Culham-Roberts

From the Kerrobert Citizen.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. R. Roberts was the scene of a festive occasion on Dec. 23, when their eldest daughter, Margaret Justina, was united in marriage to Mr. T. V. Culham of Driver, Sask. The bride was handsomely attired in a gown of white taffeta silk and georgetta crepe and carried a lovely bouquet of white roses and lillies of the valley. She entered the parlour on the arm of her father, to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march, played by Miss Janet Lockerbie of Kerrobert. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. E. E. Walker, at the hour of noon, after which the guests partook of a dainty luncheon. The happy couple were escorted to the afternoon train by their many friends and left amid showers of rice, wheat and congratulations, for an extended trip in the East, including the cities of Galt, Toronto, Brantford and Collingwood. Mr. and Mrs. Culham will be at home in their residence at Ermine after March 1. The presents, numerous and costly, bore mute testimony to the esteem in which the young couple are held in the community. The bridegroom's present to the bride was a handsome coat of Persian Lamb and a muff to match; and to Miss Lockerbie, a cameo brooch. Mrs. Culham will be greatly missed from the church, social and business life of Kerrobert, in which she has taken an active part and The Citizen joins with her circle of friends here in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Culham a long and happy married life.

Walkerton

While Mr. David George, the livery. man, was returning from Formosa one night last week he noticed a horse tangled up in the harness lying with the cutter in the ditch, and taking out a search light which he carried went over to investigate and found that the stranded steed was from his own barn. It seems that a Walkerton youth hired the horse to go to a dance, and leaving it standing at the home of a lady friend came out and found the beast gone. Seeing by its tracks that it had headed towards town he guessed it had gone, like the Prodigal Son, home. "On with the dance, let joy be unconfined" was this gent's motto, as he led his fair one off to the giddy whirl. It was long past the end of a perfect day before he got back and discovered how the runaway horse had fared. Such optimism as this youth displayed as he later smiled at the disaster reminds one of the trench slogan, "Are we downhearted? No."

The honor of being the first Walkerton boy to be decorated for bravery at the front falls to Signaller Louis Dipple, only son of Mr. and Mrs. M. Dipple of town, who was awarded the Military Medal for gallantry while in action. He has been over a year in the trenches and has distinguished himself as a signaller while under fire

When Mr. and Mrs. Alf. Hehn were autoing to Ayton on Friday night a hat belonging to Mrs. Hehn bounced out of the car and was lost near Neustadt. Although they went back they were unable to locate the missing head gear, and after putting a notice up in the Neustadt postoffice, claim they were advised over the phone by an enterprising citizen of that burg that he knew the party who found the hat and on the receipt of $1.50 would forward the lid. Mr. Hehn was also asked to respond quickly with the cash as the man was about to leave for Detroit. On consulting a lawyer about the matter the Walkertonian was advised to proceed to Neustadt and demand the lost millinery, and if the finder failed to come across to lay a charge of theft. On reaching the burg made famous by its beer, Mr. Hehn located the man who did the phoning, but claims he couldn't inveigle the finder's name out of him without cashing up. Before letting go of the $1.50, Mr. Hehn decided to do a little detective work and on enquiring about learned the name of the party who had found the hat. On approaching and asking for it, the readiness with which it was passed over almost took the breath from the Walkertonian, who was expecting a $1.50 touch. It later transpired that the finder was about to have a "found notice" in the Neustadt postoffice when a party advised him that he knew the owner and would undertake to connect him with the goods. The gent, who was to do the go-between act, seems to have had an exalted idea of the middleman's profit, when he tried to put across the $1.50 ordinance. The thing looked easy but the Walkertonian didn't fall for the squeeze game.—Bruce Herald and Times.
