Vol. 38, No. 19 Fesherton, Ont., October 3, 1918

EUGENIA

The message of the death of Pte. David Armstrong, son of Mrs. Wallace Armstrong last week came as a rude shock to his many friends in this community, adding one more to the number who have made the supreme sacrifice since the war began. Pte. Armstrong was, before his enlistment, an employee of a Toronto express company. He went into training with the 21st Battalion and crossed to England early in 1915, and went into action in France about August of the same year, after which he was attached to a machine gun company. He escaped injury until the time of his death. He spent practically all his boyhood days at Eugenia. Another brother, John, is in England. The deep sympathy of the community is extended to the bereaved family.

The annual Rally Day service in the Methodist Sabbath school was well attended. Mrs. Eagle gave an impressive address to the children. The children took part in the service. The pastor, Rev. Mr. Eagle, delivered an excellent sermon in the evening to both young and old.

Edwin Purvis has purchased a motorcycle. The young ladies are now waiting for the side car.

Miss Campbell of Kimberley school staff, spent the week end with Miss Etta Latimer.

The W. I. hold their monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Tuohy Friday, October 4, at 2.30 o'clock. Keep that day open. Mrs. Fenwick will give a paper and a short program has been prepared. Everyone welcome.

Miss Jamieson of Toronto is visiting with her aunts, Mrs. McMaster and Mrs Thomas Genoe.

Mrs. Walton and babe of the Sault are visiting with her sister, Mrs. Carruthers.

Messrs Turner and Leppard are getting their new houses completed and Mr. Carruthers has torn down the building he recently bought from the H E P Co. and is removing it to the farm.

Mies Kate Jamieson and Mrs. Foester spent the week end with the former's sister, Mrs. Hillock, at Maxwell.

Many of our sports took in Flesherton fall fair.

DURHAM

Miss Rita Irwin intends to leave on Saturday morning to enter service with the Chataqua near Calgary. She will be away for about three months.

Dr. Smith, who has been a resident of Dornoch for the past 25 years or more, has purchased the residence of the late Inspector Campbell, and will move here shortly to continue his practice.

Major Laidlaw has received the appointment of Police Magistrate of Durham. The certificate of his office reached here a few days ago and is quite an elaborate document.—Chronicle.

Beckett was in Nebraska last year when he joined an infantry unit. He reached England on the last day of 1917 and went to France in March. He was a good shot and became one of the snipers of the First Division—Herald.

Poets, Attention

The Dominion Press News and Feature Committee of the Victory Loan 1918 organization announces a poem contest in connection with the coming campaign. Canadians with poetical talent are invited to submit offerings not exceeding 200 words, which will be judged largely on their effectiveness as publicity designed to persuade Canadians to buy Victory bonds. A prize of a $50 bond of the new issue will be awarded for the best poem submitted. The next best $25 will be awarded special mention and $50 will be paid for those which the committee decides to use in the course of the campaign Professor M. W. Wallace of the Toronto university and the editor of Victory Loan National Press News and Feature Service will be the judges.

The committee offers to supply information concerning the urgency of the situation necessitating the coming loan, to all contestants who may apply to the committee's office, 18 King st. West, Toronto. The contest closes Oct. 15 and awards will be announced a few days later.

"Saving" Sentences

Save for Victory.

Save to make Canada secure.

A dollar saved is a dollar earned.

To save is the easiest of practices—if you have the will.

Pinch your expenditure a little and you'll find it will pay.

Save to lend your country when it calls.

The will that saves is the will that wins.

Saving will provide both an umbrella and a mackintosh for a "rainy day."

Saving money is often the expression of saving grace.

A man who is hovering on the verge of want is not his own master.

Save to save—both yourself and Canada.

Live within your means and your means will be increased.

If you don't live within your means you must live on the means of others.

Heaven helps those who help themselves. Moral—save.

Don't be a victim of circumstances; help circumstances by saving.

Sacrifice a present pleasure for a future good—Save.

Save, remembering that to him that hath shall be given.

Saving carries its own reward—with interest.

Carnegie's chief asset in beginning life was his "saving" quality.

John McComb, of Chatsworth, had his foot badly burned by having it caught on the fire box of a threshing engine when it crashed through a gangway to a root house below. The foot was terribly burned and it is possible that it will be amputated.

A horse belonging to Mike Maloney, of Owen Sound, was struck and killed by a C.P.R. train recently.

A young man in Owen Sound was fined $21 and costs for stealing wood.

Thrift Hallmarks A Nation

Saving the almighty dollar in order to gratify one's desires in the matter of personal purchases has been a working force in society for all time. To save for the sake of hoarding the golden ducats is a form of insanity that has afflicted the misers of all time. To save in order to make another stronger is the highest form of thrift known. And in exercising this virtue of laying aside extra dollars from our present surpluses, for the better living of society when times may not be so generous, we carry in us the marks of the true Canadian patriot.

He who loves his country is no waster. He knows his savings form the capital that makes business go. The dollar soon doubles itself and total savings of a thrifty people mark out the nation as a really great one. Love of our Canadian home land demands of every resident from the Yukon to Cape Breton, that he save his surplus dollars against a possible rainy day. The thrifty man is one of Canada's big patrists.

LAUGHED IN WRONG PLACE

London Theater Managers Waxed Indignant Over Behavior of George Bernard Shaw.

After Shaw had been working with me for some time on the Saturday Review, writing the dramatic criticisms each week, which are better than perhaps the best of Lessing, I began to receive complaints about him from theater managers, says Frank Harris in Pearson's Magazine.

I answered them haughtily. Two or three of them called on me one day and told me that Shaw was impossible.

"He comes to the theater dressed in tweeds, you know," [illegible] "and looks awful."

"He is so conspicuous," said another. "Tall and gaunt with that unkempt red beard of his."

"You ought to thank your stars that he goes to your theater at all," I replied. "I certainly shall not instruct him how to clothe himself."

"I should not mind his dress," said a third; "what I object to is that he always laughs in the wrong place. It is dreadful when a favorite actor is saying something very pathetic or sentimental to see a great figure in gray stretch himself out in the front stalls and roar with laughter."

"I know," I said, grinning, "and the worst of it is that all the world laughs with Shaw when he shows them the unconscious humors of your performance."

For Him Who Dares.

The United States government is to give official recognition to acts of bravery on the field of battle by individual officers and enlisted men. There has been for many years what is known as the Congressional Medal of Honor, which is bestowed on soldiers who perform deeds of daring in the face of the enemy. It is the heart's desire of every American soldier to win this decoration, for it is this country's equivalent of the Victoria cross of Great Britain and of the Croix de Guerre of France.
