The Province of Saskatchewan has "gone dry"; and, as a consequence, officers have been appointed to see that the law is enforced. Mr. David Clayton, the youngest son of Mrs. Wm. Clayton of this place, of Lang, has been appointed District Magistrate, and will try al cases, where there has been an infringement of the law. Mr. Clayton recently sent two German spies to gaol, where they can not stir up trouble for the government.

The Toronto papers not long ago counselled the public to be saving of their pennies in this time of stress, and give their spare cash to the patriotic fund. Two weeks ago we asked Inspector Huff for an explanation of the delay in announcing the Entrance examination results. We also sent Mr. Huff a marked copy of The Advance which contained the article. So far there has been no reply. Surely the authorities do not intend to ignore a just request of this nature. The public are entitled to an explanation.

The water was let on the Eugenia pipe line last week and everything was found to be satisfactory. The Bell Telephone Company has August decided to keep open all the positions vacated by employees, who became members of the militia, and to look after their families. One half of the regular pay was paid to their beneficiaries. One hundred and fifty-four employees have enlisted and the sum of $21,651 has been paid from August, 1914, to June, 1915. This certainly is a loyal action on the part of the Bell Telephone Company.

Victoria Corners

When a fad is once started one never knows where it will end. We wish to congratulate Flesherton on its oil well, but we have gone opposition to you by producing a lye well. Anyone wishing to make soft soap will take their kettles to the grounds of the school house at Victoria Corners where they can get them filled with Lye ready for boiling. The spot selected for the new well which was dug there recently was chosen just where the wood ashes had been thrown on the ground for years. The soakage produces lye in the new well.

Letters From The Boys In Khaki

The following very interesting letter has been received by his brother, Bert, from Mr. Wells Whittaker, who has been attached to No. 5 stationary hospital, C. E. F., London, England, under date of July 14:

We are still at Shorncliffe, but may leave for the Dardanelles any time. Our boys are all fine except one, who is in the hospital, but he will soon be with us again. The hospital is situated on an exceptionally high tract of land, and it is well for us, otherwise we would find ourselves floating into the ravine, as the weather has been very showery. I much prefer the climate of Ontario. It is not nearly so changeable. We have over four hundred patients at present, and that makes so much admitting and discharging that I assure you our crowd is kept busy. The commanding officer has an auto, also Captain Paul. There are three saddle horses and the newsboy has a bicycle, so you see we have some means of transportation. At first we had only accommodation for 240 patients, consequently 100 were transferred to Newcastle. There was an escort sent along, and I happened to be "Lucky Jim." I thought when I was so far north it would be a shame to miss seeing Edinburgh, so I asked for a few days' furlough, which was granted. After spending the night in Newcastle I wended my way to Edinburgh.

Newcastle is quite a large city. I did not spend much time there except to go down to the Tyne, engaged a ferry and by crossing the river I was able to observe the great man-of-war "Canada." It is the largest British gunboat on the water at present, and is going to the Dardanelles to relieve the "Queen Elizabeth."

Edinburgh is one of the most beautiful cities I have ever seen. I visited many places of interest there, such as Holyrood Palace, art galleries, museum, university buildings and the great old castle which is so strongly fortified. It was in this castle Mary Queen of Scots lived, and James II. was born. I might enumerate many other places of interest but I have not the time. I took a pullman and went to see the great bridge, four miles long, across the Frith of Forth. It was some sight. There were about sixty war ships lying in the river below the bridge, entirely closed with mines. On this particular trip I had a very competent guide and enjoyed the outing very much. Not being content to return from Edinburgh, I went to Glasgow. It is not nearly so beautiful a city as Edinburgh, but far more business like, and is almost as crowded as Toronto at exhibition time. While there I went to see the dry dock and harbor, which is 31 miles long. I crossed the Clyde river. While there a large boat arrived from India. The crew consisted of natives from Calcutta. I spent some time looking over the machine guns, torpedo boats, etc. And last, but not least, I must mention those Highland lassies. They are rare good lookers, fair complexioned with dark hair.

To day there was a muster parade of all the troops, 25,000. To-morrow we are going to be inspected by Premier Borden and Colonel Sam Hughes. You can imagine how much we enjoy this, standing for about four hours to have someone merely glance at you.

The fighting is not so strenuous lately. We seem quite safe here, although we are only forty miles from the trenches. I see many of the soldiers from the front and believe me, their nerves are badly shaken.

I will close now, hoping you are all well. I would like to drop in and have one meal at least. I am getting tired of bully beef, as we call it. Give my best to all inquiring friends.

—R. WELLS WHITTAKER.
