The Canadian Bank of Commerce has pioneered by opening branches with the first rush to new mining fields. Cariboo, the Yukon, Cobalt, Northern Ontario and Quebec, Flin Flon and Yellowknife are only some of the names associated with its service to the mining industry.

THE MINING INDUSTRY contributes directly to the national wealth of Canada by the output of its mines. It also influences the economy of the entire Dominion; for it creates widespread employment, purchases great quantities of food, clothing, machinery and equipment all over Canada, and builds and maintains whole communities which in turn add to Canada's prosperity.

In its day-to-day operations mining requires many banking services. This is Banking in Action.
