It is rarely, indeed, that the hay crop has been secured here in such splendid condition The weather has been ideal for curing hay and the crop is one of the heaviest ever harvested, It is no unusual thing to hear of four and five tons to the acre The great amount of fodder in the country ought to prove a stimulus to stock raising.

Miss Long, milliner with F. H. W. Hickling for several seasons, was united in marriage on Wednesday of last week in Elm street church, Toronto, by Rev. Meredith, to Mr. Wm. Miller of Thornbury. A driver of an auto got stuck on the mountain west of Kimberley Sunday afternoon when about half way up. The owner decided that the feed pipe was obstructed and got a farmer to draw him up the rest of the way and a couple of miles beyond. Later it was discovered that there was nothing wrong with the car. The gasoline was low in the tank and the hill was so steep that the juice was unable to run. The usual trick for autoists in a like fix is to turn the car and run up backwards.

An Indian's Gratitute

One of the nicest stories we have heard in a long time is about an Indian belonging to the 160th Batt. It happened in Walkerton while the battalion was quartered here. George Siegfrid, who works at the Knechtel factory, noticed an Indian soldier eyeing him very intently on Durham street one day. Finally the Indian came up and spoke to him "I know you," he said. Mr. Siegfrid was sorry he could not return the compliment. 'Didn't you do some teaming up north of Port Elgin about twenty years ago?" "I did!" "Do you remember meeting a little Indian boy at the side of the road one cold morning?" "I believe I do." The Indian recalled the fact Mr. Siegfrid had given him a ride on the wagon that morning, And when he had learned that the little fellow was poor and hungry and that his mother had a hard time to support him, he took pity on him, and although he was just living on day wages, handed the little a dollar bill. Mr. Siegfrid had long since forgotten the incident, but the Indian had not. He asked Mr. Seigfrid where he lived and announced that he would call at his place that evening. He was true to his word, and he brought along with him a cheque for a full month's wages as a soldier. He insisted on presenting the cheque to Mr. Siegfrid and his wife in return for the kindness he had received from Mr. Siegfrid when a poor little Indian boy twenty years ago. It is said that an Indian never forgets a kindness. Here is a case where the white man can earn from his red brother.—Walkerton Telescope.

Good Looking Soldiers

"Observer" in The Post.

There are a lot of people, it is said, sporting around in khaki without the least intention of going to the war. The young man, who obtains a commission and gets into khaki, having absorbed the most elementary military ideas, would be more than human if he did not at once realize that he was a person of Extraordinary Importance. Civilians allow the Military Fledgling to develop the exaggerated ego, on the theory that his bravery is a thing which need now not be questioned, and he is therefore entitled to all the thrills, honors, and adulation, including smiles from the ladies, which he can get before he goes out after the Victoria Cross. But there is a great difference between a real soldier, and one who only sees in the uniform an opportunity to gratify his social ambition. War is a stern business and a soldier's advancement should not be entirely due to his mastery of the Terpsichorean Art, or to his ability to frame pretty speeches, or pay empty compliments to love-lorn ladies. This "Keeping up with the Joneses" has become more or less a joke. There are quite a number of prominent men with a political pull, who have the glory of having their sons in khaki, holding down some comfortable safe clerical job which a young girl could fill, far from the firing line. These good souls fancy their boys are doing their bit. The patriotic dads need not waste much anxious time reading over the casualty list. This sort of thing is no service to the Empire in these tragic and perilous times. Some very prominent people have their sons in military sinecures and it is time the country were told who they are.

Fined $20 and Costs

Running up against Mr. Jas. McCaughey in an intoxicated condition last Saturday evening, Constable Arrowsmith, who had given him previous warning, brought him up for trial before Magistrate Laidlaw on Monday morning on the charge of being drunk in a local option municipality. McCaughey pleaded guilty and the minimum fee of $20 and costs was imposed, amounting to $24.50. The law requires the party prosecuted to state where he obtained the liquor as well, but this he refused to do. The alternative is a three months' sentence in Owen Sound jail and Mr. Arrowsmith had no other option but to transfer Mr. McCaughey there. When arrangements had been thus made, however, he was induced to reveal its source, and stated, we are informed, that he had obtained the wet goods from Mr. Hahn, of the Hahn house. An action will now doubtless be laid against the latter party for illegally supplying the liquor.—Review.

Mount Zion garden party on Monday evening of last week proved a great success. The good natured fight put up between Flesherton and Proton young ladies baseball teams was interesting to a large crowd. Mr. Woods of Corbetton, was a popular chairman and introduced a good program consisting of a couple of choruses, solo by Miss Irene Wilson, trios by Mrs Blackburn, Miss Trimble and Miss Wilson, recitation by Miss Atcheson, instrumental music by the fourth line orchestra and addresses by the chairman, Rev. Mr. McVicar and the pastor, Rev. Mr. Madden. The receipts amounted to about $108. An autograph quilt, the scheme of which was promoted by Mrs. Badgerow, netted the sum of about $55 to be applied to the shed building fund.

When the special train bearing the members of the Canadian Press Association reached Bolton station on its way to Port McNicholl it was noticed that a hen had taken up her position on the pilot of the engine. How she got there was somewhat of a mystery as no stops had been made after leaving West Toronto. "Tim" Hamilton (every junior around the station is known as "Tim") had some difficulty in getting her ladyship to leave her precarious position on the pilot where she left her card in the shape of an egg. "Tim" ate the egg for supper and "Biddy" is industriously scratching in Agent Stockdale's hen yard.—Bolton Enterprise.
