There is a probability that Canada has borne a larger share in the success of the allies in Europe, than any person is aware of, although her sons have not yet appeared on the fighting line. We were reminded the other day that a few years ago the Russian government offered a large prize for the best treatise on certain kinds of military tactics. This prize was won by Col. Geo, T. Denison of Toronto in competition with the world. The brilliant work of the Russian army in Poland and Galicia prove that something has enhanced their fighting qualities, since the Japanese war, and it is at least possible that their inspiration has largely come through the work by a Canadian military man, and for which they paid a handsome price. It would be a matter of pride to know this, and we believe there is little doubt of it.

The Toronto World has recently been publishing some powerful articles on Toronto University affairs and has opened the eyes of the country to some peculiar conditions there. The World charges that three German professors on the staff are sympathizers with the fatherland and hope for the defeat of the allies, and it has for some time been demanding their dismissal. The board of governors have seen fit, instead of complying with the demand, to give these foreigners leave of absence with full pay! We believe the country almost to a man will back the World in its demand and censure the board of directors for their weak-kneed attitude in the matter. The World is very much right when it says: "President Falconer and Sir Edmund Walker have done a grevious wrong to the youth of Canada in consenting to any attempt to compromise with downright abhorrence of the German crime. The stones of Louvain rise in judgment against them. Perhaps we have lost the hearts of men, and it is right to compromise and pander to the sublimer wickedness and injustices of the world. But we cannot believe that the people o Ontario are so apathetic as to let this thing pass. Samuel compromised with the unclean thing and the power passed from him. We need an Elijah to blast the infamy of our false phophets. Our amiable Samuels merely compromise with them and pay them to prophesy softly."

Grafonolas Booming

The Advance is running a series of advertisements for the Columbia Graphophone Company, which is a large manufacturing establishment in Toronto. The work is done by Canadian workmen with Canadian material and is particularly worthy of patronage on that score, as well as on the actual merit of the instruments turned out. The factory is exceedingly busy at the present time, and it is found difficult to keep up with the orders in some lines. There is no doubt that with the vastly improved instruments of today this form of entertainment is becoming very popular throughout the world. To bear out one of the statements made above we quote the following telegram sent to the factory by their wholesalers, the Musical Supply Co.: "Ontario business booming, Music Supply Company's advertising campaign wonderfully successful. They are completely sold out of $78.00 Patricia Grafonolas, and other models are running short also. You must make big shipments at once, or they will have to call their travellers off the road, and reduce advertising."

Seed Growers' Association

The Tenth Annual Report of the Canadian Seed Growers' Association, which is now being distributed, contains the names of the officers and members of the Association, together with a classified list of those who are endeavouring to qualify for membership There were 263 individual applications for membership during the year, while 54 seed centres having a membership of 414, were established. The total number of growers now actively affiliated with the Association is 1054.

The Director's report shows that during the year 1913-1914 a line of action was initated which bids fair to revolutionize the whole seed growing business and place it on an infinitely higher level. This action manifested itself in the establishing of what is known as "Seed Growing Centres." Up to this time those seed growers who were operating as members of the Assocation were widely scattered, rendering it impracticable to co-operate in any way which might lessen the work of each and at the same time make it easier to supply large quantities of "Registered" seed at given points. The Department of Agriculture in different Provinces assisted in the movement. Ontario, through her widely-spread 'District Representative' system, established over forty centres. The remaining centres were distributed over the other Provinces.

Reference is made to a change in the Constitution making it possible to have all regulary organized seed centres accepted as members of the Association. Heretofore. only individuals could become members. Further latitude was also granted in allowing a Centre to choose one or two of their number to produce the Elite Stock seed for propagation by the Centre instead of requiring each individual grower to produce his own Stock Seed.

The papers and addresses printed n the report constitute a valuable contribution to the literature on Seed improvement. They deal with such subjects as: "The Production of Seed of Alfalfa in Canada", "The Rural School and Seed Improvement", "Field Crop Competitions", "Soil Management in Relation to Yield and Quality in Seed", Difficulties in Pure Seed Propagation", "Potato Diseases" and "The Seed Centre as a Basis of Supply of Registered Seed."

Copies of this report are available at the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Mr. J. F. McArthur and Mr. George Gregg, Clifford, were found on Monday afternoon in the latter's home, both dead, apparently from inhalation of gas, as the stove doors were found open. Mr Gregg, being an elderley man and in failing health of late, was being looked after by his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. McArthur, the former's wife being absent for a few days on a visit. No stir was noticed around the home and when the neighbours called and could get no response, the door was forced in. The ghastly sight which they witnessed was Mr. and Mrs. McArthur in bed, the former dead and the latter almost beyond aid. Upstairs Mr. Gregg was found in his room partly lying on his bed with the mattress burning. His face and breast were badly blackened from the smoke, while his hands were also burned. It is quite evident from the position of Mr. Gregg that he had awakened, and being in a dazed condition, attempted to light a lamp, as it was found broken in his room, and not being able to do so he fell on his bed, which was smouldering when found.
