Where Women May Help

There is a great demand for young women to take the places of Office men, who have gone or are going to the front. This is one of the ways in which women can "do their bit" by assisting in keeping the wheels of commerce in motion. Training in book-keeping, stenography and other business subjects is necessary. This can be obtained quickly at the Northern Business College, Owen Sound, which is remaining open througout the year during the war to prepare young people for war time Office positions.

W. J. BELLAMY,
Clerk of Flesherton.

Flesherton, August 8th, 1916.

Mr. Jonathan Colbert who lives on th 2nd line of Nottawasaga, North, met with a serious accident one day last week, which will lay him up for some time. He was up in the mow of his barn levelling hay and when near the edge it is supposed he took a fainting spell and fell to the floor a distance of eight or ten feet, breaking three of his ribs and received a bad shaking up generally. He was unconscious for some time but at time of writing is progressing as well as can be expected.—Stayner sun.

Drowned at Meaford

A sad drowning accident occurred on Sunday, which brought grief to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ellis, 9th line, St. Vincent. Their youngest son, Levi, had been visiting during the day with a cousin, Walter Ellis,son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Ellis, and the two boys had been playing around the shore in the neighborhood of the Jay property,on the 7th line. The two boys, both about 10 years of age, sighted a raft and became seized with a desire to go swimming. After being in the water for some little time, Levi was clinging to a log, which suddenly rolled over and the boy disappeared to be seen no more. The other boy seized with fright left his companion and returned home early in the afternoon. Upon being questioned as to his cousin's whereabouts, he gave many evasive answers and apparently afraid to say anything that would lead to his recovery. The parents became anxious about their son and about midnight, his chum told them that he had fallen off the log into the water. A search party was immediately organized and the little body taken from the water about five o'clock on Monday morning.

Severe Electric Storm

After some three weeks of intense heat, Meaford was visited by a severe electric storm on Sunday evening,accompanied by wind, hail, and a heavy down pour of rain. The rain was badly needed in this locality as the grain and root crops were in need of moisture. The lightning was very severe at times,and prior to the heavy rain, the barn of Mr.Percy Brooks, 9th line, St.Vincent,was struck by lightning and burned to the ground, together with some 55 loads of hay, 1500 bushels of old grain, two calves and a number of hens. A bull confined in the building was also badly burned but managed to break loose and find its way to safety. The loss was partly covered by insurance. Limbs were also torn from trees and corn crops were, in many cases, ruined. The storm lasted about an hour and was the worst this season.—Express.

Simcoe County Lady Gave Invention to Empire

The women of the Empire have responded to the call of the Empire, not only in ministering to the men at the front and engaging in patriotic work,but they are flocking to the factories and to other positions so that men are released to shoulder the rifle, But it has fallen to a Simcoe lady to be the first we have heard of that has given to the British War Office an invention that is designed to protect life and property. This lady is Mrs. Ida Adams, of Lefroy. After the war broke out and helpless English women and children were being murdered by German bombs. Mrs Adams began wondering if some protection could not be afforded buildings from these mid-air bombs. The more she thought of the idea the more convinced she became that some means could be thought out. Finally her ideas took shape and in July of last year the idea was forwarded to the War Office in London. In due time word came from the War Office,two letters in all being received, one of them signed personally by the late Lord Kitchener, the other was from the Director of Artillery. From these letters she was informed that her invention was one of the accepted plans out of 31,000 that had been submitted.

What the nature of the invention or of its construction, Mrs. Adams was not prepared to divulge; secrecy being demanded by the Imperial authorities. This mid-air protection is now in use on many of the public buildings of London.
