THEY DON'S PENSION US

From an inquiry column, we learn that the maximum amount two Old Age Pensioners, married, are entitled to have in a joint bank account is $3,700. In consulting our bank book, we wonder why the thunder a person requires a pension with a cash balance in the four figures. They don't pension us—they collect income tax. The pensioner is wise; we are otherwise.—Meaford Express.

The Glories Of Dawn

It is often remarked how the winter landscape, with so many trees bare of leaves, has a special element of beauty, in that the sky is more clearly visible. Also that the short days of midwinter have one special attraction, in that they give the average person a better chance to observe the glories of the dawn and the early morning. People who very rarely see these beautiful morning skies in summer when the sun rises very early, may see them often in midwinter when the sun rises several hours later.

Poets have written about the loveliness of those morning skies, when the sun seems to send messengers ahead telling of his coming march through the heavens. Rose tinted cloud shapes, golden reflections along the horizon and shooting up into the sky, seem like a majestic procession proclaiming the appearance of the orb of the day. It is a gorgeous spectacle, and nature lovers never tire of observing it.

Why do roosters crow as dawn breaks upon the dark landscape? Why do birds in summer break forth in a symphony of ecstatic melody, as the light of day drives away the darkness of the night? One might think that these feathered creatures, on first waking from sleep, would think of getting their breakfast, and let the singing go until their stomachs were full. They crow and sing so early as to suggest that they feel the impulse so strongly to make these charming sounds, that their chorus begins even before they are fed.

It would seem as if the coming of day meant to these creatures a new outburst of happiness which demands expression soon after waking. It seems the pure expression of the joy of living, and the upspringing of hope and cheer.

The night has its beauty, but it also has its gloom. The coming of day seems to bring new courage and enlightenment into the world, and to be a force dispelling ignorance and wrong. — Orangeville Banner.

Hello Homemakers! When the clock strikes twelve at the rural school it means a hot dinner for some children, but not for all—not by any means. For more than half of the children attending rural schools in Ontario the noon hour means a lunch carried from home in lunch kit, honey pail or paper bag.

In winter weather, cold sandwiches make a cheerless meal. That kind of meal, added to a long walk in the wind, does not give exactly the sort of foundation needed for a good day's work! But it is a fact that for 200 days out of every year, the child attends school and eats his mid-day meal there. All told, one-fifth of the meals eaten in a year are eaten at school.

Surely, then, the mid-day meal is of prime importance. Should it not be planned to meet definite educational objectives. Some school areas have done this; one particular section to be commended is the township north of Woodstock where the Red Cross Nutritionist is giving splendid leadership.

The average rural child has a long and strenuous day. He rises early, has a few chores to do, and then a drive or walk to school. After seven or eight hours away faom home—more chores before a hot meal. All this requires energy and the right food to supply that energy. Building material is essential for growth if strong bodies are to result. We must also supply children with the various organs functioning, and resistant to disease.

In communities where lunch plans are being proved important the week's menu is posted so that mother may round out the lunch and supper with the daily essentials. In this way mother and teacher are co-ordinating their plans using the daily Basic Nutrition Pattern:

1. Milk—4 glasses or equivalent in soups and desserts.
2. Vegetables — 1 serving potatoes. 2 servings other vegetables.
3. Fruit — 1 serving tomato or citrus fruit. 1 or more servings of other fruit.
4. Meat, fish o cheese — 1 serving of either of these. 1 egg or 4 a week.
5. Cereal — 1 serving whole grain creal with milk. 4 to 6 slices of vitamin-riche bread.
   satisfy the appetite and activity
6. Some source of Vitamin D such as fish oils. Additional foods to satisfy the appetite and activity needs.

Good Food for Children:

BAKED CUSTARD

3 or 4 eggs, ⅓ or ½ cup sugar, ⅛ teaspoon salt, 3 cups hot milk, ½ teaspoon vanilla or a little nutmeg.

Beat eggs slightly. Add sugar and salt. Add hot milk slowly, then flavouring. Strain. Pour into buttered custard cups, and steam over boiling water, or place in slow oven (325 deg. F.) until firm—about 40 minutes.

Note: 4 eggs are necessary if custard is being made in one large baking dish. To test custard, insert a silver knife in the center, and if it comes out clear, custard is cooked.

BAKED APPLES

Wash and core good rniform Canadian- grown apples. Put into a baking pan, fill the centre of each apple with sugar, and add a bit of butter on the top. Add enough water to cover the bottom of the pan. Cinnamon or nutmeg may be sprinkled on the top if desired. Bake in a hot electric oven until soft (about 25 minutes), baste very often with the juice in the pan.

HONEY MUFFINS

3 tbsps. honey, ¼ cup butter, 2 eggs, ⅛tps. salt, 2¼ cups graham flour, ½ cup white flour, 3 tsps. baking powder, 1 cup milk.

Mix and sift white flour, baking powder and salt. Add graham flour. Beat eggs until foamy, add honey and turn it into egg mixture. Turn wet ingredients into dry ones all at one time. Stir vigorously until dry ingredients are just dampened. Fill muffin tins ⅔ full and bake in a hot electric oven for 20 minutes.

Note: Anne Allan regrets that listed ingredients were not correct in a previous column for "Fool-Proof Chocolate Cake". Here they are: 1½ cups sifted flour, 1 tsp. baking soda ½ cup white sugar, ¼ tsp. salt, ¼ cup cocoa, 4tbsps. melted shortening ¾ cup sour milk, 1 beaten egg, 1 tsp. vanilla, ½ cup corn syrup.

Sift and mix dry ingredients. Add shortening, sour milk, egg, vanilla and corn syrup. Beat thoroughly Bake in 2 greased layer tins for 35 mins. at 375 degs.

Angry British Spinsters, peeved because they are not eligible to state pensions until sixty, storm House of Commons building. couldn't they advance their ages a teeny, weeny bit?

True reports on the works of the Red Cross by leading Canadian writers

The case of the 7 strangers

by Claire Wallace

There is a man in Canada who has the blood of seven total strangers in his veins. Maybe you wince at that idea. He doesn't. Without it, he would be dead.

Two years ago he was seriously injured in a crash. He received desperate head injuries, and a delicate operation was imperative. But shock and loss of blood had so weakened him that he couldn't have survived one. If . . . seven strangers had not stepped in.

They were Canadian men and women who had each given a blood donation to the Canadian Red Cross Blood Transfusion Service. When the doctors called for blood to save the life of the accident victim, it was the blood of those seven which pulled him through.

"Were you one of them?"

Today, he is a healthy, happy, useful citizen of Victoria, British Columbia. The only thing that marks him as different from the average man is a rather searching look that sometimes comes into his eyes as he walks along the street. For he often thinks of the seven who saved his life and wonders who they are. As he looks into a stranger's face, he silently asks: "Were you one of them? If so, I thank you from my heart."

Similarly, the mother who gave birth to twins and would have died except for blood transfusions . . . the baby so anaemic at birth he could be kept alive only by donated blood . . . the maimed . . the sick . . . the old—all those who owe their lives to blood transfusions say: "Thanks, unknown friend."

Free blood for Canadian hospitals

The Red Cross Blood Transfusion Service plans, as soon as possible, to extend whole blood and plasma free to all patients needing it, in hospitals across Canada. Already, two provinces—British Columbia and Alberta—provide this life-saving service. Last year, Alberta and British Columbia distributed 21,044 bottles of whole blood and 2,364 bottles of plasma, resulting in the saving of many lives.

But it takes money as well as blood to save these lives. Remember this, as the Canadian Red Cross appeals to you now for funds. Give generously. A life may depend upon your donation.

Red Cross Services include: Blood Transfusion, Outpost Hospitals, Aid to Sick and Disabled Veterans, Treatment for Crippled Children, Disaster Relief, Nutrition Services, Home Nursing Courses, Swimming and Water Safety, etc.

The work of mercy never ends... Give generously to the CANADIAN RED CROSS
