Tragedy In The Court Room

Roger McGill Dies While Delivering Judgment.

A terribly tragic death occurred in the court room here on Friday morning last when the adjourned liquor case against James Radley was being tried before Magistrates R. McGill and James McMullen. The latter was for conviction but his fellow-magistrate disagreed with him and was in the act of saying that the case, in his opinion, should never have been brought, when, with a quiver, his head fell over and he never spoke again. Those near him laid him down and a doctor was quickly summoned, but in a very few moments the spirit had departed.

The deceased gentleman was born in King township 60 years ago. He took up the business of telegraph operator in Toronto and later held a situation on the Grand Trunk railway. Thirty one years ago he took the position of agent on the C. P. R. here, which he held for something like 21 years, when he retired from active service. He had never married and was a boarder at McLachlan's hotel. He was a member of Prince Arthur Lodge, A. F. and A. M., and acted as township auditor, also doing conveyancing and had held the position of magistrate for the past five or six years. He was a man of rather retiring disposition and highly respected by everybody. His terribly sudden departure is deplored by a large circle of friends. There are three brothers and one sister. The brothers, we believe are all railway men.

The remains were taken to Bunt's undertaking rooms and the family communicated with.

The brothers of the deceased came up from Toronto Friday evening and took the remains away on the evening train for interment at King City.

Williams officiated, using the beautiful ring service in full. Mr. and Mrs. Irwin will reside in Markdale where Mr. Irwin is in business. The bride and groom have many friends who wish them bon voyage on the sea of life. —Herald.

Shelburne

A man named Gibson of Dufferin county had a horse killed by lightning some time ago. It was insured in the Peel and Maryboro Insurance Company. The company refused to pay, claiming that the animal died from other causes. Dr. G. L. Morgan of Shelburne was a witness at the trial at Guelph for the plaintiff which took place a few days ago. The jury awarded Mr. Gibson $150 and costs.

On Sunday morning last Wm. Ritchie, a retired farmer of Amaranth township, who lived in Orangeville, was found dead on the floor of his bedroom in his boarding-house at the home of Mrs. E. French, on East Broadway. He was eighty-five years of age. Dr. James Henry opened an inquest in the town hall on Sunday afternoon. The autopsy of Dr. T. H. Henry showed that death was due to rupture of the heart, a verdict was rendered accordingly.—Free Press.

At Mr. A. E. Fleming's barn raising near Kilsyth on Thursday, Mr. David Waddell had the misfortunate to have a pike pole driven through his hand. The men were raising the second bent, and when sticking the pike into the bent, stuck it through Mr. Waddell's left hand, pinning it to the beam. The injured man was brought to Owen Sound and Dr. Rutherford dressed the injury. While the wound is painful, no serious result is anticipated.

Durham

The remains of Donald McDonald, of Bentinck, who disappeared from his home early last November were found on Saturday last, and interment took place in Durham cemetery on Monday. Mr. McDonald left his home shortly after the dinner hour on the day of his disappearance, and despite numerous search parties, nothing was seen or heard of him since until last Saturday. It was the family dog that gave the clue, the animal coming home with the dead man's shoe, in which was encased what remained of his foot. The family recognized the shoe, and another search party was organized, which found the dead man's bones in a swamp about 75 yards from the barn. The bones of the deceased were found in different places, indicating that dogs, or other animals, must have disturbed them. A tin cup found near the remains, started a rumor of suicide, but this was dispelled Monday morning at the inquest, when evidence was taken showing that the cup had always been there being used by the workers in the fields in securing drinking water from a spring near by. The finding of the remains will be a relief to the sorrowing family, as the deceased's complete disappearance had caused them untold anxiety and worry. At the inquest the coroner, Dr. Gun of Durham, found a verdict of death from natural causes.—Chronicle.

Hydro on the Farm

The hydro power is on the farm to stay. There are more than 50 electric farms in the county of Oxford alone. The development of power for the farm is one of the most interesting phases of the whole great project in public ownership. The farmer is milking his cows, filling his silo, cutting his grain grinding his roots, pumping water and doing other things with power from Niagara Falls. He is illuminating his barns and buildings his farmyard and his house. And his wife is churning, sweeping, washing and ironing with it.

The time is not far distant when electric power will be within the reach of every farm home in Ontario. More than that, the time is coming quickly when hydro-electric railway will be built in all directions, giving the people cheap and rapid tranportation.—London Free Press.

Rev Geo. Honey is expected to be on the circuit next Sabbath.

Our Sunday school picnic was held on the church grounds on Thursday afternoon and evening was a decided success, both financially and socially. In the afternoon a friendly game of baseball was played between Vandeleur and the home team, resulting in a victory for the visitors, who thus won the five dollar prize given by the school. Vandeleur has a strong, experienced team, but our boys, who are only beginners, and know they don't nearly come up to the mark, enjoy these games for the social practice. Tea was served, after which a lengthy program was given by the children. The proceeds amounted to about $65.

Markdale

Harry Noble, who underwent an operation for appendicitis, is making favorable progress towards recovery and is expected home from the Owen Sound hospital soon.

In the terrible mine disaster at Hillcrest, Alberta, last week, when nearly 200 miners were entombed, Mr. Will Gallamore, brother of Mr. Thos. Gallamore, of Markdale, was one of the victims. He was about 40 years of age.

While out driving one evening last week Mrs. J. E. Marsh and Mrs. J. A. MacArthur had a narrow escape from serious injury. They were turning the corner at Cheeseville when an automobile came in sight and quick as a flash the horse turned completely around on the road, upsetting the buggy and pitching the ladies out, Mrs. Marsh alighting on a pile of stones and Mrs. MacArthur in the ditch. Strange to say neither of the ladies were injured to any extent, and consider their escape miraculous. The horse ran to the top of the hill on route to Markdale, when it was captured by a pedestrian. The damage to the buggy was slight.—Standard.
