Stallion Inspection For 1914

After the Inspection of stallions had been completed last fall it was found that there were quite a number of stallion owners who, through not appreciating the value of the Act, or through lack of information did not have their Stallion presented for inspection when the Inspectors were on their routes in the fall. A supplementary inspection was held in April to inspect stallions owned by such men. This made the inspection very thorough, but besides causing additional expense, it in some cases, caused considerable delay in having the enrolment certificates issued. To overcome the necessity of a second inspection for the season of 1914 it was decided at a meeting of the Stallion Enrolment Board held in the Secretary's Office, Parliament Buildings, Toronto, on Monday, Sept. 22nd, that there would only be one inspection of stallions, during the year ending July 31st, 1914, which inspection will commence about February 17th, 1914. The Inspectors will visit each stallion owner at his stable, provided that he makes application for inspection to the Secretary, R. W. Wade, on or before February 1st, 1914.

An unfortunate drunk in Durham was fined $20 and costs.

Durham councillors are moving the old town hall to a new site. The new government postoffice will be erected where the town hall has stood.

Ton. Dennison, a Huttonville teamster was going to Brampton with his team when a high-power auto came along and ran so close that the skin was brushed off Tom's horses' legs. The tongue of the wagon dropped at the same time, and the teamster had the time of his life. He finally quieted the horses and would like to run across that chauffeur again.

James Walker of Hepworth, whilst taking part in the farmers' race, Owen Sound, met with a bad accident last week. As his horse was going up the back stretch it stumbled and fell pitching the driver heavily to the ground In falling his knee cap came in contact with a post which wrenched the ligaments clean away from the left knee cap. Mr. Walker's entire leg was placed in a splint and he was removed to the General and Marine hospital.

Mr. J. F. VanDusen, having received inducements from Chesley decided to move to that town. He has therefore closed his jewelry business here and shipped his stock. The jewelry business in Dundalk is a little overdone with three stores, and repairs being done free, so that Mr. VanDusen's decision to leave the field to the other two is not to be wondered at although since his arrival five or six weeks ago he has enjoyed his own share of the trade going. We wish Mr. and Mrs. VanDusen a goodly measure of success in Chesley.—Herald.

The village of Arthur boasts a police magistrate, by name O'Callaghan, who is nothing if not original in his methods of administering justice. A few days ago the P. M. was called to sit in judgement on a case where the defendant was on trial for being drunk and disorderly, committing assault, using profane language and, in general, for behaving himself in the way ordained by those who indulge "not wisely" in the flowing bowl. It was a clear case and court-room attendants were speculating on the amount of the fine when their ruminations were knocked endways by the introduction of a third option in the sentence and its acceptance by the guilty party. This is the way it reads: $10 or two months, or suspended sentence on condition he does not appear in the business section of the town for a year excepting each Wednesday from 3 to 4 p. m. Hotels are banned altogether and, with the one hour interlude, the offender of morals and law in Arthur will take what exercise and recreation he may in the solitude of that village's back streets for the next twelve months.
