An endeavor will be made to bring up the number of voters in the township of Artemesia to the required 1000, so that a deputy reeve may be elected, and for that purpose a judge's Court of Revision will be held in Flesherton on Thursday, October 5.

An advertiser in the Shelburne Free Press announces that "summer in here." Evidently he does not get up in time to see the morning frosts from day to day. We fancy the freeze of Monday night will bring him up with a jerk. It it don't he is beyond redemption.

A Mount Forest auto owner drove over one day last week and delivered a quantity of fool juice to a private party near this village. The sleuths got after him and he was fined twenty and costs. The case was to have come off in Markdale but was not defended.

The Owen Sound Advertiser don't like the brand of poetry supplied by the Owen Sound young ladies descriptive of their trip to Borden Camp, and proceeds to pick it all to pieces. The paucity of verbs especially appears to infuriate the young man of the Advertiser staff. To look at this gentleman one would never imagine him to be an authority on poetry. Of course if he chooses to qualify as a critic of the Owen Sound brand of poetry we have no kick—but let him look out when the sweet singers of the lakeside town and their escort (especially their escort) get after him. They will make him feel as silly as his criticism appears to us.

A quilting in the Methodist church on Thursdsy last was a huge success. Over fifty ladies turned out and with merry chatter as well as with needle and thimble quilted and bound thirteen quilts. Three were kindly donated by Mrs. H. Thistlethwaite, and one by Mrs. Robert Waller, making eighteen in all to be sent to the Rev. A. A. Wall at Cochrane, to be distributed by him to the needy ones. Some ladies are contributing pillows and slips, towels, sheets, etc. Contributions are asked for and all are to be sent to Mrs. Clinton at once as the bales are to be sent off this week. Candy was passed around and lunch was served, and a busy and pleasant afternoon was spent.

Saturday was the last day for dispensing intoxicants in this province. The amputation did not affect the situation here and everything wagged along in the old way. We had our execution of King Alcohol here some years ago, and the throes of dissolution did not have to be repeated. It is said that in some of our neighboring towns the hotelkeepers ladelled out local option beer by the barrel to thirsty souls who thought they were celebrating in the real thing, and even imagined they were drunk. Now, if the drinkers can be educated up to the point where pure water will produce an imaginative "jag" everything will be lovely.

Miss Corrine Frost of Owen Sound, was the guest of Miss Maud Richardson last week.

Mr. Charles McTavish of Regina, was in town Friday. Charley is general sales agent for the Chevrolet car for Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia. His territory is a big one and his salary the same.

Corp. (Rev.) R. C. Kerr of Camp Borden, who was of on a six day furlough, occupied the Methodist pulpit on Sunday evening and preached an excellent sermon to a large congregation. Mr. T. Bentham supplied in the morning. Rev. Mr. Dudgeon will be home to take his own work next Sunday.

If you are thinking of buying a Columbia Grafonola this fall for your entertainment during the long evenings let us know about it now. These have to be ordered considerably in advance, as, owing to the immense demand prompt delivery of some models is impossible. You can place your order now for Christmas time or sooner and thus be sure of getting it when you want it—At The Advance office.

Mr. Scott, the oil expert from Petrolia, who was here last year examining the Karstedt oil well, dropped in again on Tuesday of last week and examined the thing once more and with the same result. He still believes the oil coming out of this well is a filtration from some bed of oil, but the location is beyond his powers of defining. He says the oil is nearly a pure coal oil with about 2½ per cent. of heavy oil mixed with it. It is, he says, the nicest oil he ever saw. It is similar to a partially refined oil, but this condition could be brought about by filtration through certain soil. Mr. Scott says the only way to solve the riddle is to bore, and this he advises. He does not believe it possible that the amount of oil that has come through could be a soakage from only local storage. Mr. Fred Karsted, jr., went down the well one day last week to recover a pail. In this he did not succeed but on the contrary was overcome by the fumes and had to be assisted from the well in a semi conscious state.

Cemetery Again

A writer in the Review-Herald, speak- of the Thornbury and Clarksburg union cemetery, says:

Much has been said by many of our citizens concerning the management of the Clarksburg and Thornbury union cemetery, and I noticed an article in the Flesherton Advance and another in the Meaford Express about the general appearance of their respective burial grounds in which they speak of them as a bush.

I have this to say, that the committee of management of the union cemetery here is to be congratulated on the general appearance of the cemetrry and the fact that they are working on a system, which is essential in every kind of work.

Persons purchasing lots in this cemetery are under obligation to pay to the secretary annual fees for the upkeep of their lot. Every lot owner is furnished with a copy of the bylaws and must be governed thereby.

Instead of having the appearance of a forest, the cemetery is attractive and shows care and order. No shrubs or trees can be planted without permission. Trees formerly planted can be removed by the execntive at their will and lots are sold according to location. An assessment of from 50 cents to $1.00 is levied annually by the executive and this must be paid to insure the right of burial.

As this is an ideal location and the greatest care is being taken to have everything in good condition, the excutive deserve the co operation of all in their efforts, and there should be no arrears in payment.

The Ontario Goverment in 1914 passed section 34 sub-section 1, which makes verydefinite rules regarding burial places, but long before this the management of the cemetery had made an effort to put the grouds on a proper basis.

Such places are the last resting places of our loved ones and we feel proud to think that though they know it not now, they knew it in life that their grave would be cared for and not be run over by stock or have the hay that grew above them mown for fodder, as many of the burial grounds are to-day.

Thanking you for this space, I remain,
Yours truly,
A PLOT OWNER.

Flesherton Library

The intelligent public must and will read. There is no better sign of the mental development of a people than that they are readers. Let us be light on eating, live on good, nourishing but simple fare, be plainly but comfortably dressed, yet bent on nourishing the mind with the best books. Second only to the moral and spiritual, reading turns out men. Read widely and you will come to be able to do things; have largeness of vision, enjoy social life and seek recreations in which stimulants or even coffee and cake are only very secondary things.

The library has not been in better form for years, thanks to the president and its numerous subscribers. Twenty-five dollars' worth of books and six magazines are expected in a week or so. Subscribe now. No magazine is to be taken from the reading room. Your neighbor has paid his dollar for its use.

On Monday last, workmen on the Creamery Hill were using dynamite to blow up some blue clay. When one charge went off, Mr. Robert Mitchell of Derby, was struck on the head by a large stone, the presence of which in the clay was unthought of. It smashed through his straw hat, and cut the scalp to the skull for about four inches. Mr. Alex. Forgrave, councillor, who was overseeing the work, drove the injured man to town, where Dr. Rutherford dressed the wound. It was a very close call for Mr. Mitchell, who may congratulate providence if no complications set in. The injury will keep him from his work for a week at least.—Advertiser.

Mr. J. E. Brown, of Fergus, has certainly some bus team. One day he left them standing, hitched to the bus, in front of the Commercial hotel as the regular passenger was late. However, a freight passed through about the time the passenger train was due. Upon hearing its whistle, the team with empty bus started for the station, attaining some speed, as they seemed to think they were late. They made the turn at St. Andrews street all right, and upon reaching the station wheeled around, stopped and backed into their usual position as neatly as it Mr. Brown had been along. Here Mr. Brown found them later, no damage whatever being done.
