Eugenia Paragraphs

The late Mrs. Eliza Woodburn whose death was announced last week, was born in Co. Antrim, Ireland, and left there in 1865 for Philadelphia. There she married James Woodburn and came to Eugenia in 1886 and bought a home, where they lived until the death of Mr. Woodburn in 1911. She then sold her home to her nephew, Robert Purvis, and boarded in Eugenia and Toronto until her death while on a visit with her niece, Mrs. Fred Jamieson, on July 13, at the age of 79 years, her death being caused by acute indigestion. All of her family that survive her is one sister, Mrs. Wm. Purvis, who lives with her son in Eugenia. The funeral took place on Thursday to Salem cemetery. The floral offerings were a beautiful spray of carnations from the Presbyterian congregation and cross of roses from the Ladies' Aid; also beautiful wreaths from Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Walker and Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Carruthers, showing the high esteem in which she was held in the church, of which she was a faithful member since coming to Eugenia. Walkerton

Herbert Strong, a crazy man from Lions Head, was brought to the Walkerton jail on Tuesday to await removal to the asylum. He is said to have gone violently insane and was too dangerous to be allowed at large. He is about 31 years of age and has a wife and family.

John Himmelspach, a Hanover bartender, Fred Gibbons, an hotel porter, and Reuben Fink, caretaker of the Hanover house boat, were each fined $300 and costs at Walkerton on Saturday for running what the law believes is a club house on the Saugeen river below Hanover.

John Cassidy of Chepstow and Andrew Hanmore of Cargill, who were recently fined $20 and costs each, or a total levy of about $28.75 apiece, on the charge of travelling stallions without having their horses properly enrolled with the government, had their fines rescinded on Saturday last and were dismissed on each paying $8.75 costs, it being learned that they did not travel their horses or actually carry on a business of this kind. The charge against Henry Ernst was also similarly treated, he being allowed off on paying the court costs on the grounds that, although his stallion was duly enrolled, a mistake had been made in the spelling of its name.

Notwithstanding the repeated calls for recruits, Walkerton streets are being disgraced with numerous able bodied loafers black-snaking in the sun, and apparently as deaf to their country's call as an Egyptian mummy in a dime museum. Week in and week out the same gallery of faces are on exhibition on the sleepy side of the street, and as there is such an urgent call for men, and no excuse at all for such wholesale idleness amongst the young, able-bodied fellows here, the authorities should wake up and lay charges of vagrancy against these continual loafers, and either compel them to enlist for the front or betake themselves to some other clime, as they are a positive disgrace to Walkerton and an eye-sore to every one who realizes the danger that the empire is in and the use this bunch of forget-me-nots might be in the trenches. Instead of being star boarders on their parents they might be stout defenders of their country.—Herald and Times.

Recruiting Slow

Ten days after the call has been issued for 32 volunteers for overseas service by the 31st Regiment, twelve recruits have been passed as physically fit and accepted. While this response is gratifying in view of the slowness of recruiting all over, still at the same rate it will take nearly a month to complete the quota. It is desired to have the quota from the 31st regiment complete by the end of this week, and in order to accomplish this, recruits will have to come out. If Grey county does not furnish its quota within a reasonable time, it will be the privilege of some other section of the province to make up the deficiency. Up to now our county has not failed to supply all and even more than the number of recruits for which she has been asked. Many other sections of Ontario have found it necessary to go to the larger centres, principally Toronto, to gather recruits. Do the people of Grey want their county classed among these? The young men are here and they can still be spared. There are still plenty to carry on the work on the farms and in other industries, as is testified by the number of idle men to be seen on the streets and in the pool rooms of the towns. Let Grey continue to be one of the districts that can always be counted on to furnish its proportion of the men required. If the quota is filled up quickly the officer commanding the 31st regiment has instructions not to stop recruiting, but to take on all who offer themselves and are found fit. Those men already enlisted are hard at work under Lieut. H. C. Young of Hanover, who is going over seas with them. Enlisting is still going on at the armories in Owen Sound, in Meaford, Hanover, Markdale and Clarksburg.
