Some excitement was created in town on Friday afternoon last, when the word came up town that Nuhn's woollen mill was on fire. Onion growing in this district is not indulged in by many farmers as a general crop, in fact we only know of one—Mr. Joseph Buchanan of the Meaford Road—who makes a business of growing onions. He has certainly made a success of it, and year after year supplies the markets in this district with the odoriferous vegetable. He has just harvested his bulbs for this year and the yield gives some idea of the profits to be secured from this crop when grown intelligently. Mr. Buchanan harvested eight tons of onions off three quarters of an acre, for which he receives a little better than two cents per pound. Figure it out and find what that three quarters of an acre was worth. At two cents per pound it would be worth $320. What other farm crop pays as well as that?
