THE MIXING BOWL

BY Anne Allan
HYDRO HOME ECONOMIST

Hello Homemakers! Food freshness has an appeal all its own. The quality and the quantity of your own garden produce can be used to advantage if you keep food fresh. With summer weather creating fickle appetites, plan to serve the season's fruits and vegetables in winning ways.

What cold comfort there is in crisp salads, in clear, sparkling jellies, chilled fruit cups, luscious iced desserts and frosty beverages!

To pride yourself in a job well done, review the method of operating the electric refrigerator, which does such a big job of maintaining food freshness.

FRESH TOSSED SALAD

Prepare crisp salad greens, tomato wedges, paper-thin cucumber slices and onion rings. Toss thoroughly in tart French dressing and serve in individual salad dishes rubbed once with garlic.

NOODLE SALAD

Boil 4 ounces flat noodles in a large pot of salted water until tender. Drain, rinse with hot water, drain and cool. Add 1 cup (each) fine-cut celery and grated raw carrot with sliced radishes, chopped pickle and scraped onion to taste. Thick salad dressing — salt — pepper ano serve with headcheese.

FRUIT SALADS

Drained grapefruit and orange sections, folded with halved strawberries and whipped-cream mayonnaise. Serve in lettuce on individual salad plates or in a big salad bowl, with sprinkle of chopped nuts.

White cream cheese or cottage cheese mixed with diced rhubarb steeped in syrup and finely-chopped parsley, and mounded in lettuce; cover with strawberry halves and garnish with orange. Hot brown rolls or biscuits make the perfect supplement. Lime-jelly ring nested in cress filled with sliced strawberries and garnished with nut-coated balls of cream cheese.

CARE OF AUTOMATIC REFRIGERATOR

1. Check the door gasket (rubber) by inserting a slip of paper in the opened door. Close the door — if you can pull out easily, the gasket needs replacing. Keep the gasket clean. Oil and grease — even finger perspiration — damages it. Washing it frequently with mild soap and water will prolong its life.

2. Keep the door shut as much as po7ssible — never let it stand open. Plan "take-outs" and "put-aways" so that you won't have to open the door any more than necessary.

3. Allow foods to cool before placing them in the refrigerator. Never put in hot foods — your refrigerator has to work harder to absorb that heat.

4. Always cover all cooked foods before you put them in the refrigerator. Never put them in the refrigerator. This helps helps keep the refrigerator from needing defrosting frequently and save the mechanism from overworking. (It saves vitamins, too.)

5. Defrost when the ice on the freezing unit gets ¼ inches thick. Heavy frost reduces the circulation of cold air.

6. Keep temperature control set at normal, except when freezing (e.g., making ice cream). As soon as possible after quick freezing, set back the control to normal.

7. Don't overload the refrigerator. Leave room around foods to let the cold air circulate. Overloading, especially in hot weather, is a frequent cause of breakdowns.

8. Air-circulation around the refrigerator is important. Keep the refrigerator two inches from the wall and allow a clear space above it. Don't pile on top thinsgs that cut off the free circulation of air.

9. Never use an ice pick or knife point to remove ice trays or chip frost from the freezing coils. You may seriously damage the unit. To prevent ice trays from sticking don't fill them full; wipe off edges and bottoms of trays.

10. Twice a year disconnect your refrigerator and clean the condenser with a long-handled brush or your vacuum cleaner brush attachment. See your manufacturer's directions to locate the condenser.

An open type electric mechanism should be oiled according to manufacturer's directions. See that belt is in good condition and not loose. If loose or worn have it replaced.

12. When you go away from home for only a few days set cold control at low and keep the refrigerator running. If you will be away some time, turn off refrigerator; take out perishable foods and empty the trays; prop the door open.

STAR WEEKLIES

Star Weeklies now avalable. Get yours from your Star carrier, Bruce Thurston.

The sergeant was fed up with the time it took for a new recruit to master a simple drill.

"What did you do before you joined up?" he demanded.

"I worked in a bank," the soldier replied.

"Oh," scoffed the sergeant, "I suppose you mean you wiped off the desks, filled the ink-wells, and emptied the wastpaper baskets.'

"No," replied the recruit with bridling dignity. "I was the assistant accountant. But we did keep an old sergeant around to do the work you mention."
