A writer in McLean's Magazine declares that during the year 1915 Great Britain captured, sunk or destroyed 84 per cent. of Germany's submarine fleet, and that she has a secret device that is death to the submarine. Wonder if the Flesherton boy's invention has any affinity to that device?

Among a batch of 61 men to return home from the front incapacitated for further activity, and which arrived in Toronto on Sunday, we notice the name of W. J. Rutledge, son of Mrs. A. Rutledge, Ceylon. At the time of writing he had not arrived home, and the nature of his injuries is not known.

A congregational meeting of the Methodist church was held on Thursday evening of last week, when reports of the various branches of church work were presented, showing a prosperous year throughout There was a balance of only $160 to raise to clear off all indebtedness. The year's work included painting and decorating the church and electric installation, which has all been paid for. It was announced that the past year was the most successful in the history of the church. About four thousand dollars was raised on this circuit for the various departments of church work.

The military spirit of the younger generation was shown again on Friday evening last, when a troop of Boy Scouts was formed. Mr. Charles Bellamy was elected Scoutmaster for the troop, while Mr. Chas. Richardson is assistant. The troop is divided into three patrols, eight in each patrol. In each patrol there is a leader and his corporal. Frank Thurston is patrol leader for the first patrol and Delbert Patton his corporal, Harold McLean and Harvey Shunk in the second, and Harold Chapman and Wes Armstrong in the third. The troop held its first meeting on Tuesday evening.

A ramble in the woods just now is a thing of joy. The forest is at its greatest beauty and the insects have scarcely begun to be annoying. Young growth covers the ground, including the many handsome wood flowers—white and red painted lady, dog tooth violet, spring beauty, yellow, white and blue violets, dutchman's breeches, etc., and in the moister locations the golden cowslip makes glorious spots of color. All woodland nature, including the feathered denizens, has but one aim now, that of reproducing itself. To our mind the present is the most joyful time of all the year with all animate or inanimate nature, with one exception, and that is of mankind himself, and he is now solely bent upon destroying what God has made in his own image.

The Brindle Cow Wins

The Chesley Enterprise takes a half column of fun out of the Flesherton cow question, and gives the article the above heading. We would inform the Enterprise that our cows are not brindle--which denotes mixed breeding--but Jersey! Our cows are Jersey, and thoroughbred, and require delicate and careful treatment. O'Hagan's brindle poem don't fit here, Mr. Enterprise. It might have suited Chesley a couple of years ago, before Chesley decided to buy its skim milk and brindle buttermilk, but here we feed on Jersey cream and our cows need a little different treatment from those of the old Chesley stripe. We don't know what kind of nondescript animals Brother McDonald has locked horns with in the past, never having seen the species, but we presume from his literary te hee-hee that they had long ears and without the ordinary "corrugated truncated weapons of defence" driven around from door to door to serve customers as the owners of that long-eared variety of dows do down in Cuba. If so we are not surprised that our poor Jerseys should be brayed at by anybody brought up in Chesley. In the meantime our Jerseys will keep on chewing weeds, grass and their cuds, and giving cream fit for the gods, such as our poor Chesley confrere never tastes.

Bob Cook, whose departure from Guelph under rather exciting conditions made many think he had gone to the States, is now in England. He enlisted again with the 45th, sailed on the Lapland, and under date of April 15, writes an interesting letter to Mr. McClure of Brampton. Three German submarines put in an appearance, one of which was sunk.

Capt. Irwin Officially Dead

Captain Irwin has been missing since April 22, 1915, and was not officially reported dead until May 6, 1916.

Captain Irwin was born at Redwing on October 1, 1886, and was the youngest son of John and Mary Irwin and a brother of the proprietor of the Review-Herald. Sixteen years ago he removed to Collingwood with his parents, and after completing his public school education he was engaged with Long Bros. for some time. He then spent three years railroading and became a locomotive engineer. While railroading he was converted under the preaching of Crossley and Hunter and this date was the turning point of his life. He left the railroading and attended Collingwood high school for two years, and then took a four years course in Toronto university in Arts, and a three years theological course in Knox college—Clasksburg Review,

Features which place the Cockshutt Manure Spreader head and shoulders above other makes

It is the simplest machine made—not nearly so many parts as others.

It is a thorough pulverizer and spreader.

It is not so high to the top of the box as other spreaders yet there is much space underneath.

The box is well supported and is built with a solid bottom. Direct chain drive, no gears or clutches to cause trouble. Drive and conveyer chains are extra heavy and will stand a lot of hard work. Easily operated and no trouble at all to oil the bearings. When not spreading the machinery is not running.

The Foundation of Prosperity

The future prosperity of this country depends upon the continued prosperity of the agricultural interests. It has been proven that agricultural prosperity cannot persist unless the fertility of the soil is conserved. The one machine in the whole category of farm implements which can accomplish this necessary thing is the Manure Spreader. Upon it as upon a foundation will the future prosperity of the farm depend, and therefore the prosperity of the nation. Pay close attention to your fertilizing,—this year of all years—and benefit accordingly.

Pays Its Own Way

Comparing the cost of spreading manure with a spreader with that of spreading the same amount by hand shows a saving sufficient to make the spreader pay for itself within a short time if no more than a few loads a day are spread. No other implement about the farm can do so well. This says nothing either about the more efficient work of the machine nor the consequent additional benefit to the soil. The spreader is the one machine which visibly pays its own way. The farmer is money in pocket rather than out of pocket when he buys a spreader.
