The weather clerk has handed out a special brand of very fine weather for the fall fairs during the past three weeks. Flesherton postponed its fair this year to a later date—the bad weather has also bren postponed, but we hope there is no connection between the two events. Time will tell.

Mrs. Meldrum, an old resident of Artemesia township, passed away at the home of her son, George, Stone's line, on Tuesday, Sept. 18, aged nearly 80 years. The deceased lady's husband, the late Henry Meldrum, was operator at the station here in the early days of the old Narrow Gauge, and later was postmaster at Eugenia for a number of years Both Mr. and Mrs. Meldrum were people of sterling worth and both passed to their reward at a good old age. The interment took place in Flesherton cemetery on Thursday, Sept. 20.

A horse got frightened at a threshing outfit on the street Saturday and bolted up a twenty foot embankment opposite O. W. Phillips' residence, stopping only at the stone fence. The owner, Mr. Ned Croft, who was in the buggy, made the horse back down the way it went up, and nothing was damaged.

An auto load of visitors to the Collingwood fair while returning Thursday night suffered a costly mishap about five miles east of Flesherton, when their car skidded on some new gravel and turned two somersaults, landing right side up with the engine still going. The wind shield was completely demolished, one wheel smashed and the radiator damaged. The five Swinton Park gentlemen aboard were pretty roughly used and looked like soldiers just arrived from the casualty clearing station. The gentleman driving the car did not think he was going very fast. The damaged car was brought to McTavish's garage Friday and has undergone repairs.

The Local Tribunals

The following appointments have been made to the Local Tribunals in the Co. of Grey, established under the provisions of the military service Act. In this list the member to be appointed by the County Judge is named, the other member will be appointed by the Board of Selection established by joint resolution of the Senate and House of Commons His Honor, Judge Sutherland, made the appointments. It will be noted that Flesherton is not included in this list. Naturally it is inferred from this that there can be no appeals here, and that if there are any availables left they will not be inclined to advance any excuse for staying at home. The past record of this village and surrounding district justifies such a conclusion. Each Tribunal is numbered as follows:

86. Markdale—Richard W. Eunis, of Markdale.

Memorial to Lieut. McGuire

Orangeville, Sept. 19—Before a large assembly of citizens today, at 11 a.m., a number of the Dufferin Old Boys of Toronto presented to the town of Orangeville a life size painting of Lieut. Harry McGuire, son of Mr. and Mrs. Blaney McGuire of the Orangeville Banner. Among the Old Boys were John R. Robinson, editor of the Toronto Telegram; John Jenkins, manufacturer; W A Porteous, Saskatoon; Eli Whaley of Whaley, Royce & Co., Toronto; Wm. Fountain of "My Valet," Toronto, and Ben Fletcher of the Fletcher Mfg. Co

John R. Robinson made the presentation and the portrait was unveiled and accepted on behalf of the town by Mayor T. J Henderson. Col. J. A V Preston and Captain A. Firth, returned soldiers, also spoke.

Lieut. Henry Boulton McGuire, who was 24 years old, was one of the brave Canadian officers that faced the Germans in their gas attack at St. Julien, at Langemark, 23rd April, 1915. The Canadians at that time made the words "Saved the Situation" not only historic, but sacred. The painting was executed by Owen A. Staples, and is a striking likeness of the brave Lieutenant, who was the first Orangeville soldier to die fighting.

Gasoline And a Match

Face badly burned was the injury received by Mrs. E. A. Stephens, wife of the proprietor of the Stephens garage, Alliston. When callers are numerous at the garage Mrs. Stephens attends to the gasoline pump to relieve her husband, and it was when she was thus engaged that Palmer Ormsby drove up to have the tank of his car filled. He put the hose into the tank and then lit a match to see into the opening. Immediately the gas arising from the open tank caught fire and Ormsby caught the hose and pulled it from his tank. In his haste he threw it to one side and as it passed through the burning gas the gasoline on it caught fire and the blazing oil fell on Mrs. Stephens' breast. She screamed and her husband, who was only a few yards distant, was beside her in a second. He pulled her cap down over her face and with his hands beat out the flames which had ignited Mrs. Stephens' clothing. As soon as Mrs. Stephens was relieved Mr. Stephens, thinking the fire might run up the hose pipe to the pump, disconnected the pipe and immediately there was an explosion that threw burning gasoline all over his overalls. These he slipped off without loss of time and beat out the flames with a coat which was near at hand. Mrs. Stephens was pretty badly burned on one side of the face particularly. She is now getting over the injury nicely—Herald.

Spirit of Sacrifice

So far the entrance of this country into the war, there has been no striking evidence to show that the spirit of sacrifice is animating our people. Sacrifice there has necessarily been, distributed, as sacrifice always is, unequally, and some of it has been inspired with the fervor that should animate all effort in a great cause. But the threat of sacrifices to be exacted has brought forth too many murmurs and complaints. The inherent selfishness of human nature rises in resentment and dread at the thought that a schedule of living that has seemed comfortable or desireable or perhaps only tolerable must be abandoned, and a schedule somewhat less comfortable, desireable or tolerable substituted. The poor bemoan the paring of their narrow margin, and the rich are aggrieved by the conscription of wealth. Neither the poor nor the rich would be unwilling to contribute proportionately as much as anyone else: what they are afraid of is that they may be compelled to contribute proportionately more than anyone else.

There is bound to be injustice somewhere; no system of assigning the burdens of the war can be worked out that will not be inequitable in some instances. To those on whom the hardship falls most heavily and to those who are most apprehensive of further exactions there is one solace, if they will but adjust their minds to receive it. While may others about them are rendering only a partial or a limited patriotic service, they are giving more than their share. They well feel proud to be doing more than their part in one of the very greatest crisis of world history. If the spirit of emulation could underlie the spirit of sacrifice, how easy it would be to give up luxuries and to enjoy frugality!

Don't Miss the Answer

It appears to us that there is a lot of twaddle emanating from the Food Controller's office these days. While it is necessary to conserve food, the people do not need as yet to be told to squeeze soup bones to the last drop of marrow. The Christian Guardian, speaking on this subject, gets back at the Controller in fine style with the following pertinent inquiry:

"In 1916-17 Canada wasted in her distilleries in manufacturing whiskey 88,007,019 pounds of grain, and she wasted the same year in brewing beer 71,906,049 pounds of malt, or a total of 159,963,068 pounds of food, good either for man or beast. And by one stroke of his pen the Food Controller could stop this waste. He has not done so. Why is it?"

We hope we do not overlook Mr Hanna's answer to this question.

These Men Will Help You Decide

Are you liable to be selected for service under the Military Service Act?

The answer to this question is being made readily available for you. Remember that the first class to be called includes only men between the ages of 20 and 34, both inclusive, who are unmarried or widowers without children, those married after July 6, 1917, being deemed single for the purposes of the Act.

Medical Boards are now being established throughout Canada. These Boards will examine, free of charge and obligation, all men who wish to be examined as to their physical fitness for military service. They will tell you in a very short time whether your physical condition absolves you from the call or makes you liable for selection.

It is important that you obtain this information as soon as possible. A certificate of unfitness from a Medical Board will secure for you freedom from responsibility under the Military Service Act from any Exemption Tribunal. A certificate of fitness will not preclude an appeal for exemption on any ground.

In order that you may be able to plan your future with certainty, visit a Medical Board as soon as possible and find out if you are liable to be selected. Your family and your employer are interested as well as yourself.
