturally asking me what has this to do with the statement which we have to make to you. I am preaching, I know, the old sermon of what the National Policy has done and what the ob-jects of those who have laid its foundations were, but it is for me to tell you to night that THE PAST HISTORY of the Liberal-Conservative party, and what our policy is to be for the future—(cheers)—and I say to you, ladies and gentlemen, that the National Policy as I have described it is a means of developing the resources of Canada in aiding its people to go on wedding a nation is the policy that we intend to stand by. (Cheers) Before the elequence of the leader vantage it would be if the exodus to the United States, now totally 980,000 Canadian residents in the States, was increased by THE SWARMS OF THE OPERATIVES of the factories of Canada. (Hear, hear.) He would have to show us what advantage it would be to have our young farmers, instead of living in our own North-west, go to the state of Michigan, making there a home for J. M. McLennan, their children. (Hear, hear) Let me say then, that we stand for such a national denent as will make this country a great country, a united country and a nationality in itself. (Hear, hear, and cheers) The need is greater than ever it was, not only because our people are increasing in numbers. and increasing every year in activity. The need is increasing every year in activity. The need is increasing because of the pressure of surrounding circumstances, and the adverse policy which presses closely upon us fron the lows: other side of the border. Why is it that we pete

SO MUCH ABOUT ANNEXATION? Why is it that the Liberal praty has been compelled in spite of itself to endeavor to tear our the cancer that is eating away its existence? (H.ar, hear.) Why is it that for existence? (Hear, hear.) Why is it that for the first time they come on public platforms and stand at public dinner tables to talk about a great Canadian people, a great Canadian future and a great Canadian nationality? It is because that cancer has eaten almost to their very heart, and the time There is the kind of exodus which described a few evenings ago as an exodus so great that we were unable to keep the beggarly 5,000,000 of people that we have in it. Ladies and gentlemen, while the population has grown in the last decade 17 per cent., and has grown in the last decade 18 per cent. little while ago, whenever we said even that much, we were taunted with waving the old flag, and a lot of traitors, a lot of cowards NOT THE COURAGE TO BE TRAITORS.

> although they have the will, would sneer at the old flag—(hear, hear)—sneer at the loyal-ty we inherited from our fathers—sneer at the institutions which our fathers were so proud to leave us. (Loud cheers.) But, thank heaven, the change which has come over the spirit of their dream is so great that they cannot now too often talk about their loyalty, cannot too often aver their devotion to British connection, cannot too often stand about dinner tables and talk about the great Canadian people, using phrases which we have often used, and which were scouted and sneered at whenever any of them could get on the stump. (Hear hear.) Well, ladies and gentlemen, there is a secret about that—hardly a secret, because it lies open to him who will lock about him and investigate. The growth of annexation sentiment is not to be attributed particularly to any one party. You will find it developing immensely in the United States, where my particular friend

SIR RICHARD CARTWRIGHT declared it necessary to educate public opinion.
(Laughter.) Why is it that sentiment has dechallenged to look at the disagreeable figures | veloped so greatly there within the last five years? Five years ago very few of the American people cast any glance of desire at this fair Dominion of Canada. But now the most powerful press of the country is de voted entirely to the propagation of that movement What is the reason for all that? A great change has come over the condition of effairs in the United States. The agricultural interest has failen far lower in that country than it has in Canada. (Hear, hear.) The deserted farms, the mortgages upon them, the chattel mortgages, everything which indicates a faltering and failing industry marks with ten-fold force the agricultural interest of Canada; and one of their great
