JAPS LOST FACE— AND ARMS, TOO

Demobilization of 7,000,000 Jap troops, accomplished recently with unprecedented speed by General MacArthur's forces, has necessitated collection and tabulation of enormous stores of enemy weapons, as illustrated in photos above. At upper left, Jap officer assists an American in checking off airplanes at Utsunomiya airfield. Propellers have been removed as provided in surrender terms. At top right, Lt. Charles Dorick of McKeesport, Pa., prepares to inspect one of thousands of rifles displayed in racks at Utsunomiya arsenal. The GI at lower left obviously enjoys carrying to his outfit's trophy room an armload of ornate samurai swords, the symbols of Jap militarism. At lower right, an officer from a special U. S. ordnance unit lists some of the captured field pieces.

The "Quonset 24" utility building of many war uses has now been converted to the ways of peace, and especially for services on the farm. The packaged, easy-to-erect all-metal structure, shown above, manufactured at the Great Lakes Steel Corporation's Detroit plant, is described as ideal for farm tools, implements and vehicles or, with open front, as a barn for farm animals.

MOVE OVER, SOLDIER—THE FLEET'S IN!

Soldiers take a back seat in New York this week, as gobs arriving with the fleet take over. This GI in Central Park does the rowing, while his buddy in bell-bottom trousers entertains the girls—count 'em.
