Mr. Bert Magee and family arrived back from the West for good last week. Mr. Magee says the creps in Southern Alberta and Saskatchewan are very poor. In some places, he says, they are burned up so badly as to not be worth cutting. Manitoba has a fair crop.

Dr. E. K. Richardson and bride, of Toronto, spent Sunday with the former's parents here. The Dr. is a captain in the Second Brigade of Canadian Field Artillery, and for the past week has been on active duty. He expected to leave with his brigade for Val Cartier on Tuesday evening this week. His brigade has the same status as regulars.

Inspector Beckett was at Meaford recently prosecuting a charge against the Reinhardt Brewing Co., of Toronto, of soliciting orders through an agent in a Local Option municipality. Mr. John Birnie, of Collingwood, appeared for the defendants, who were found guilty and ordered to pay a fine of $200.00 and costs. The case arose out of the recent conviction of one Gibbons, who was held to have acted as an agent for the Company in Meaford.

Mr. Joseph Cairns of Ceylon died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. McLachlan, on Saturday last. Mr. Cairns kept hotel at Ceylon for many years, and was well and favorably known. Thornbury vs. Kimberley, Ravenna vs. Blantyre, and a prize of ten dollars will be given the winners to play off. There are also races for men, women, boys and girls, and the afternoon will be a memorable one. See bills for full particulars.

On Friday last a teamster from Toronto got fired at the Hyland works, Eugenia. On his way out he went to Cairn's store and made a three-dollar purchase, and ordered a bag of salt to be taken over to the works for him at night. He then started for Flesherton, en route for Toronto. Jack Cairns had his eye on the gent. however, and went over to the works where he discovered the condition of affairs. He telephoned a constable and when Mr. Smart Aleck reached here he was collared. There was not sufficient money in his pantaloons to liquidate the debt and his horses and wagon were therefore impounded at the Munshaw House.

The Flesherton band went to Markdale Friday last to give the thirteen volunteers who have enlisted for the war a royal send off. The twelve left for Owen Sound to join there. The farewell was quite touching. The band played a number of pieces, such as "The red, white and blue," "Just before the battle, mother," "Some day we'll wander back again," the National Anthem and "God be with you till we meet again." There were many wet eyes in the crowd as the men entrained. The men who enlisted were largely from Berkeley and vicinity. Some may not be accepted when the crucial test comes at headquarters, therefore the names of those who will actually go to the war cannot be given.

Richardson--Johnston

Dr. E K. Richardson of Toronto was married in Olivet Church of the New Jerusalem, Elm Grove Avenue, Toronto, on Saturday last, to Miss Norma Florence Johnston, by the pastor, Rev. J. Bowers. The bride was modestly attired and the groom, who is a captain in the 2nd brigade Canadian Field Artillery, wore his full dress uniform. This happy event was hastened by the fact that the Dr. is called to go away with his battery. The news was a complete surprise to the Dr's many friends here, who, however hope for his safe return and long years of happiness. The bride is one of Toronto's most talented lady pianists. The Advance joins with many others in wishing the happy couple a happy reunion and all the joys that life can bring.

Hydro-Electric Surveyors Are Here Again

Those pessimistic individuals who prophesied that we would hear no more of the hydro-electric railway survey had their dreams rudely shattered on Friday evening when a party of eight surveyors dropped into town to begin the survey of a line from Flesherton to Collingwood by way of Maxwell and Feversham.

The junction with the previously surveyed line will be just south of the village at the rear of S. Irwin's farm. The survey crosses a corner of R. Bentham's farm and passes over the gravel road a few rods from the corporation limits, then passing out through C. Irwin's farm to the northeast.

Address and Presentation

A pleasant event occurred on the evening of Friday, Aug. 12, when members of the Baptist church gathered at the home of Mrs. R. H. Wright on the eve of the departure of her daughter, Elsie, for Model at Hanover, who has acted as organist of the church for the past two years, when they presented her with the following address and a well-filled purse, after which luncheon was served and the friends departed to their several homes.

To Miss Elsie Wright, our efficient and faithful organist :—The members of our church assembled here and those not assembled wish to do you honor, not with gold and silver, not with the workmanship of man's hand, not even with the finer or more exquisite ornament of a lady's hand ; but with hearts overflowing with sweet incense and gratitude for your long and faithful service ; with hearts full of lotty appreciation of your noble girlhood ; with hearts beating strong and full because of your talents and loyalty ; with hearts confident and unafraid, as we wish you God speed into a larger sphere of life, for we know that your high ideals of life, your love to God, your service to humanity, will in the future, as it has in the past, carry you through all the trying ordeals, all the sinful pleasures of the world, all the true and noble duties of life, until you receive the victor's crown and the Master's "well done." Kindly accept this small token as the casket in which we convey our honor and appreciation to you. May your life be long and full of the best things. May the aroma of your life go out and bless and help others as it has blessed and helped us, and when the final roll is answered may it be said of you, as it was said to one of old, "She did what she could," for it is the highest honor given to men or angels. Signed on behalf of the church—R. C. Kerr, J. N. Richardson.

Tragic Death at Orangeville

A sad and very lamentable death occurred on Tuesday night or early Wednesday morning about three miles west of the town. Railroad men going west on the early morning freight saw a body suspended from a beech tree a short distance south of the track, just one mile this side of Fraxa Junction. On arrival at the junction they reported the discovery to the station master, Mr. Brawley, who immediately secured help and proceeded to the scene of the tragedy, which was on the farm occupied by Mr. Charles Hughson. Here they found the body of Louis Wallace May, a young man, 23 years of age, a native of Orangeville and an employee in the yards of the C.P.R., or more strictly speaking, a contractor for filling engines with coal. The body was cold in death, and the men came to town and notified the constable and friends, who went out and brought the body to Mr. Hulse's undertaking establishment. The event caused a shock in the community, as the young man was a steady worker and an exceptionally quiet and civil citizen.

No reason can be given for the apparent suicide further than that the man had been fined, a day or two before, on an alleged charge of being the worse of liquor. Deceased had strenuously denied the charge to personal friends, but had pleaded guilty rather, he alleged, than introduce and expose a friend whose position would likely be lost if publicity were given the facts. Time was given him to pay the fine and no pressure whatever was used in the case, but despite this he worried very much and very unnecessarily over the matter, and this may have been the deciding factor in the awfully tragic finality.

To his parents, deceased appeared to be in his customary good health and spirits. On Tuesday night he went home and retired as usual, but got up some time before 4 o'clock in the morning and going out, without hat, coat or boots, walked the three miles up the track, and there, using barbed wire, accomplished his terrible purpose. He carried with him from home an axe and a large pair of scissors.
