throughout the pink spray and in all subsequent applications.

If, in this area, the weather is such that the pink stage develops before the appearance of next week's column, we strongly advise the latter growers that, if the pink application is not completed by the time the blossoms appear, they should continue to spray in the bloom, but the poison must be omitted.

Any enquiries regarding specific problems may be addressed to this column and they will be immediately referred to authorities on this subject for your convenience.

We invite your comments on how this column's service may be improved.
