The Paper From His Old Home Town

Somebody who failed to add his name ent The Advance the following verses last week. As they are not original the name is unimportant, however:

When the even' shade is fallin' at the endin' of the day,
An' a feller rests from labor smoking at his pipe of clay,
There's nothing does him so much good, be fortune up or down,
As the little country paper from his ol' home town.

It ain't a thing o' beauty, an' its print ain't always c'ean,
But it straightens out his temper when a feller's feeling mean ;
It takes the wrinkles off his face an' brushes off the frown,
That little country paper from his ol' home town.

It tel's of all the parties an' the balls of Pump'kin Row,
'Bout who spent Sunday with his girl, an' how the crops 'll grow,
How it keeps a feller posted 'bout who's up and who is down,
That little country paper from his ol' home town.

Now, I like to read the dailies an' the story papers, too,
An' at times the yaller novels an' some other trash—don't you ?
But when I want some reading that will brush away a frown,
I want that little paper from my ol' home town.

From one who missed the paper this week.

Woman's National Anthem

The following letter came to a man who does not care to have his name published but for whom we can vouch. It seems to us the women of Canada would be glad to sing this Women's National Anthem and we publish it herewith:

Dear ——————

While in London recently I came in touch with a little incident which I think will interest you.

I attended one day at noon a recruiting in front of the Mansion House. A great crowd of men and women listened to the recruiting sergeants, all of whom had "done their bit" at the front.

A lady with a magnificent voice sang patriotic songs which perhaps was more effective than the speeches of the recruiting sergeants. At the close of the meeting it was announced that after singing "The King" the lady would sing "The Women's National Anthem."

Then in splendid voice she sang:

"God save our splendid men
Send them safe home again,
God save our men.
Keep them victorious,
Patient and chivalous,
They are so dear to us.
God save our men."

As she sang every man stood, uncovered and with bowed head, and there were not many dry eyes.

I think it would be a good thing if the women of Canada would learn to sing this as "The British Women's National Anthem" for surely it is the prayer of every loyal British woman.

After the meeting I went up to the singer, handed her my card and asked her for the words she had just sung. When she saw that I was from Montreal she said, "Oh, I sang in Montreal and will be glad to send the words to the women of Canada."

She wrote them on the back of the blue envelope which contained my passport

Yours Very Truly
