Priceville Jottings

The frost on one night the middle of last week blackened many potatoes on low land.

Mr. McQueen of Stayner, a young man and student, preached in the Presbyterian church last Sunday, so there will not be any Gaelic service during August. A large number of the congregation claim that Gaelic is now unnecessary in the church services. A number of years ago at a Presbyterian meeting in Durham the Gaelic was under discussion, and a leading Highlander from Proton township said that he had studied the history of several languages to some extent, and he firmly believed the Gaelic was very ancient, dating back as far as the garden of Eden. At this juncture the Rev. McN—, who was clever at repartee, spoke up and said: "Well, I'm not surprised that our first parents were driven out of Eden for answering the Lord in such gibberish as that." The big Highlander's face twitched considerably when the laugh turned against him.

Dundalk

Dundalk citizens are not satisfied with the action, or rather inaction, of the Ontario Fuel Controller in the matter of coal supply for next winter. Not a single car of hard coal has reached town this season. In another month fall will be here and then winter following. The Fuel Controller's unfulfilled promises will not keep Jack Frost under subjection by and by. The outlook is not bright at the present time. Citizens are anxious that the Council take up the matter and secure a supply of fuel from some source which may be available in the fall.

The Herald has just learned that Herb Patton, formerly residing here, was one of the victims of the Hun murder when the hospital ship, Llandovery Castle, was torpedoed and sunk off the coast of Ireland a month ago. Herb enlisted at Birtle, Manitoba, early in the war and was in considerable trench fighting in France. He was wounded in the neck a couple of years ago and on recovery was unfit for combatant service. He took up hospital work and it is supposed he was employed on the hospital ship when he lost his life. His parents, who live in Birtle, Manitoba, have two other sons on active service.—Herald.

The young man was a nephew of Councillor James Patton of Flesherton—Ed. Advance.]
