Priceville Jottings

Held over last week.

The cold weather of late has allowed the spring freshet to go down the Saugeen gradually, so there is no danger of the mill dams or bridges being damaged this year.

There has been a number of changes of residence, and also ownership of property, around the village this spring, A. McDougall of north-east Egremont, rented his farm and has moved to the Cross House on Town Line street, and James McDougal has purchased the McLachlan property at the old cemetery corner ; Mr. and Mrs. F. Frook of the 19th Proton, have moved to the farm purchased from T. A. Ferguson on the east side of the village and the latter has moved to the Scott house near the new bridge, and we hear of others coming to the village in the near future.

A great quantity of chop has been coming to the mill here and the sawmill had to do considerable work at night.

The Priceville Agricultural Society is offering $75 in seven prizes for the seven best fields of white oats. Five acres constitutes a field. Persons wishing to compete for these liberal prizes had better send in their names of T.A.M. Ferguson, the secretary, and they will be supplied with entry forms and any other information required, All entries should be in by May 24. The Board of Directors have authorized a competition as follows : The two members of the above society who hand in the largest amount of cash to the Secretary from the sale of tickets, donations, cash special prizes, etc., will be sent as delegates to the Fairs convention next winter, and their expenses paid. Now get busy.

Many Horses, Cattle Burned

Four valuable horses, twenty five head of cattle, fifteen pigs and a large number of hens were burned to death in a fire which destroyed the mammoth barn of Mr. Alex. McIntyre on the 9th concession of Brant about three o'clock on Tuesday morning. The barn which was one of the largest in the township, was also well filled with implements, including a portable steam threshing engine, together with some 1600 bushels of grain and a large crop of hay and straw, all of which were destroyed in the conflagration. Of the entire contents, four horses and seven cows were alone saved. The origin of the fire, which is supposed to have started in the straw mow, is a mystery, as no lantern had been near the barn that night, the owner having been away all evening attending a Farmers' Club meeting along with the rest of neighbors, and on returning about midnight had straightway retired. He was awakened about three o'clock by a glare on his window, and looking out discovered his barn in flames. His sister, who resides with him, summoned the neighbors by telephone. while Mr. McIntyre rushed to the rescue of his stock. While loosening the horses, he was kicked by one of them on the thigh, and knocked to the floor, while several of the animals passed over him. Luckily he was able to grope his way out, for before help arrived the part he was in was entirely enveloped in flames, and he must surely have perished in the blaze had his injury been such that he couldn't have made his way out unaided. As it was he was severley burned about the head and neck. Of the twenty-five cattle burned, eight of them were fat steers, which had been sold and were to be delivered this week. The origin of fire is shrouded in mystery, as Mr. McIntyre has no enemies, and no likely reason or theory can be advanced for it. The loss, which is estimated at $6,000, is partially covered by $2,500 insurance in the Farmers' Central Mutual of Walkerton.—Bruce Herald and Times.
