The Worst that Could Befall. The following is a story of an incident that

Batoche, May 12, 1885.

I like to hear the volunteers. The boys, I mean, who swept the West,
Stand up and tell of scenes of war
With kindling eye and martial crest,
Of fearful scenes that they've gone thro',
Of things they did and didn't do. "Bejingo, we were at Batoche, And fit at Fish Creek, too, by goth !"

I like the flush of honest pride. I like to mark their cocky air. I like the broad and swelling breast, The forage cap set on a hair. You talk to them of Cut Kuife Hill,

The answer thro' your soul will thrill, "Bejingo, we were at Batoche, And fit at Fish Creek, too, by goah!" And when they climb the golden stairs,
And meet the men of Waterloo,
And they begin to tell of how
They made old Bonaparte look blus,

The boys will simply wait a while, Then answer with a pitying smile, "Bejingo, we were at Batoche,
And fit at Fish Creek, too, by gosh?"

The Private of the Buffs.

"Some Sinks, and a private of the Buffs, having remained behind with the grog carts, fell into the hands of the Chinese. On the next day they were brought before the authorities and ordered to perform kotou. The Sinks obeyed, but Moyee, the English soldier, declared he would not prostrate himself before any Chinaman alive, and was immediately knocked upon the head, and his body thrown upon a dunghill."—China

Poor, reckless, rude, low born, untaught,
Bawildered, and alone;
A heart, with English instinct fraught,
He yet can tell his own.
Ay, tear his body limb from limb; Bring cord, or exe, or flame; He only knows that not through him Shall England come to shame.

Far Kentish hop fields round him seemed, Like dreams, to come and go;
Bright leagues of cherry-blossom gleamed,
One sheet of living snow;
The smeke above his father's door

In gray soft eddyings hung; Must be then watch it rise no more, Doomed by himself so young? Yes, honour calls !-with strength like steel He put the vision by;
Let dusky Indians whine and kneel,
An English lad must die.
And thus, with eyes that would not shrink,
With knee to man unbent,

Unfaltering on its dreadful brink, To his red grave he went, Vein mightiest fleets of iron framed. Vain those all-shattering guns, Unless proud England keep untame The strong heart of her sons,

"No tidings have yet been received of the missing steamer, Glad Tidings. The Maud was on Saturday night despatched to search for her. Fear is generally expressed that she has been disabled and blown out to sea, with the probable loss of all on board. Dr. Sutherland does not think that the steamer has been blown out to sea, as the only place on the route of the boat along the coast which is at all epen is a run of between 40 and 44 miles of open sea in the Queen Charlotte sound. On the other hand he thinks it quite probable that the steamer's machinery has broken down, and that immediate assistance is, of course, necessary.
