The regular monthly meeting of the W. I. will be held in the high school Flesherton, Wednesday, August 1, at 2.30 p.m. The program will be given by the Priceville W. I., who will be present with us. Lunch will be served.—Mrs. E Wickens, Sec.

A number of members of the Flesherton W.M.S. motored and drove to Kimberley to fraternize with the Auxiliary of that village—and for a good feed at the hands of the hosts, on Wednesday of last week. A good time was enjoyed by all, and the ladies arrived home safely between showers.

The Advance man had a run up the Bruce peninsula as far as Lions Head on Thursday last and found the crops, generally speaking, very good, although retarded by the rains. Settled weather now, which appears to have arrived, will make a bumper crop of both grain and roots.

Mr. Harry Tucker of Owen Sound was in town last week on oil business. H.G. says he has "real money" behind him to prospect this district and he is going to do it. The more the merrier—also the more prospectors the more satisfaction to those who want to know, you know.

Some sort of a disease has struck the small trout in the hydro pond at Eugenia and they are dying by the thousand, lining the banks with fingerlings. This looks bad for future fishing and the phenomenal sport of early summer may not be repeated next year. There is little or no fishing there at present, the fish having ceased to take bait or fly of any kind.

With a view to having the Toronto line taken over as a Provincial highway, representatives of the interested municipalities are meeting the Minister of Highways in Toronto today. Reeve McKenzie and Deputy Reeve Cameron represent Artemesia, and Reeve McTavish represents the village. There is little doubt but that eventually the road will be taken over, but the Government is opposed to undertaking any heavy expenditures during the war.

Over a week ago, Master Freddy Vollett, son of W. C. Vollett, barber, fell on a pile of stones and cut quite a gash in the palm of his left hand. It was not thought serious at first, but when headaches and lumps upon his arms developed, it was learned blood poisoning set in. Medical treatment was then promptly applied and the little lad is now about himself again.—Durham Review.

The other day an aviator was forced to alight and landed in a barley field near Angus. The farmer who owned the field, instead of getting irritated and hinting at damages for his crop, showed his patriotic spirit by hitching his team on the plane, drew it out into a hay meadow, and mowed a swath wide enough for the plane to run through thus enabling the birdman to get away safely. —Staynor Sun.

Mrs. Mary Conkey, widow of the late Matthew Conkey, died at her home, 2nd con., Artemesia, a mile and a quarter north of Priceville, on Sunday last, at the age of 78 years. Mrs. Conkey was a native of Argyleshire, Scotland, and came out to this country when a girl. She leaves behind two sons and one daughter—Archie and Mary at home and Dr. John A. Conkey of Richmond, Indiana, also one brother—Angus Kennedy of Priceville. The funeral took place on Wednesday to Priceville cemetery.

A patented gasoline squirter was installed by Reeve D. McTavish, to accommodate thirsty motor cars. The old order changeth, and in a few years we may look to see the horses in the Reeve's livery replaced by gas wagons of several types for summer work. When that time comes the horses will likely be rented to farmers for the summer, and put on the road in the winter. But this will not be until the county roads are improved.

That the split log drag should be more in evidence on our roads is quite bound out by the following from the Grand Valley Star: The fourth concession line, East Luther, is a fair example of how a mud road can be maintained by the use of the split log drag. Messrs. Baxendale, McArthur and Erskine undertook to keep this road in shape with the use of this simple implement and the roads are strikingly satisfactory. Despite the exceptional rainfall this piece of road is dry and smooth like a piece of good roads, and bears a great deal of traffic. There is a working arrangement whereby their roadwork is completed in labor thus spent, the result being most satisfactory to all concerned. Holes in the roads are not at all necessary, and the greatest cause for damage and annoyance to travellers. Keep the surface smooth.

A few weeks ago a cedar tree that has been lying prostrate in the forests of Washington for at least fourteen centuries was sawed into perfectly sound shingles. The time that has elapsed since it fell was shown by a tree that had grown up astride of the fallen cedar tree and that had 1,380 annual rings. That is one of the longest known periods in which timber exposed to the weather has remained free from decay; but there are records of wood that, having been kept dry, or continuously covered with water or ice, has lasted even longer than that.

A Shelburne Man's Inventions

A Toronto paper recently published the following about J. J. Marshall, an old Shelburne boy, and son of the late James Marshall of that town. The paper says: The dispatch published yesterday telling of a device attached to Atlantic steamships to pick up mines attracted the attention of John James Marshall, 130 Mutual street, who assumes that it is an adaption of a device which nineteen months ago he submitted with details, plans and specifications to the British authorities. His idea then was to have the device attached to warships to enable them to enter the mine fields off Heligoland. Mr. Marshall has submitted some thirty plans to the British War Inventions Board and several have been acted upon. As long ago as 1912 he turned over to the Naval attache of the British Embassy in Washington who came to Toronto to consult him, plans for relining cannon which have suffered from explosions. So far he has had no financial returns from the Imperial authorities, despite promises made to him. "I could have positions that were offered me by the American and Russian Governments but refused them to devote my work to the British Government" he said today. Mr. Marshall is a native of Shelburne. A brother is a school superintendent in a Manitoba town and his sister is a wife of a Brantford druggist. He gained his practical experience in the G. T. R. shops where he worked four years and produced and patented an automatic stoke, now in general use and an automatic fire door opener. He was employed with the Toronto Railway Co. when the was began but gave up his position to devote his time to inventions. He has recently had built for him in England a turbine aeroplane motor which he is hopeful will win success. It weighs but 100 pounds, can generate 500 horse power and cost but $500, while the famous French Gnome motor weighs 250 pounds and costs $2500.

Death of Mrs. M. J. Bolger

On Friday afternoon Mrs. Matthew J. Bolger of Durham passed away at the home of her sister, Mrs. J. Runstadler, 80 St. Clarens Ave., Toronto, after four month's trying illness. The deceased was the youngest child of the late Murt. Egan and Mrs. Egan, former residents at Ventry. Mrs. Bolger, who was in her 37th year, was well and favorably known here, and much sympathy is felt for the bereaved husband, mother, brothers and sister, who survive. The remains were brought to Dundalk Monday morning by C.P.R., and interment made at St. Patrick's church cemetery, Proton.—Dundalk Herald.

Lawson—Abercrombie

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Abercrombie of Kimberley was the scene of a quiet wedding on July 11th, when their daughter, Mary Evelyn, became the bride of Wm. Lawson of Wodehouse. The ceremony was conducted by Rev. T. W. W. Lang. The bride, who was given away by her father, was unattended. She wore a dress of white silk crepe de chine, with veil and orange blossoms, and carried a bouquet of roses and carnations The wedding march was played by the bride's sister, Dell Abercrombie, and during the signing of the register her neices, Enna and Nellie Burritt sang "The Voice that Breathed o'er Eden." After the wedding dinner Mr. and Mrs. Lawson motored to Flesherton, where they left for Toronto and Niagara. On their return they will reside at Wodehouse

Master Archie, aged four, had been told that babies came down direct from heaven per stork, and he was puzzled to understand why he could not recall his former celestial surroundings. When a second child was born into the household Archie was admitted to his mother's bedchamber to take a look at his new relative.

The little chap tiptoed up to the cradle and gazed down down at the pink wrinkled mite lying there. He bent far over. "Brother," he whispered, "tell me about God before you forget."
