KILLED BY FALLING TREE

Robert Dingwall of Hopeville was instantaneously killed by a falling tree on Tuesday of last week. In company with a hired man he was chopping in a swamp when a tree was broken off and flew backward. On account of a leg behind him, Mr. Dingwall was unable to get out of the way in time, and he was struck. His neck was broken and his shoulder crushed in. The deceased gentleman was 45 years of age and was the youngest of three brothers—Andrew living in Artemesia, James and William in Proton, and Thomas at Holstein. There is also one sister, Mrs. John Campbell of Arthur. The deceased gentleman was unmarried and owned the homestead of 150 acres and a large quantity of live stock. The funeral took place to Salem cemetery on Saturday.

Address and Presentation

On Thursday evening, Dec. 15, the home of Mr. T. R. McKenzie, Portlaw, was taken possession of by a surprise party of genuine character. About 75 of the members and adherents of the Mount Zion Methodist church filed in, until Mr. McKenzie looked as if he hardly knew whether his recent election was going to be contested, or a snow slide had shot so many of his neighbors into his door. When the company had come to order a well-filled purse was presented to Mrs. McKenzie by Mr. A. Watson, and the following address read by the pastor, Rev. W. Dinwoodie:

We, the members and adherents of the Mount Zion Methodist church, take great pleasure in expressing to you our gratitude and thankfulness for your influence and presence in our church services. Your faithfulness in attendance and readiness to assist in our church work have given you a high place in our esteem and affection. We appreciate all the more your assistance when we remember that you are members of a sister church, which proves to us your broadmindedness and liberality along religious lines, implying that we are all children of the same Heavenly Father and bretheren and sisters in Christ. Mrs. McKenzie's efficiency and faithfulness as our organist merits our warmest thanks, and as a faint expression of our appreciation of her services in that capacity we request that you accept this purse, accompanied with the wish that you may long be spared to assist in the advancement of Christ's church on earth, and when the labors of life here are ended may you have a high position in the church triumphant. Signed on behalf of the church—A. Watson, W. A. Morton.

After the presentation the company was entertained with recitations, solos, choruses and various kinds of games. The ladies then served a sumptuous repast to which all did ample justice. After singing "God be with you," all dispersed feeling they had indeed enjoyed a pleasant evening.

The Road Dropped Through

Walkerton, Ont., Jan. 17.—A curious phenomenon occurred between Teeswater and Wingham, near the village of Belgrave. A large section of the roadway sank to a depth of fifty feet, leaving a great hole one hundred feet long and many yards wide. A few miles from the spot is another large hole, at the bottom of which quicksands are perpetually swirling, as if disturbed by some unseen current below. The appearance of these two great holes, which run in a northeasterly direction toward the town of Wingham, leads geologists to the opinion that a subterranean river exists, which flows somewhere under the Bruce Peninsula and connects Lake Huron with Lake Ontario.

It is said that several kinds of fish of the smaller variety and peculiar only to Lake Huron have been found in Lake Ontario, which could not possibly have made the long journey through Lake St. Clair and Lake Erie, and therefore must have made their way through some channel unknown to man.

The flow of the Maitland River is also getting smaller and at times runs almost dry, which is probably caused by the draining away of the water by the underground river. The people in the vicinity are somewhat alarmed at this phenomenon, as the land about there is low and of a boggy nature.

The township of Turnberry is hiring men and teams, who are drawing loads of stone. The undertaking is a gigantic one, and no doubt hundreds of loads will be necessary before the roadway is properly repaired.

Institute Meeting

The Farmers and Women's Institute meetings held here on Saturday last were well attended and are considered to have been the most valuable meetings from an educational standpoint ever held here. The speakers were Mr. Moorehouse of Lambton County, who spoke in the afternoon on stock raising and in the evening on Alfalfa, two live subjects to the farmers of this district at the present time. Both addresses were practical. Mr. Moorehouse is a farmer himself, a young man, and a graduate of the Ontario Agricultural college.

The ladies meeting in the afternoon was attended by fifty members and their friends, who listened to an address from Mrs. Watts of Toronto on matters connected with the home which they describe as unusually powerfull and interesting. The evening meeting was presided over by Mr. J. R. Fawcett of Kimberley, and Mrs. Watts gave the address of the evening on "Home and home influences." This lady is qualified with an immese fund of experience to fill the position she occupies as lecturer for the Intitute and is doing a splendid work.

The address was instructive, amusing practical and pathetic, all combined, and was studded with literary gems and words of wisdom that held her hearers spellbound from start to finish. She is a pleasing and fluent speaker and her language is as pure and unadulterated as the sentiments she expresses. Those who were not present missed the rarest thing we ever had here in the form of a lecture for many a day.

Revs. McVicar and Dudgeon followed, then Mr. Moorehouse gave his talk an Alfalfa Many questions were fired at him and no doubt much valuable information was elicited by those who are interested in the subject of growing alfalfa.

Misses Lena Legate, Elsie Wright, Murray Legate and Elmer Wright gave a couple of humorous quartettes which were highly appreciated.

All the meetings were well attended and the speakers were much pleased with the interest manifested and with the attendance.

A large number of new members were secured for the Institute.

A Tragedy of the West

Albert Trent, a rancher at Tofield, Alberta, and formerly of Nottawasaga, blew the top of his head off with a shotgun recently. He leaves a widow and one child. Commenting on this case the Creemore Star says:

He left here last spring to take charge of a ranch out there belonging to his brother, and about two months ago moved on to a farm of his own. He had been negotiating for the purchase of the Martin Hrakin farm, Cornhill, and a letter went astray which caused him to think that the deal was off, and he then purchased a farm out there. He was anxious to come back to Ontario, and no doubt this preyed on his mind.

The body was brought east for interment.

Turkey Trots

Lucknow, Ont., Jan. 17.—Two farmers from north of Lucknow had the time of their lives with a flock of turkeys. The turkeys were nice, healthy birds, properly conditioned for tables, and the farmers prepared to take them to market while taking was good. They loaded them into a big wagon box, covered the box in, top, sides, and ends, and started for the market. Looking neither to right nor to left, they bowled merrily along the frozen highway. When they were about three miles on their way, however, one of them chanced to glance to the rear, and discovered that the end was out of the wagon box and the turkeys were all gone. Here and there across the snowy landscape to the distant horizon the mottled forms of the escaped birds could be seen, some of them heading for a distant barnyard, others voyaging into indefinite space, and one or two seriously contemplating going to roost in a nearby tract of woodland.

It took three hours to round up part of the birds. Some got away.

OXEN AS POLICEMEN.

Curious Methods of Caring For Spanish Fighting Bulls.

Whatever one's views may be in regard to bull fighting there is one feature of the national sport of Spain which is particularly interesting to the visitor and sightseer. The bulls for the arena are usually kept in large paddocks, wild and unfettered, for, as Sir Albert Rollit, who has visited one of these paddocks near Seville, says, "The animals know nothing of ropes or chains during lifetime."

It is a dangerous business, however, entering these paddocks. Sir Albert stood some fifty paces from the bulls and in his interesting letter describing the scene, published in Country Life, says, "We entered with our lives in our hands."

The bulls, however, are kept in order by a cordon of tame oxen, which, if a bull attempts to escape, at once prevents it doing so, acting skillfully and effectively as a species of bovine police. "The night before the spectacle in the bull ring at Seville," to quote Sir Albert, "the bulls are driven, still quite at large, by picadors along the boulevards, intermixed with the oxen and restrained only by them. On my asking if there must not be danger to the public using the boulevard, the reply was that occasionally a bull might hide in the bushes of the central gardens and fall foul of a workman in the morning, but such incidents did not seem to be regarded as matters of much importance compared with the popularity of the national amusement. At times many of the aristocracy and others of both sexes ride on horseback in advance of the bulls, which is regarded as fine, but rather dangerous sport.

"When at or near midnight the bulls thus enter the bull ring, the scene is one of great turmoil, noise and excitement. In rush the driven animals, bulls and oxen, helter skelter, a motley crowd of men and beasts, a veritable pandemonium. The last scene is most interesting of all. Stables with open doors encompass the arena, in front of each of which is a sliding door and at the back a lighted lantern. These lanterns the bull makes for one after another, smashing them and extinguishing the lights, and as each light is observed by an attendant to be put out, he slips down the door of the stable and the bull is thus encaged and ready for the Spanish holiday of the morrow. Successively the light disappear, and when all are out and the doors of the stables closed the police oxen are driven out of the bull ring to return to their more peaceful paddocks and to render similar service to other bulls and other devotees of the bull ring."

Chloroform and Stains.

Paint, grease or other stains can be removed from colored garments or from materials the colors of which are not fast by the use of chemically pure chloroform. Take the garment into the open air and lay it upon a flat surface with a piece of clean white blotting paper or absorbent cloth under the spot. Then pour on a few drops of the chloroform and pass through the stain. Do not rub hard and be sure the chloroform is chemically pure. The spot will come out readily and without injury to fabric or color. This treatment has proved efficacious where gasoline, benzine, naphtha and other cleaners have entirely failed.

The Sun From a Balloon.

At the height of two miles the sun shines with a fierce intensity unknown below, where the dust and the denser air scatters the rays, which, thus diffused, lose their intensity while illumining every nook and corner of our houses. At heights exceeding five miles this diffused light is mostly gone, and the sun shines a glowing ball, sharply outlined in a sky of which the blue is so dark as to approach blackness. At the outer limits of the atmosphere the sun would appear a brilliant star of massive size among other stars, and if one stepped from its burning rays into shadow he would enter Egyptian darkness.

Watering the Garden.

If the garden needs water badly (few regularly cultivated ones do) do not sprinkle the surface, as this generally does more harm than good. Take a hoe and open a trench alongside each row or around each hill of plants, pour water therein, and when it has soaked away fill up the trenches with dry soil. An ordinary sprinkling of the surface does not reach the roots, and the sun soon evaporates the water, bakes a crust on the soil, and the garden consequently is in worse condition than before. If you must sprinkle, do it thoroughly in the evening and cultivate the soil the next morning.

Steer For a Goal.

Are you just drifting along, or have you a real ambition? The man who works because he must, with no higher purpose than to live from day to day, is little better than a machine. Work for something beyond your work, if it's only to build a chicken coop or own your own home, and you have become a human being. The world has plenty of machines. They all go to the scrap heap.

Sizing Up the Situation.

"So seh was untrue to the man she was engaged to?"

"Yes. You see, he drinks, smokes and gambles."

"Oh, I see. She was too good to be true."

A Gentle Hint.

"Life at best is but a gloomy prison," said the moralizing bachelor.

"So much the worse for men who deliberately choose solitary confinement," remarked the girl who had her trap set.

The Vote That Counted.

"And what was your family's decision?"

"Practically unanimous in my favor," answered the young lawyer, "mother voting aye and father dissenting."

The foolishness or bad management of the housewife has had a great deal to do with the rise in the cost of living. As for instance, formerly the housewife was content with good old fashioned oatmeal for the making of the porridge for herself and family. This oatmeal cost four or five cents a pound, while to-day the same housewife is buying all the highfaluting high priced breakfast foods that she can get hold of at 25 cents a pound. Instead of the boys and girls of to-day eating good, health giving and hunger satisfying oatmeal porridge for breakfast, they are eating a lot of dried up, crisp, flat, pasteurized, airified, petrified, ossified remains of once useful, but now without either strength or substance, which has been bought by their mothers at about twenty-five cents a pound.—Ex.
