ROCK MILLS

The Mill started on Monday with several new hands on the job this year.

Seeding operations are progressing favorably and many acres have already been sown. Rain is much needed in this area to start the grass growing, as many farmers are anxious to get their cattle out to pasture as feed is getting scarce.

AN ARRESTING IDEA

There is a man in Windsor, Ontario with an idea worth examining. He envisages his purchase of Victory Bonds as his personal support of his young nephew now serving in Italy.

Explaining his plan to a friend the other day, he said that children were all girls. So he chose his sister's son as his direct war interest.

"It's funny how it works." he said. "When I bought bonds in the first and second loans, I measured my purchases by figuring out how much I could comfortably afford. But since I have begun to think of my bond purchases as my backing of this particular lad, I find myself thinking in terms of what he needs instead of what I can afford."

If this idea were adopted generally throughout Canada for the next campaign, bond sales might rise in startling fashion.

REMOVE STAIN

Before you attempt to remove any stain, know the kind of material to be treated. Different kinds of fabrics react differently to the various reagents. A stain remover, for example, that will work successfully on cotton may ruin wool or rayon.

For cotton and linen materials, use only mild acids and apply a weak alkali, such as ammonia water or baking soda to neutralize the action of the acid. Use only weak alkalies and rinse the material in water to remove the alkali.
