Tax Stays On Soft Drinks

The two-cent wartime tax on a bottle of pop will stay—at least for another year.

That's the verdict issued in the Commons by Acting Finance Minister Abbot, who said the Government had considered removing the two-cent soft drink levy but decided it should not be taken off this year.

Speaking after Opposition members urged removal of the tax, Mr. Abbot said that even if the tax were eliminated it would mean no increase in the supply of pop available because this was governed by the sugar shortage.

No Wonder He Blushed

R. P. MacLean, editor of the Kelowna (B.C.) Courier, blushed when this was drawn to his attention by an observant subscriber. The Courier carried immediately under the list of births for the week, a two-line "filler" which read: "It is better to have tried and made a mistake than never to have tried at all".

France has beaten England at tennis. That's not surprising, for the French have the reputation of being very good at the love game.

A pretty army nurse, just returned from the South Pacific, was describing an air raid in New Guinea. "When the Jap bombers came over," she said, "I jumped right into the nearest wolf hole."

"You mean foxhole, don't you?" interrupted a listener.

"Maybe a fox dug it," said the nurse, sweetly, "but there was a wolf in it when I got there.

RETAILERS make constant use of banking services. In some cases these are simple but essential; the bank takes cash receipts on deposit, makes change, operates current accounts, and accepts and records used ration coupons. Other retail accounts involve considerable handling of drafts, and—a very important service—the making of loans to enable retailers to take advantage of trade discounts. All this entails Banking in Action.

The Canadian Bank of Commerce has among its customers many retail houses, from the small corner store to the large chain and department store. Strict attention to their particular needs is given to all the Bank's customers.

Use our services for your banking requirements, whatever they may be. Consult our local Manager.
