ASSESS IN SUMMER

(Chesley Enterprise)

One of our Sullivan readers was in the other day, and commented on the proposal that the assessing be done during the summer, instead of the late winter. He said the tendency for years has been to "soak" the farmer who tries to run his place well, and thought that the latest move was in the same direction. If the assessing is done in the summer, when crops are growing, the assessor is going to see the farmer who really makes a job of farming, who hauls out the manure and fertilizer, builds up the soil, eradicates weeds, has good seed, and is going to be penalized over the lazy farmer who lets everything go to rack and ruin. Even the farmer who paints up and fixes up his house and buildings, plants trees and flowers, has a neat driveway, is going to be penalized because he has a better-looking place, which would sell for more than a place that is down-at-the-heel and therefore he will be assessed higher and will have to pay more taxes. Our friend didn't care much when the assessing was done, but he thought it a wrong system that the farmer who really makes a job of farming should be penalized with a higher assessment than the lazy, careless or indifferent farmer. Also that the chaps who keep a hundred acre farm in grass should not have an unfair tax advantage over the chaps who spend some time developing their hundred acres to raise good crops. We submit this thought to Reeve Carson and his colleagues.

EMPLOYERS REQUIRED TO CHECK MALE EMPLOYEES

Hon. Humphrey Mitchell, Minister of Labor, announces that recently an Order in Council was passed, authorizing the Minister of Labor to issue an order which will require all employers of male workers to examine the standing of employees of military call-up age, to make sure that they have complied with National Selective Service Mobilization regulations.

The term "employer" will include Dominion, Provincial and Municipal Governments, as well as private businesses, and also will include farmers, even where the employee is a son or other relative of the farmer.

The order of the Minister, provided for under the Order in Council, will, it is anticipated, be issued in the couse of a few weeks, when the necessary arrangements have been completed to assist employers in making the necessary survey. The order will set forth the dates between which employers are to check on their employees.

It is the hope that through this survey any man who may be delinquent in regard to the military call-up, will be located, so that their cases may be dealth with.

The Labor Minister points out that no action on the part of employers is necessary until the formal order is issued — although male employees should in the meantime provide themselves with copies of any documents they need to prove that they have not failed to comply with Mobilization Regulations. A warning in this regard was issued by the Department of Labor some time age to male persons in employment.

As Fifth Cross The Volturno - Germans Prisoners Row Themselves Back

During the hours of darkness on October 14-15, 1943, the Fifth Army launched its big attack on the Volturno River. Soon several bridgeheads were in Allied hands and armor began to make the river crossing. Picture made in the early morning light just after the launching of the attack on the Volturno shows: "Paddling their own canoe." First German prisoners captured helping to ferry themselves to the southern bank of the river, where they were interrogated by their captors.
